In Memoriam. In loving memory of my dear brother and uncle, FREDERICK E. STONE who gave his life for his country, October 16, 1944.

In Memoriam. There is someone who misses you each day. And finds the time long since you were here. There is someone who thinks of you each day. And tries to be brave and strong. But our hearts just ache with you. Our eyes shed many a tear. God alone knows how we miss you. At the dawn of another year. Lovingly remembered by Miss B. J. Stone, husband and family. 9-10-45.

IN MEMORIAM. In sad and loving memory of our dear son and brother, FREDERICK E. STONE, who gave his young life on the battlefield of France, September 10, 1944.

Dearest Marlene how we miss you. Though we know 'tis vain to weep. Tears of love cannot wake you. From your happy, peaceful sleep. He little thought when leaving home. He would no more return. That he in death so soon would sleep. And leave us here to mourn.

We do not know the pain he bore. We did not see him die. We only know he passed away. And never said good bye. He has beside his comrades in a hallowed grave unknown. But his name is written in letters of love. On the hearts he left at home.

Sadly Missed and Lovingly Remembered by Mother, Father, Brothers and Sisters. 9-10-45.

Waiting For Ship Tough On Released Prisoners. By WILLIAM STEWART. MANILA, Sept. 9 (CP Cable)—Canadian prisoners of war freed from Samshupo camp in Kowloon remain in the pre-war British military barracks, in which they spent three years and eight months, until they board the liner Empress of Australia which will bring them to Manila on the first step toward their repatriation.

The internal camp organization was maintained until the prisoners were ready to depart and while many officers and other ranks visited the Canadian and other Allied prisoners who were only the slightest breach cloth and sandals, usually homemade. The burning sun left all the prisoners with a dark tan which gives them a deceptively healthy appearance though they all are thin and some are still afflicted with beriberi and other ailments.

Their trips to the Prince Robert where they were really royally entertained, along with any other Allied prisoner who cared to walk up the ship's gangplank were made in American automobiles seized by the Japanese in 1941 and now commandeered by the Canadians.

When I flew to Manila from Hong Kong Thursday night, the Canadians were not certain just when the Empress would set out, bringing them and British prisoners and civilian internees here. The navy wanted the troops which had landed 3,000 R. A. F. personnel there, to be spick and span and take the first step toward a health precaution.

Home, Only Thought. The period between their liberation and their departure from Hong Kong was almost as trying as the period as they were in Samshupo and their memories beamed and take the first step toward a health precaution.

Samshupo camp, which lies on a flat bed of reclaimed ground on the western side of the Kowloon Peninsula and on the outskirts of that sizeable city, is in the shadow of tall hills and is a well-established barracks area with paved roads and low whitewashed brick huts.

British and Canadian prisoners have office quarters in separate huts from that in which the camp administration was conducted. Officers and other ranks among the prisoners lived in conditions of overcrowding and slept in iron cots, though when they were first placed in Samshupo the place was bare.

The prisoners "have it in" for a Canadian-born Japanese interpreter who at the camp went out of his way to treat the Canadians brutally. His name is Inouye and he was at Kamloops, B.C., until a year before the war. Inouye disappeared a few days before the liberation.

Explosion In Air. Contrary to some reports, the Japanese said the bomb did not hit the ground but exploded at an altitude of about 1,500 feet. The bomb fell about 11 a.m. and exploded over the heart of the Nagasaki factory district, less than a mile from the giant Mitsubishi Steel Works.

The tangled, twisted steel ribs lean outward, away from the blast of this quarter-mile long factory force. Nagasaki is built along two valleys that form a "V" with about half the city in each valley.

The bomb struck the industrial half, which also contains most of the business buildings, wiping out nearly every store, hotel and office building. In the other valley guarded by the hills, hundreds of buildings were wrecked, the surrounding blast killed off great areas of trees on the surrounding wooded hills, which now stand brown and dry.

In this valley of death a few families have begun to move back and are putting up rusted tin shacks where their homes once stood. Nagasaki officials estimated 26,000 persons perished, 40,000 were wounded and claimed that an average of 10 to 12 victims still were dying daily. They expect the death toll to reach 40,000.

Now you can see how conservative were the first reconnaissance reports that one square mile had been destroyed. A mile across the valley from where the bomb exploded wrecked buildings lean drunkenly, pushed over of line by the crushing force that mushroomed over the spot where the bomb exploded there is a patch of bare ground perhaps half a mile square which was swept almost entirely free of any object.
