CHILDREN ARE LIKE ADULTS WHEN IT COMES TO CRITICISM Don't Criticize Or Chastise Them Before Others, For It Only Arouses Greater Resentment In Them

The average mother finds fault with her child and corrects it from 80 to 40 times a day, according to the director of the child's welfare research division of one of our famous universities. But when the investigators reviewed the process and tried finding fault and criticizing the mothers, it was found that they couldn't take it even twice a day. There is food for thought in this, and it makes one wonder if the whole problem of rearing children doesn't consist in parents treating them as they would like to be treated themselves. If Father raises hares for instance, if any one touches his pipe or moves his paper, why should he think that Junior should smile pleasantly and make no protest when his cherished choo-choo train is put away where he can't find it? If Mother sulks through a whole evening when Father asks her at dinner if the biscuits were intended for ammunition or something edible, why should she think that Mamie enjoys having everything she does and doesn't do fond fault with? Of course, parents say that children are nothing but little savages who have to be taught the ways of civilization and goaded into walking the straight-and-narrow path, and that they should be grateful to their dear, kind fathers who don't let them go to the 40 times a day, or more. Undoubtedly this is true and, judging by the unnumbered children whom we so frequently encounter, the consensus is that most parents don't say "sorry" often enough. They should say it 400 times a day instead of 40.

But, all the same, granting that children do need to have their faults corrected in public and have attention called to our lapses in manners and grammar and pronunciation, we expect children to take it, and like it. We pretend to be oblivious to the blunders of grown-ups, but we demand to know of Johnny why he doesn't take his hat off and have attention called to our lapses in manners and grammar and pronunciation, we expect children to take it, and like it. We pretend to be oblivious to the blunders of grown-ups, but we demand to know of Johnny why he doesn't take his hat off and have attention called to our lapses in manners and grammar and pronunciation, we expect children to take it, and like it. One of the choicest tortures of the Inquisition was to starve unbelted to death in a chamber over a kitchen in which the scents of delicious food ascended to the shudder. We shudder at the very thought of such inhumanity. But don't give a pretty good imitation of it when we make our children gorge themselves on milk and spinach, while we pester them with hints too well, of spicy soups and mouth-watering meats and desserts? How would we like that? And how much would it cost us to be told that plain food and leafy vegetables are better for our stomachs than highly seasoned foods? None of us has a sufficient sense of humor to enjoy a joke upon ourselves. The surest and quickest way to make an enemy is to hold a man or woman up to ridicule, for we may forgive a slander but never being laughed at. But nobody thinks of sparing children. We tell the ludicrous things they did or said right before their faces. Half of the tales that mother and father tell that set the dinner table in a roar are about little Johnny or Mamie. But known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Put the Pinex into a 16-ounce bottle, and add your syrup. This you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

THE FAITHFUL TERRIER

The daughter of a sergeant serving in the Transvaal was playing on the lawn of her home when she saw a snake. Thinking it was a toy, she toddled towards it with open arms, when a fox-terrier, who was keeping guard over her, dashed forward and, before she could reach the snake, attacked and killed it.

THE COOK'S CORNER

THREE-RING SALAD

3 medium-sized green peppers. 1-2 pound cottage cheese. Cream to moisten. 1-2 teaspoon salt. 2 stalks celery, chopped. Lettuce cups. Salad dressing. Method: You will have to choose the peppers you use for this carefully, as they should be well-shaped. Wash the peppers and cut off the tops (preserving the part cut off to be used in the filling). Remove the seeds and wash inside with cold water.

Lovely Blooming Plants Easily Grown Indoors

Pot Flowering Maple Now

A brave array of flowering plants to shrut out wintry gloom—this trailing wax plant and the lovely abutilon, sometimes called flowering maple.

Put the abutilon now and all winter you can enjoy its pretty maple-like leaves, its large bell-shaped flowers in yellow, salmon, scarlet or crimson. Or, this season of the year, you can easily start a plant from cuttings. All the abutilon asks is a sunny window, rich sandy soil and an occasional pinching back to induce side growth. The wax plant also nourishes in sun, will long delight you with its graceful foliage, its white and pink flowers. To start new plants, just stem cuttings bearing two leaves each in sharp sand, keep in the sun and water well. And for less sunny windows, even for sunless spots there are as lovely flowering or foliage plants you can easily raise. The African violet asks little sun, the umbrella palm thrives in an out-of-the-way corner. Keep it in a jardiniere with water in the bottom. Make your home a bower of beauty this winter. Our 32-page booklet has directions for many easy-to-raise flowering and foliage plants, including bulbs, ferns, vines. Tells how to grow plants in water.

6 medium-sized green peppers. 1-2 cups shredded lettuce. Salt and pepper. 1-2 cup chopped celery. 1 3/4-ounce can shrimps. 1-4 cup salad dressing. Lettuce cups. Method: Wash the peppers, cut off the tops (preserving these to be chopped and used in the salad stuffing), and remove the seeds. Mix together the shredded lettuce, celery, and chopped green pepper, and season with salt and pepper. Clean the black membrane from the shrimps and break into small pieces. Add to the salad dressing and mix together well. Fill the prepared green peppers with the salad mixture and serve each of the stuffed peppers in a lettuce cup with a garnish of additional salad dressing and tomato wedges or radishes.

Peppers that are stuffed with a meat mixture then baked make a nice supper or luncheon dish. Here is a recipe for baked stuffed peppers.

A CHILD BORN ON THIS DAY: Affable, courteous, fond of home life and family. Will have keen perceptive powers and through its unusual cleverness, could become a success in a most constructive profession or trade. Its love for pleasure will have to be intelligently directed. Do not neglect its spiritual training.

Domestic Crisis The farmer took his small son to market. A prospective buyer was minutely examining some cattle, and Johnny inquired interestedly— "Why's that man pinching those bullocks, Dad?" "He's thinking of buying them, son, and he's making sure they're good, sound meat," replied his father. The following day the farmer was busy in his yard when Johnny came tearing towards him, yelling at the top of his voice: "Dad, Dad, come quickly! The postman's going to buy cook!"

CALLS MUSLIMS TO HELP CAUSE PESHAWAR, India. —(CP)—"If the Italian march towards Alexandria means anything, it is a call to the Muslims of the world to resume the crusades after seven centuries," said the Mullah Sahib of Bhurban in a four-hour sermon preached to a huge congregation at Bach in the heart of the Tirah.

The Mullah Sahib, widely respected in the Tirah district which is independent tribal territory on the north west frontier, sees what Germany and Italy were enemies of Islam and he ordered the Afridi to do what they could to help the government.

Maritime Girl Guides Train As Firefighters

Halifax Girl Guides have found another novel way to aid, should enemy bombers shower their city with incendiary bombs or a disaster like the 1917 explosion strike again. A group of the city's new feminine fire-fighters is pictured here. They've been schooled under Deputy Chief J. E. Keefe of Halifax, in all the duties of "smoke eating," which a woman could perform, including actual fighting, rescue work, first aid and fire prevention. Guides from four companies have already received the training and they in turn plan to aid in instructing sisters of their movement.
