"The landlady seldom pays any attention to a rumor unless the rent is due."

The Hobo: Kin I eat some of the snow off your lot, lady?
The Lady: I'm not sure. We only rent the upper flat.

UNRECEPTIVE
Little words of sage advice
Always sound most awful nice
When it's up to you to utter
Them, but when it's yours to hear
Something of the kind, oh, dear,
How you mutter.

"Is she fond of children?"
"I should say she is. She fought her husband for seven months in the courts to get the custody of them."

"Last night I looked through the keyhole into the parlor where Clara was with her beau."
"What did you find out?"
"The door was shut."

But I had no opportunity for such thoughts as Juggins and I hurried through the streets toward the river, where a wherry was awaiting us. All the way he kept up a running fire of last-minute advice and instructions.

"Guard well the letters I have given you, the one to Corlaer no less than those to Governor Burnet and Master Couden. Corlaer, though he be only a rude and unlettered woodsman, is none the less of importance in the wilderness country. He hath the confidence of the Indians of the Six Nations, a mighty tribe, or rather confederacy of tribes, Master Harry. I have written strongly as a man may to Governor Burnet, but I would have you say to him all you can think of to urge him to a vigorous course. 'Tis no hour for half-way measures. We must crush Murray once and for all."

We came presently to Greenwich reach, and steered a passage through the river traffic to the side of the New Venture. Master Abbot, her captain, met us at the rail.

"The young man is not sure of himself afloat, and would seek his berth," said Master Juggins, after the preliminaries had been passed. "As he pleases," agreed Captain Abbot indifferently. "Yare the first aboard, lad, and may choose your quarters. You may bunk with the second mate or one of the other passengers. But, no," he corrected himself; I should have said with one of two of the other passengers. The lady hath a cabin to herself."

"The lady!" I exclaimed. Master Juggins pursed his lips in a scoundrel whistle.

"So you carry a lady," he commented. "Aye," replied Abbot. "Who is she?" "I know not."

He turned to me. "And now, young sir, what do you say? Will it be the second mate or a passenger for companion?"

"The second mate," I said. He nodded his head, called a seaman to carry my luggage below and pointed the way and walked off.

Master Juggins drew me back to the rail. "This best I should not wait," he said. "Stay below till you are safe out of Thames mouth, Master Harry."

By the cabin entrance under the poop I found the seaman who had collected my scanty baggage.

"Where do you berth?" he asked me, pausing at the foot of the ladder stairs.

"With the second mate." He opened the door on the right-hand, or starboard, side, revealing a space so tiny that I marveled how two men could force themselves into it at once. Two short, shallow bunks occupied two-thirds of its area.

"Do all the passengers lodge aft here?" I asked him carelessly as he disposed of my trappings.

"All save the negro; he is to sleep in the galley behind the companionway."

When he had gone, I curled up in the lower bunk, which the second mate obviously had surrendered to me. At last I must have dozed, for I was awakened suddenly by a woman's voice singing. It was a song I had heard before, with a Scots accent to the words and a wonderful lilting melody that was somehow very sad

You should be safe enough now, but care is a sure precaution."

"I will not forget, I promised. "And one thing more, lad. Do not stint your wants for money. Governor Burnet will aid you to draw whatever you may desire through the bankers in New York. Remember, you spend on my behalf. I would willingly use all I have to thwart Murray. When all is said and done, we are at war with France. 'Tis no war of generals and armies and admirals and fleets, I grant you. But war it is."

He smote the rail with his hand by way of emphasis.

"What kind of war?" I asked. "Why, a war for the right to grow and flourish, a war for trade. At other times, mark you, nations clash over questions of honor or territory. So their statesmen say. Actually there is a question of trade or merchantry at the bottom of every war that has been fought since the world began. Today we are fighting with France for control of the trade of the Atlantic—and control of the Atlantic trade means control of the Western Plantations, America. We are fighting, Master Harry, with laws and tariffs and manufacturing skill and shipping instead of with men and deadly weapons."

"The country which wins the fur trade will win control over the greatest number of savages. And the country which is so placed, especially if it be England, will win the military struggle which some day will have to be fought for dominion in America. So I would have you feel yourself a soldier, a general of trade, sent out upon a venture of great danger and importance. It may be, Master Harry, that you carry on your shoulders the future of England and of nations yet unborn."

"All that I can, I will do!" I exclaimed.

He clasped my hand in a wringing grip. "Good luck to you, lad, and write as occasion serves."

He went over the side with his lips pursed as if to whistle and a look of doleful pleasure on his face. Him, too, as it happened, I was never to see again. In fact, I wonder whether I should not have leaped over the vessel's side at that moment had I realized how complete was to be the severance of my life from all that I had known before.

and all the while it was pretending to merriment. I rose from my bunk and, stealing to the door, set it open, so that I might hear the better. I was so interested in the song and the singer's voice that I forgot even to watch the door of the cabin next to mine where she was singing. And judge to my surprise when the singer's door swung open and she stepped into the passage, almost at my side.

Her surprise, was but natural, was greater than mine. So we stood there a moment within a long yard of each other, gazing mutely into each other's eyes. Her face, flower-like in the dim light that came down the companionway, had a sweetness of expression that belied the proud carriage of her head and an air of hauteur such as I had seen about the great ladies of King Louis' court. Her hair was black and all blown in little wisps that curled at her forehead and neck. Her eyes were dark, too.

"I heard you singing," I said. She turned and made to re-enter her cabin. But I raised my hand involuntarily in a gesture of appeal.

"I am sorry," I went on quickly. "I did not mean to be rude. I—I could not help it."

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN MORTIMER

The death occurred at the P. E. Island Hospital on Feb. 18, 1931, of John Mortimer, in the seventy-seventh year of his age.

The deceased was suffering from diabetes and all that tender nursing and medical skill could do was of no avail for God willed it otherwise and his spirit winged its flight to the great beyond.

He was a man of sterling character, honest and upright in all his dealings, a good friend and neighbor ever ready to lend a hand in the time of trouble. The late Mr. Mortimer was well and favorably known, being employed on the P. E. I. Railway for over forty-two years and he was held in the highest esteem by his employers and fellow workmen.

There are left to mourn their irreplaceable loss, a sorrowing widow, six daughter and two sons; also one sister and a brother, of this city, to whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, the 19th inst., at 2:30 o'clock from N. D. MacLean's funeral home and was largely attended. The interment was in Highfield Cemetery, when all that was mortal of a kind and loving father and husband was laid to rest, there to await the glorious resurrection. The services at the home and grave were conducted by Rev. Dr. Ramsay, of the Trinity United Church, the hymns "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Asleep in Jesus," being sung. The pall bearers were: Messrs. A. R. Wise, George Snelgrove, Solomon Vall, Archibald MacDougall, Austin Gallant and Oliver Fyfe.

COP NEVER WALKED BEAT

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Mar. 4.—Although Captain Pasquale Bennett has been a member of the local police department for 25 years, he never walked a beat. Bennett was named Italian interpreter of the court of special sessions in 1906 and in 1907 he was appointed a detective. For 19 years he served in that capacity, gaining the distinction of investigating more homicide cases than any other member of the department. He was appointed a captain in 1926.

In Spain... beauty experts insist on olive and palm oils to keep that schoolgirl complexion

Specialists in beauty culture... in Canada as in Spain... agree on this one way to keep skin lovely.

Tejero advises you: "Massage a fine lather of Palmolive into the skin—so—rinse it off with refreshing clear water—to icy-cold temperature. A bit of cream (if you need it for a powder base). There! That leaves skin smooth, naturally fresh and lovely."

Consult Your Beauty Specialist

Only a trained, professional beautician can give you expert beauty care. Get into the habit of consulting your beauty specialist regularly. Don't wait until beauty errors must be corrected. Keep youth and beauty by giving them the right care. Your expert will help you.

TEJERO, the famous Barcelona beauty specialist, becomes indignant when his smart clients do not follow his advice. "How dare you mistreat your complexion," he storms, with the Spaniard's fiery spirit, "when it is so easy to use this twice-a-day treatment!"

The treatment to which he refers is stressed by 23,723 beauty specialists, the world over. Before all else, they emphasize the need of pure soap and water for foundation cleanliness. Every one of them considers Palmolive best.

Keep that Schoolgirl Complexion

Palmolive Radio Hour—Broadcast every Wednesday night—9:30 to 10:30 p.m., Eastern Time; 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., Central Time; 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., Mountain Time; 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., Pacific Time—over stations WEAJ, CKGW and 39 stations associated with The N.B.C. red network.
