MUST RESIGN FROM UNION OF BROTHERS

PRETORIA, South Africa, Feb. 1 (CP)—Members of the "Broderbund" (Union of Brothers), South African secret society banned Dec. 15 by the Union Government, must resign from the organization formally and in writing, the prime minister's office has announced.

Under the Dec. 15 proclamation, civil servants and teachers were given 14 days to resign from the Broderbund and the statement issued any who failed to do so might be prosecuted.

Prime Minister Smuts said recently the estimated 2,500 members of the Broderbund were largely teachers and civil servants and that membership seemed limited to influential persons or those in key positions. Objects as well as the membership of the organization were kept strictly secret.

The organization has denied that it ever favored the national socialist system for South Africa, or had any connection with the Nazi rulers.

Address and Presentation

On Friday evening, January 12th, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. MacIsaac and family, when all had assembled, Mr. George Kitson was appointed chairman and in a jolly manner expressed the object of the gathering, he then called on Mrs. MacIsaac to read a list of addresses and the Misses and Mrs. N. H. Tremere presented them with a beautiful lounge chair. All joined in singing "For Thy Jolly Good Will" and in a jolly manner expressed the object of the gathering, he then called on Mrs. MacIsaac to read a list of addresses and the Misses and Mrs. N. H. Tremere presented them with a beautiful lounge chair.

Lunch was served by the ladies. At a late hour all departed to their respective homes feeling they had spent a pleasant evening.

Following is the address:
 Mr. and Mrs. Hedley MacPherson and Family

Dear Friends:
 It is indeed gratifying to us to be able to gather here tonight and extend to you a warm greeting and welcome to the settlement of Hantsport.

Although you have been in our midst for some time, we have not been favored with the opportunity of meeting you all socially, therefore on behalf of his wife and family we can feel assured that you among us who knew you all for many years have nothing but the highest praise for your good neighborliness and respect you to the utmost, as upright and as honorable citizens, we credit to the community in which you might choose to live.

We also feel that we have covered most valuable family flight," he said in an address, "I advise you to use an Irishman, still in the air."

"We don't know whether we are going to pull the airplane in the future or push it, but either way it will fly first or last and either way it will be all right."

COMFORT THE AIM OF BRITISH PUBS

(By The Canadian Press)
 LONDON, Feb. 1—Behavior of the average citizen while drinking at a dry martini is under investigation by Thomas P. Bennett who has the strange job of wandering from pub to pub and getting paid for it.

Do Britons prefer to drink standing or sitting down? Mr. Bennett, architect responsible for the design of a large number of Britain's modern public houses, wants to know. He is trying to solve it by watching men and women at "the local" in various parts of the country.

Upon the results of research will depend the shape of things to come in the way of pubs to replace those destroyed by bombing.

The general tendency, he finds, is to stand up in pubs which are in business areas and sit down in those in residential areas.

If Mr. Bennett finds the majority of customers want to stand, the public house of the future will be planned around long bars. If they prefer to sit, a different design with more table room must be adopted.

The gloominess of Britain's traditional murky but comfortable pubs, already fast disappearing because of the war, will be wiped out entirely under the Bennett plan.

He believes in lighting up the bar—and the barmaid.

"The back of the bar," he said, "will be pleasant. Lighting in the bar will be brighter than in the room itself, where there will be relatively low-toned light."

The new public houses must be designed to give maximum comfort and social amenities; and, in general, the tendency will be away from the American bar and back to the old English type of inn—but much more comfortable.

FORECASTS NEW ERA IN FLYING

LONDON, Feb. 1 (CP)—Lord Brabazon, pioneer aviator and former minister of aircraft production, who headed a British committee on civil aviation design, has advised aircraft model-makers and experimenters to study the boomery.

Opening a national exhibition of model aircraft, he said the weapon of the Australian aborigine consists of the principles of the auto-which you might choose to live.

We also feel that we have covered most valuable family flight," he said in an address, "I advise you to use an Irishman, still in the air."

"We don't know whether we are going to pull the airplane in the future or push it, but either way it will fly first or last and either way it will be all right."

"WASHING" BRINGS TRAWLER TO PORT

LONDON, Feb. 1 (CP)—Looking like an old tramp steamer with the crew's washing hung out, the trawler H.M.S. Dundee left her way 500 miles across the Atlantic recently under makeshift sails.

When the engines broke down 500 miles from this side of the Atlantic Lt.-Comdr. John S. Burgess of Lancashire, commanding the crew "make all plain sail."

The result was startling—survival. Bunkets, bins and even chairs were hurriedly made into sails. They worked, and at a slow two knots the ship continued her voyage safely.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Bassett, who died on February 3, 1944.

His smiling way and pleasant face are a pleasure to recall each and died beloved by all. Some day we hope to meet him again in that better land where we shall meet him never to part again.

Sadly Missed by His Wife and Family.
