Some fox ranchers are making the mistake of feeding flour in the form of bread, owing to the fact that wheat flour is comparatively cheap at the present time. This is sure to produce indigestion, sour stomach and flatulence, resulting in poor condition and poor pelts.

The nature of a fox is to eat meat. R-M Fox Foods contain a high percentage of high grade meat—beef and pork cracking forming the base. R-M Foods also contain pure cod liver oil. They are rich in the vitamins of growth and health.

The DOOM TRAIL by ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH

AUTHOR OF PORTO BELLO GOLD ETC. COPYRIGHT BY BRENTANO W.N.U. SERVICE

"Twas ridiculous, no doubt, but I was easier in my heart for assurance that Marjory had not known her appeal was used as a lure. It enabled me to maintain a stoicism of demeanor I did not feel.

"Well, 'twas kind of you to make such haste," he went on, sneering down at me. "You will be in time for the wedding, after all. Oh, never fear, you shall be permitted to live that long. We have plenty of meat in this bag to supply diversion for our savages in the meantime."

He switched suddenly into the Seneca vernacular. "Are you all here, Iroquois dogs?" he demanded curly.

"All are here, French mongrel," returned Ta-wan-ne-ars pleasantly. De Veulle kicked him.

"Keep that for the torture stake," he advised. "We have five corpses and fourteen warriors and yourself. That is all?"

"All," reiterated Ta-wan-ne-ars. De Veulle paced along the line, cross-questioning each prisoner to an accompaniment of kicks and threats. All told the same story. De Veulle seemed satisfied. He returned to my side, and summoned a host of masked figures from the surrounding shadows. They jerked us to our feet, stamped out the fire and escorted us over the trampled, bloody snow where we had fought through the gloomy aisles of the Hall Weed and into the irregular streets of La Vierge du Bois. Two men stood by the gate of the stockade to greet us. One was Murray, the other was Baptiste Meurier.

The unsavory face of the courier de bois grinned appreciation of my astonishment.

"Peste, monsieur!" he exclaimed. "It seems you are a slow traveler. I feared I might be behind you, but I arrived twenty-four hours in advance. I have to thank you for the beaver pelts. They were a sufficient bribe for my immediate release."

"That will do, Baptiste," interjected Murray. "Heard you ever, Ta-wan-ne-ars, of scouts who wore bears' pads for moccasins?"

For the first and only time during our acquaintance Ta-wan-ne-ars was surprised into a look of chagrin.

"We thought it was too late for bears to be out," he admitted. Murray chuckled with amusement. "Quite so, quite so! And so you visit us once more, Monsieur Ormerod. I confess 'tis an unexpected pleasure which we shall strive to make the most of."

"Sir," I said earnestly, "it makes little difference to me what is my fate, but I conjure you by whatever pretensions of gentility you possess to give over your plan of selling your daughter."

"The words you choose for your appeal do not commend it to me," he returned. "Nor do I perceive what business of yours it may be to question my daughter's marriage."

Now, what put it into my head I know not, unless it was the fact that in her letter to me Marjory had spoken of him as "Mr. Murray"; but I leaped to the instant conclusion that she was not his daughter.

Sure, no man could have disposed of his own daughter so cold-bloodedly! "She is not your daughter in the first place," I retorted boldly. "And in the second place, she has expressed to me her abhorrence of her marriage as you know."

"Zooks," he remarked mildly after an interval of silence, "is strong language that you use. You are a headstrong young man, Master Ormerod. Can it be that you have some personal interest in the matter?"

Again some instinct prompted me. "I have," I asserted. "Your daughter prefers me to the man you would force upon her. And as a suitor, according to your estimates of the world's opinion, I am far more eligible than this Frenchman."

"You are scarcely wise to say so to his face, and I beg leave to differ with you. I find the Chevalier de Veulle a very eligible young man, of rank in the world of achievement, of distinct promise for the future."

"If you can call a man eligible who was not even eligible for continued residence at the most profligate court in Europe, I agree with you."

"Tut, tut," remonstrated Murray. "Your words are not those of a gentleman."

"I have," I asserted. "Your daughter prefers me to the man you would force upon her. And as a suitor, according to your estimates of the world's opinion, I am far more eligible than this Frenchman."

PUTNAM'S

POWNAI NOTES

Friday night, April 17th, the house owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Theos. MacPhee was completely destroyed by fire. The fire was discovered by Mr. MacPhee about eleven o'clock and was then beyond control. Fortunately the night was calm, had it been the night previous Pownal Village would today have to be imagined. There was some insurance. A movement is on foot to help those so suddenly deprived of a home and who have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

Sunday morning, April 19th, was Missionary Sunday in the United Sunday School. The following worship service was conducted by Miss Reta Gay under the supervision of Mrs. (Rev.) H. E. Campbell, Missionary Superintendent: Call to worship Psalm 95, 1-6, read by Mrs. Gay. Response sung by Sunday School. The Lord is in His holy temple let all the faith keep silence before His hymn. Following the Glean. Prayer, Mrs. Campbell: Scripture readings, A stranger who remember to say thank you, Miss Sarah Wood; The Good Samaritan, Robert Brown; Offering. At this point Mrs. Arthur Moore told a very interesting story which was much enjoyed by all. Hymn 72 concluded the worship service followed by the regular classes of the school which number six. We had a splendid attendance and a good collection on Sunday which is donated to missions. At the evening service at 7 p. m. Rev. H. E. Campbell spoke from the words "Behold the man." The music was led by a male choir of fifteen voices. Mrs. Elizabeth Wood presided at the organ in her usual capable manner.

and Mrs. Colin Bruce. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jenkins, Hazelbrook. The Misses Florence MacPherson and Francis Wood, Mt. Mellick, were visitors on Sunday at the home of Mrs. Nathaniel MacKinnon, Alexandra, visited her father W. E. Miss Ruth Matheson, teacher at Bunbury, was a week end visitor at her sister's.

Custom Built, Richness at Volume Prices

The new Willys-Knight is an exceptionally powerful car, very fast, remarkably active. A car whose beauty is conspicuous, even among the most beautifully designed cars. . . whose appointments and fittings and trimmings rank in richness, in luxury, in comfort, with that which the world's finest cars afford.

This distinctive car gives you the same type of power-plant used in the leading cars of Europe—the Belgian Minerva, the French Panhard and Voisin, the British Daimler-Knight—cars owned and driven by the King of England, the Prince of Wales, the Kings of Belgium and Spain and half the notables of Continental Europe.

The new 58 1/2 inch tread gives plenty of room for three full-sized men on the wider rear seat. Plenty of room for six-footers to stretch out their legs. The front seat is adjustable, and the back of the seat may be inclined at the angle that suits you best. At the center of steering wheel, Finger-Tip Control—one button which operates starter, lights and horn. Extra safety, and less pedal pressure, with new duo-servo internal expanding four-wheel brakes. Four hydraulic shock eliminators and longer, more flexible springs. Top speed of 80 miles an hour; second gear speed as high as 50.

And due to increased production and decreased cost of manufacture, you enjoy impressive savings—as much as $800 compared to last year's similar types.
