GRAVE DANGER

Observes Dr. Bloomer, if a cold is allowed to run, La Grippe, Pneumonia, or Bronchitis is sure to follow if "Psychine" is not taken to prevent the progress.

Don't experiment with cheap cough mixtures or like concoctions, which at best can only temporarily relieve, until you are forced to your bed from which you will arise frailer—the more so the longer you have been laid up. This is the case of the vast majority who have started on the rapid road to the consumptive grave, declares the eminent Lung Specialist.

PSYCHINE (PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

will rid the system of all tubercular poison and build up weak and wasted bodies with healthy tissue. Psychine is a tonic and it creates strength, gives you a ravenous appetite and produces healthy flesh.

In cases of obstinate coughs, pain in the lungs, sore throat, headache, pain in the limbs, extreme weakness, you cannot afford to be without Psychine. It is prepared expressly for all diseases of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and it you have the least sign of a cough, sudden chill, shivery feeling, cold feet or nervous prostration, procure "Psychine" from your druggist.

If your druggist hasn't "Psychine" in stock, write Dr. J. A. Fleming, Limited, 179 King Street West, Toronto, Canada, and a sample bottle will be sent you promptly.

Mr. Blundell's Pedigree.

A correspondent writes: The recent death of Sir John Blundell Maple, Bart., the millionaire breeder of horses, who made his money by selling house furniture in a shop in Tottenham Court road, is by no means an aristocratic quarter of London recalls the story of the ingenious and surprising genealogist who was retained to trace his pedigree from the records of the Herald's College. The name Blundell was a good starting point, and the learned genealogist was able to deduce a pedigree which greatly pleased the newly-created Baronet, and which (to his satisfaction, at all events) proved his descent from Blondel, the favorite bard of the Court of Richard the Lion-heart who discovered the dungeon in which his loyal master was held in durance vile, the veracity of the pedigree being confirmed by the final surname Maple. For does not history tell us that on hearing the harp of his faithful bard outside the walls of his dungeon, Richard the Lion-heart was heard to exclaim "Blondel M'Appellee." "Blondel calls me"; after which Sir John's family adopted the surname of "M'Appellee," which in a later age degenerated into "Maple"—at least so the story goes, and genealogy is never at fault.

The Corrected Herbert Spencer.

Amongst the stories told of the late Herbert Spencer some time ago was one relating to his boarding-house experiences. His doctor had advised him that solitary meals were not good for him, and he went to a boarding-house, but did not stay. The "pleasant lady" who sat next to him, and who was to engage him in light and cheerful talk, was a sad disappointment. A friend asked her how she liked the boarding-house; could she recommend it? "Oh, yes, I think I can," she replied; "but there is a Mr. Spencer who thinks that he knows about science and philosophy. I have to correct him every night." One of Spencer's peculiarities was to carry about two little plugs in his pocket, and whenever conversation around him became annoying he took them out and put them in his ears.

Norfolk and John Burns.

A good story is told of His Grace the Duke of Norfolk and that estimable man, John Burns. The Duke who, by the way, is to marry again, is not only the premier peer of England, but is colossal rich, although he doesn't look it. Not long ago Mr. Burns was seen by a Battersea elector walking arm in arm with a shabbily dressed man whom the Battersea resident took to be a tramp. Drawing Burns aside, he said to him: "Look ere, John, democracy's all very fine, but don't you reckonize what's doo to your position as a member of the 'Ouse? Fancy walkin' about harm-in-harm, in broad daylight, with a workin' man." "Sh," whispered Burns, "that's the Duke of Norfolk." And it was!

A "Kangaroo's Money"

Andrew Carnegie brings each year from Scotland a new collection of Scottish stories. One of last year's gathering concerns an ignorant farmer.

This farmer, over a glass of whiskey, sympathized one day with the complaints of an old friend of his, a peddler. The peddler said in Scotland, times were always hard; money there; it was a poor place to get along in. "What you say it true," the farmer agreed. "Why don't you emigrate to Australia, Tavish? Australia's grand place, by all accounts." "It used to be," the other returned, "but it is so no longer. Australia is as overcrowded now as any other land."

"The coast may be," the farmer admitted, "but the interior, I'm sure, is not. Go to Australia, Tavish, and push into the interior." "D—n the interior!" said the peddler. "There's nothing there but kangaroos."

The farmer thought the kangaroos were some foreign race of people. "Wall, Tavish," he said, reproachfully, "isn't a kangaroo's money as good as any other man's?"

A Whistler's Tale.

An artist, returned from abroad, tells this story of the late James MacNeill Whistler.

A group of artists were discussing the manifold perfections of the late Lord Leighton, president of the Royal Academy.

"Exquisite musician—played the violin like a professional," said one.

"One of the best dressed men in London," said another.

Danced divinely," remarked the third.

"Ever read his essays?" asked a fourth. "In my opinion they're the best of the kind ever written."

Whistler, who had remained silent, tapped the last speaker on the shoulder. "Painted, too, didn't he?" he said.

His Account Book.

A firm of masons in an Irish town employ a laborer whose novel method of keeping accounts of his time was brought to light lately by a queer circumstance. He went one evening to his employer's home with even the aid of intelligence that he had lost his account book. He said that the pigs had unfortunately got in and eaten it up.

"What sort of an account book did you keep?" asked his employer.

"Why, I had an empty barrel, and when I worked a whole day I put in a potato, and when half a day put in a potato, and the pigs ate them all entirely."—Pearson's Weekly.

Didn't Like Changes.

"In a man," said the old farmer to the druggist after having purchased a quantity of strychnine to kill off rats, "Time's man who don't like changes. When I get home I shall say to the old woman: 'Martha, here's the strychnine to kill off the rats, and you want to be careful of it.' 'Where shall I put it?' she will say. 'In the same old place—right alongside the bakin' powder. We've bin keepin' it there for thirty years, and you've never put it in the pie crust or biscuit by mistake, but if I hide it away upstairs or down cellar or out to the barn one of us will beartin' to take it for epsom salts before the week is out and git a heavenly hustle on us.'"

Kidney Disease Results From Colds

Exposure of the Back to Drafts Not an Infrequent Cause of This Dreadfully Painful Ailment.

The kidneys are very susceptible to cold, so much so that a current of cold air on the back is sufficient to cause congestion to these organs.

It is also a very common thing for heavy colds to settle on the kidneys and give rise to the most complicated diseases.

While teamsters, railroadmen and others whose work subjects them to more than ordinary exposure are especially liable to be overtaken by kidney disease, it is also frequent among indoor workers.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully prompt in their action on the kidneys that they are especially valuable in cases of kidney disease which arise from colds.

Backache, highly colored urine, pain or smarting when passing water, headache, cramps in the legs, constipation alternating with looseness of bowels, sick appetite, vomiting and general feelings of discomfort are among the most common symptoms.

The record of cures effected by means of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has not been equalled in the history of medicine. In the majority of the homes of Canada these pills are always at hand as an indispensable family medicine.

Mr. Wm. A. McDougall, police court clerk, Montreal, N. B., states: "As a remedy for lame back, pains in the small of the back and all forms of kidney and liver trouble, I consider Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ahead of all treatments. I have used these pills myself for liver derangements and always found them most satisfactory in relieving the troubles at once."

"I have also heard a number of people praise this medicine and have no hesitation whatever in recommending it to any one affected with any of the above ailments. We always keep a box of these pills in the house in the case of sickness."

ENGLAND'S HEAVIEST SUBJECT.

London, February 25.—England's heaviest subject weighing 600 pounds is dead.

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is an antiseptic and unequalled as a quick healing liniment for cuts, bruises and burns. For sale by all druggists.

Discovered a New Coming Thick and Fast.

The scientific world seems almost dumfounded at Prof. William Ramsay's discovery that the elements are, after all, transmutable. It is felt that what has been regarded as one of the foundations of science has been destroyed.

Prof. Oliver Lodge now launches the following stupendous theory: "There are those who have surmised that matter is, after all, only the weapon and vehicle of mind. The way it interprets itself to our consciousness through the sense of the organs gives no clue to its nature. A motion and alteration of the configuration of the molecules of our brain are believed to accompany every act of thought. It will be, at any rate, a suggestive analogy if a material progress of an essentially similar sort is found to be occurring throughout what we know as the inorganic world—the world of dead matter—and we should begin to ask, does all this motion correspond to some universal thought or mental activity likewise?"

LARGEST 15.2 TELESCOPE.

OTTAWA, February 22.—By September next, the largest 15.2 inch lens telescope will be mounted at the Dominion observatory at the Central Experimental Farm. The building is now practically completed except the great dome which will be constructed of steel with metallic coverings.

YOU TAKE NO CHANCES.

All druggists guarantee every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and will refund the money to anyone who is not satisfied after using two-thirds of the contents. This is the best remedy in the world for la grippe, coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is pleasant and safe to take. It prevents any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

OTTAWA, February 22.—W. F. King, chief astronomer, leaves shortly for Washington to confer with Titman, superintendent of the coast and geodetic survey of the United States, in regard to the delimitation of the Alaskan boundary, according to the decision of the international tribunal.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLES.

"I have taken a great many different medicines for stomach trouble and constipation," says Mrs. S. Geiger, of Davenport, Iowa, "but never had as good results from any as from Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets." For sale by all druggists.

BEHRING SEA CLAIMS.

OTTAWA, February 22.—R. N. Venhof, assistant inspector of fisheries, leaves for England tomorrow via New York, in company with H. A. Little, one of the commissioners appointed to determine the amount which shall be paid by the Russians in compensation for the seizure of Canadian fishing vessels in Behring Sea some half-dozen years ago.

TENDENCY OF THE TIMES.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical man has to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of influenza (grip), and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pain in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted. It always cures. For sale by all druggists.
