THE LAW OF LOVE.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Rom. 13: 9.

POINTED SUGGESTIONS

By Rev. D. W. Snider.

"But I say unto you," Keep the thought keen upon these words, which are repeated six times over in Matthew 5. Who is the speaker with words of so great assurance upon his lips? Does He make use of empty or valueless words? Does He employ the language of meaningless inflation or characterless bombast? Read Matthew 7: 24-26.

The interpretation of the teaching of today's lesson must be made without evasion, or trimming, or subterfuge, or casuisity, in the full light of the character of Jesus Christ and of His revelation of the Father and of the fulness of his right to frame an ithical standard or utter a law of holiness. "I say unto you."

The late Bishop Fitzgerald, of the M. E. Church, South, used to greet his audience with a twinkling simplicity and quaintness, saying: "I love everybody, I do," and, after a pause, adding, "but I love some folks more than others." In that expression the bishop recognized both his Christian obligation and privilege and also his limitation and difficulty. The strength, however, of his Christain attainments lay in the amount of truth there was in his statement, "I love everybody." The rest told of congenialities. "If ye love them that love you, what thank have ye?"

Jesus does not foreshadow for his follower freedon. from the hater, or smiter, or extortioner, or malicious or vile-mouthed, but He definitely points out a method of victory over their ways whereby His follower is saved from sins, Sam Jones made a discovery after he fought with a man —hate with hate and fist with fist— that when Jesus said, "Love your enemies," the Lord was thinking more of him than He was of the other fellow. Hate within the soul is the real enemy.

The faithful performance of the Golden Rule will solve all ethical difficulties—social, industrial, national. And the form in which it comes to us from. Jesus, rather than the negative form in which it comes from Confucius, carries the power and aggressiveness of love. Therein it is golden and rendered free from baser metal.

The conduct of the Christian is not based upon the expectation of reward only as his faith in God assures him of a reward whose character cannot be fareseen. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," is a pagan maxim.

The ideal life of the Christian is the real life of God. For example: "God is love." The attribute of love is real with God. It is ideal with the Christian. But even as "he shoots
