Give the kiddies a real Victrola

Why not place an inexpensive small-type Victrola in the nursery or playroom for the children's very own? Think of the great delight it will add to their playtime hours!

A Victrola will bring them music and songs to love and memorize; music to accompany their plays and pageants; singing games, folk and interpretative dances, and fairy stories of the kind the little folks adore.

Both the Victrola IV and VI are ideal instruments for children. They play all "His Master's Voice" Records perfectly. Come in and hear some of the many records made expressly for children.

THANKSGIVING. — Today is Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday. Special services appropriate to Thanksgiving were held in most of the city churches on Sunday. At St. Paul's the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The members of the Boys Naval Brigade attended in a body in the morning and their excellent appearance on parade was very favorably commented upon.

MORE SPEED WANTED. There appears to be no good reason why mails received in the city at 6.45 or even at 7 should not be placed in the boxes before 9 o'clock. This occured again Saturday night to the very loudly expressed impatience of many citizens. This slowness has been developing for some time past but seemed to have reached a climax on Saturday night when many left at 9.15 without their mail. It is hoped that a little more speed will be applied.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAM HODGSON

The Guardian regrets to learn of the death of Mr. William Hodgson of Malpeque which took place Saturday morning. Mr Hodgson was 82 years of age and had been laid aside from active duty for some years. In his younger days he was a member of the firm of Garrett & Hodgson of Stanley Bridge which firm did a large business in dry goods and groceries to which they added ship-building. In the first barkentine built by them Mr. Hodgson went to the Mother Country as supercargo. In returning to Halifax the liner carried a number of troops owing to the strained relations between Great Britain and the United States over the Mason and Slidell embroglio.

In more recent years he carried on a dry goods and grocery business in Malpeque. The "Hodgson House" was well known to many American tourists.

He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Annie Owen, and is survived by one son, Harry, in Chicago, and three daughters, Miss Alice at home, Mrs. MacGougan in Vancouver and Mrs. Hales in Seattle. The Guardian extends sincerest sympathy to the bereaved.

OBSERVE THE LAW

Sir:—When they die, no doubt The Guardian, along with the other papers will tell the public what good citizens they were. Now why can they not be good citizens while they are alive?

A good citizen will try to keep all the laws and by-laws that are passed by our various law-making bodies. No doubt there are times when one will break some of them without meaning to and others will continue to ignore some of them altogether, especially the by law that says, "you must not ride a bicycle on the sidewalk."

Now, in my wandering around the city, I see a good deal of it, but I think the part of the city where it has become a confirmed habit is Euston Street and Brighton Road, all the way from "Watermere" to Great George Street.

In my daily walks out Brighton Road I can see where there is a well beaten track where they have to leave the sidewalk and take to the side of the road when they come to the roads leading north and south, as they would get a bump there that might injure the wheel, as much as if they hit a child.

Now, they do not all keep to Euston Street; some of them turn off and go along Rochford Street and up across the Square and on up to Queen Street.

Do you see them riding on the sidewalk there?—not a bit of it,—have they suddenly become good citizens?—not at all; the Police Station is there, while the chance of meeting a policeman on Euston Street or Brighton Road,—is about one in so many.

Come on now, men,—be sports. Keep to the roadway; it is good enough for wheeling. Leave the sidewalks to pedestrians; the man who will not do that is not worthy to be called a good citizen when he dies.

Yours & c.,
PEDESTRIAN.

"Football"—The word sounds familiar, but nobody in Charlottetown seems to know what it looks like.

"Dem wuz de happy days"—way back there in 1898 when folks could stroll out to Victoria Park most any afternoon and hear the joyous music caused by the toe coming in sudden conjunction with the old leather sphere.

If football could come to life again around here the first sentence it would gasp out would be "revive us again."

The latest—MacSwiney breaks his fast "takes a roll in bed."

Nows the day and now's the hour to show what's left of football power.

Play up! Play up and play the game and show what little there may remain.

Somebody said something about cricket the other day. Cricket is dead and football hasn't got back from attending its funeral.

Leo Fluck, the great all round athletic, Jack I. McNeill and Arthur Lilly, who starred last season, are back at college ready to do their best during the 1921 season. They are all that is left of the great 1920 machine, but it is reported that there are several newcomers at the university who are fast nough to make a place.

Dalhousie's trip to Harvard which was called off last year after many squabbles with the M. P. B. A. A. U. of C., is almost a certainty for next Christmas holidays. Supporters of the college team feel, however that the locals should have made the trip last year when the greatest hockey team that has ever reprsentd the university, was ready to play the famous American Collegians.

Those words of Cicotte: "I have lived a thousand years this last year," are the most burning [illegible]ing that could be uttered on the matter.
