The Brunswick

Why the Brunswick Method of Reproduction Insures a Superior Phonograph

Reason No. 1 The Brunswick Method of Reproduction includes the Utone, a new conception in playing. The Utone consists of an arrangement of the several necessary reproducing diaphragms upon one tone arm—an all-in-one arrangement, with no attachments—nothing to take off or put on.

At a turn of the hand, the Utone presents to any type of record the proper diaphragm and needle, the exact weight. Thus the requirements of each type of record are met. The Utone demands no sacrifice in tone, as attachments often do.

Reason No. 2 Equal in importance to reproduction is tone amplification. The Brunswick Method of Reproduction also includes a new idea in acoustics—The Brunswick Amplifier.

Old-time ideas were at variance. Some makers still cling to metal construction. Others use a combination of wood and metal—a wooden horn and a metal casing as the "throat."

But the Brunswick Amplifier is oval in shape, and built entirely of wood, like a fine violin. It is molded of rare holly-wood. The sound waves receive uniform amplification to reach their fullness, hence the Brunswick tone is richer and more natural. Strident, metallic notes are absent.

ART GALLERY FOR PHILADELPHIA

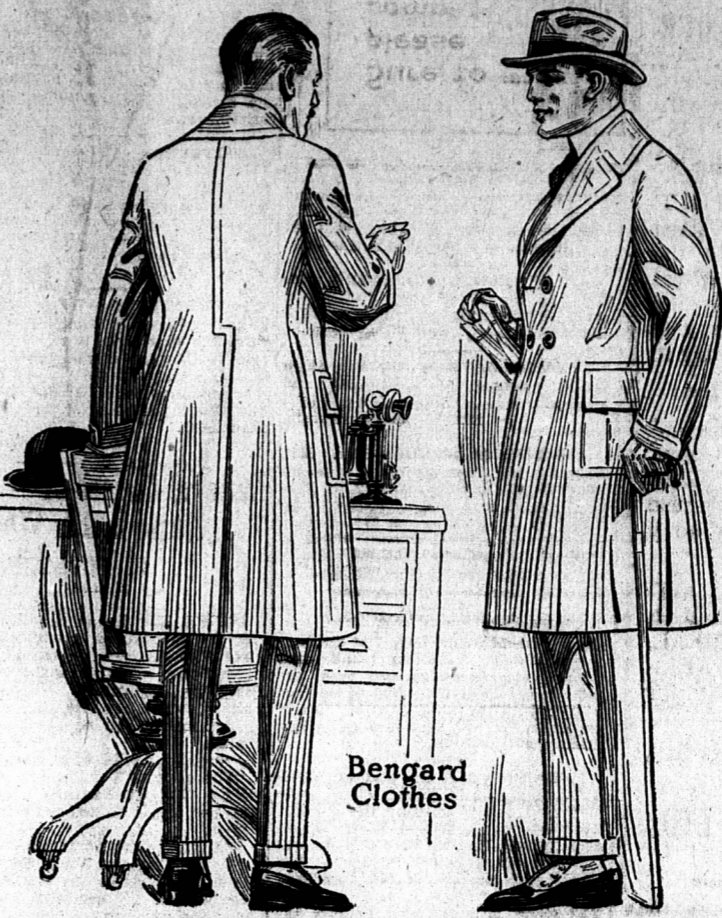

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Through the will of George W. Elkins, financier and philanthropist, which was filed today in Norristown, the City of Philadelphia has become the owner of the magnificent collection of paintings valued at $2,500,000, which belonged to Mr. Elkins's father, William L. Elkins.

Already in possession of the John G. Johnson collection, valued at $4,500,000; the Wilstach paintings worth at least $1,000,000, and the collection of early American portraits in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, according to connoisseurs, now owns an array of old and modern masters that has few peers in the United States. A fund of $500,000 has been left to the city by Mr. Elkins for the maintenance of the collection and for the purchase of additional paintings "of a quality and character suitable to be added to the collection from time to time." The municipality is to pay all the taxes on the pictures and on the $500,000 trust fund for their upkeep. In case the city fails to accept the gift this fund, too, will revert to the estate.

Abington Memorial Hospital, founded by Mr. Elkins, in memory of his first wife, will receive $500,000. An equal amount was left to the Habnemann Hospital of this city. Although it is a matter of history that the estate of Mr. Elkins's father, which he did not inherit entirely, was valued at $21,000,000, the total value of George W. Elkins's estate will never be known exactly if the following provision in his will is fulfilled: "I do not wish an inventory and appraisal of my estate to be filed for public inspection."

The art collection contains 110 masterpieces representing many schools and periods. Of the old schools, the Dutch, Flemish and eighteenth century English portrait painters are particularly well represented. Included in the English group there is "The Death of Dido," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, a Gainsborough and works by Romney, Constable, and Moreland. Two portraits by Rembrandt are the features of the Dutch group. There is a marine by Jacob van Rysdael, believed to be the only canvas of this kind produced by the painter of woodlands, cascades and waterfalls. Examples of van Rysdael's usual manner are also in the collection. There are two portraits by Franz Hals, one of them "The Laughing Child." Another notable canvas is Terburg's "Waiting for Orders." Besides a portrait by Ferdinand

RICHARD PARTRIDGE

On November the 1st inst. there passed away at Church Road, Midgeil, Mr. Richard Partridge at the age of 78 years. The deceased was never known to suffer any sickness thus it came as a great shock to his many friends when they heard that he was laid aside although no one expected death to be so near. The old gentleman was much beloved by all who knew him. Thus on Monday a large number of friends from the surrounding districts paid their last respects to him by turning out to his funeral service which was led by the Rev. Robert M. Brodie. The hymns sung being "Nearer my God to be" "Lead Kindly Light" and "Asleep in Jesus." After a most solemn service the remains were laid to rest in the Methodist cemetery at Marie. The pall bearers being Messrs. Alf. Webster, H. James, Alex. Cobb, J. McEwen, J. Webster, and Sol. Pappson, the hearse being driven by Mr. Wallace James. The deceased is survived by an aged widow for whom much sympathy is felt. In addition he leaves four daughters, three of whom arrived home from the States last Wednesday.
