

NOT HER FEET WET CAUGHT BAD COLD

Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes: "Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time."

One day I was reading about what your medicine had done for others, so I thought I would get a bottle. After I had taken a few doses I found it was helping me, so I took a few more and was completely restored to health. I cannot praise

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup too highly, as I believe that if it were not for it I would be an invalid to-day."

arguments to support theories where would it land us? When the woman taken for judgment was brought to Christ for judgment, all though guilt was certain, His decision was, "Neither do I condemn thee." Are we to take this as an abrogation of the Seventh Commandment? When He interpreted the Jewish Law, "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," into one of resist not evil, and to love your enemies, was that to give sanction to the lawless and the assaillant? These and countless other modifications made for the guidance of the Christian in his personal conduct, for the bringing of his own life into a state of higher purity and devotion, can surely not be so mis-applied as to give countenance to the opposite of that for which they are intended.

I am at one with the Reverend Bishop in his view that God's method of fostering the practice of virtue, sobriety and temperance, is in man's attachment of eternal happiness. God did not make automatons of human kind. He left us endowed with the power to follow the right, or to do the wrong. But He also left us the choice of rewards or punishment. His laws enable the shepherd to build a sheep-fold to protect his flocks. He was also at liberty to allow his flocks to run at large—a prey to wild beasts and the bandits of the fields. He did not prevent the slayer from lifting the weapon to kill, neither did He command that the avenger's hand should be stayed when he sought "a life for a life."

In the economy of God's laws very much was left to the discretion of His people in their orderings of government. Slavery was neither ordered nor condemned, but its abolition was adopted by man in the full belief that it was in accord with the teachings of the world's Redeemer. Evils were pointed out, and wrongs condemned, but legislation for their eradication was left to the discretion of man. Forms of laws and restraints were never out of detail by Jehovah, but His people were fervently appealed to to put away evil from out of the land. And amongst those evils which we are commanded to suppress and wipe out there is none more vehemently denounced, particularly in the Old Testament, than that which is a strong drink. And if that were so in those days of the lighter wines, with what force would it apply today to the vicious forty over proof rum, or the knock-out whiskies and brandies of high alcoholic content of our temperate age?

I am, Sir, etc. OBSERVER.

IF your Stomach and Liver are weak, your food is not digested. This causes food to be held up in your body. The usual result is constipation, which causes bad breath, headache and severe gas pains. For 64 years, people have sensibly corrected this condition by using Chamberlain's Tablets for the Stomach and Liver. They help the digestive organs stop chronic constipation. —ROBERTS—BLACK. — Friends in Fredericton have learned with considerable surprise of a quiet wedding which was solemnized in Montreal on Dec. 5, when Miss Grace H. Black, of the staff of the Dominion Experimental Station here, became the bride of T. Leonard Roberts, accountant of the Woodstock branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, formerly of Fredericton, says the Saint John Telegraph Journal. Announcement of their marriage was made shortly before the bride's departure from Fredericton recently for Woodstock, where Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will reside. The bride was the recipient of two sterling silver entree dishes from the staff of the Experimental Station prior to her departure from the capital, she having resigned her position. Mrs. Roberts is a daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. George B. Black, formerly of England, and has made her home in New Brunswick with an aunt, Mrs. F. S. Sadler, of Perth, until coming to Fredericton five years ago to accept a position in the N. B. Treasury Department following graduation from the Fredericton Business College. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts, of Summerside, P. E. I., and was formerly a member of the staff of the Fredericton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Text Book Changes Are Considered

HALIFAX, Feb. 5. — The preliminary conference on text books in which the representatives of the three Maritime Provinces took part, was concluded yesterday afternoon at the Education Office. As the reports from the various committees appointed to investigate the text books at present in use—their merits and demerits—have not been received, definite recommendations were deferred to a later meeting to be held in Fredericton about the end of March. Some fifty text books were considered and matters in connection with the rural education and suitable nature study text books were discussed.

The greater part of the session, however, was devoted to reading and the subjects of geography and history. There is every indication that a great measure of uniformity can be attained after the deliberations of the next conference in Fredericton.

The three superintendents attended the monthly meeting of the Halifax Men Teachers Club to hear Prof. Bennett's talk on English in the high school grades. (The Halifax Herald carries a cut of the educationists who took part in the above mentioned conference, among whom is Supt. H. H. Shaw, P. E. Island's representative.)

Large Crowd See Thrilling Hockey Game

ST. JOHN, Feb. 5. — More than 3,500 persons, the largest crowd to ever witness a hockey game in this city, watched the Saint John Fusiliers break the winning streak of the Fredericton puck chasers here, last night, with a 5 to 2 victory.

The result of the game still leaves the Fredericton team on top in the second section of the Southern League. Play was fairly even throughout. Not a dull moment marred the sixty minutes of play, neither team starting up in the terrific pace that started from the first whistle. Many thrilling plays kept the fans on edge and penalties were dished out in generous amounts.

England's Strangest Murder Mysteries

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 5. — The killing of two Nova Scotians in Metropolitan Boston within the past two years have provided the police with two of the darkest and most baffling murder mysteries in the history of New England. The murders occurred within a few miles of each other. A whole series of strange parallels have been disclosed. One of the most recent was the killing of Miss Maybell Matheson, 19-year old girl from Whyocoomagh, Inverness County, on January 21. She was found in a vacant lot which she apparently crossed while on her way home from work. Her skull had been fractured by blows, apparently from a rigid iron weapon, possibly a threaded bolt. She had not been robbed nor had any criminal assault been committed, aside from the blows from the weapon. She had come from Nova Scotia a little more than a year ago, her reputation was excellent, and there was no clew to the motive. Her killing recalls another mystery, even more puzzling in some respects, and curiously similar in some details. That was the murder of Alexander "Sandy" Buchanan of Sugar Loaf, Victoria County, who was found dead under startling circumstances in Belmont, Mass., April 4, 1925. Miss Matheson and Buchanan came from towns 70 miles apart but in adjacent counties. Both were killed in the early evening, it is believed, at spots near which people often passed and repassed. Both places, however, were near hospitals where some of the patients suffered from mental troubles. The motive in the Buchanan murder never was established, nor did early investigation reveal a motive for the killing of Miss Matheson. Buchanan, a carpenter, had been a member of the 315th and later the 186th Canadian regiment in the World War. On the afternoon of April 4, 1925, he was found in an abandoned cell near the McLean Hospital for the insane in the Waverley district. A gas mask was bound tightly on his head, over his face, and twine was bound around his head and ears. There was a cloth gag in his mouth. The interior of the gas mask was saturated with chloroform. The body was doubled up with the hands tied together behind the right knee. A few letters written in Italian were found in his pockets, as were a girl's photograph and a list of girls' names. The packets of his clothing were turned inside out and a watch was missing. A small amount of money was scattered nearby. The police considered the robbery only a blind, however, to conceal the real motive. An attack upon him by Italians, in his carpenter shop was recalled. A former fiancée was interviewed but knew of no enemies. One after another a mystery was run down without result. A chloroform bottle found on the property was traced to Pittsfield, Me., where the trail ended. Army and Navy goods stores were canvassed but the place the mask was bought never was found. The Belmont selection offered a $500 reward for information leading to the solution of the mystery. Four men were arrested, found to be innocent, and released. The only points ever established were that Buchanan visited his sister, a nurse at the hospital on the evening before his body was found and left at 6.50 p. m. to visit

THREE ACCIDENTS

Three accidents and one flight occurred in the heat of the play. Carl Fraser, acting captain of the Fusiliers, in place of Brad Gilbert, who was out of the city, suffered a nasty cut in his head in a collision with Clark. He was unconscious for some time and lost a lot of blood before being taken to the hospital. Clark and Keene were the other casualties, both falling victims to terrific body checks by Cleveland. They were able to finish the game. The exhibition of fistfights occurred before they were parted a general melee took place. They were both sent to the pen, and on their arrival there, shook hands like the good sports they are.

the home of a cousin. Although his cousin's home was only 20 minutes walk distant, he never appeared. Various theories were advanced, including one of revenge by an unbalanced war veteran for some war-time grievance, but no proof ever was advanced to support any of the theories. (Canadian Press.) SAINT JOHN, N. B. Feb. 5. — The steamer Sunnewarkoo, from Port Talbot, which was ashore near Grand Manan yesterday and later refloated, arrived in port early last evening reporting the loss of four men. In March, 1908. In her case at first, as in the Matheson case, a maniac was supposed to be the slayer. Two men were sentenced later, however, for the killing.
