Destiny Errol Flynn, who has become famous for his action-packed roles, is now cast in a part that is more fraught with adventure and excitement than any he has played before. "Desperate Journey," which plays at the Prince Edward Theatre, To-day and Thursday... in it Flynn plays the role of a flight lieutenant in the R.A.F. Other famous players in the cast, members of the British Hudson Squadron, are Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Raymond Massey. It is as brave, devil-may-care and as hardy a crew as was ever set out to bomb Germany in order to bomb their objective more accurately. Flynn commands them to fly lower despite the fact that the sector is known to have exceptionally heavy anti-aircraft protection. They start their return flight, after successfully bombing their objective, when they are brought down by a particularly sharp burst of anti-aircraft fire. The five prisoners of war are brought before a Nazi intelligence officer, played by Raymond Massey. He fires many questions at them, but one he neglected to ask was just how powerful Reagan's right hand is. He realizes his mistake after he has regained consciousness and his five prisoners have escaped. An intensive search for them gets underway. Led by Flynn and

Milton Campbell Honored By Staff Of Tariff Board

(Ottawa Citizen.)

Completing a ten-year term as vice-chairman of the Tariff Board and as assistant chief commissioner of the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission, Milton N. Campbell was honored by the chairman and members of the staff at a reception in the Mines Building.

Mr. Campbell was appointed in Feb. 1933, when the board was constituted with the late Hon. George H. Sedgewick as chairman and Major C. P. Hebert as member.

In presenting Mr. Campbell with a silver dish, suitably engraved, from the staff, H. B. McKinnon, the chairman of the Tariff Board, referred to the faithful and efficient service rendered through the years by Mr. Campbell and to the harmonious and pleasant relations that had always existed between the members of the board, and the staff. Mr. McKinnon pointed out that owing to the fact that Major Hebert is now on leave of absence overseas, and his own time is largely devoted to his duties as president of the Commodities Prices Stabilization Corporation, Mr. Campbell in most phases of the work had carried on singlehanded during the last year or two.

Mr. Campbell thanked the staff for their kindness and spoke of the pleasant relations that had always existed between staff and members of the board. He referred to the fine contribution the staff was making to the war effort in the work of the oils and fats administrator, Mrs. Phyllis G. Turner, who is chief research economist of the Tariff Board.

On behalf of the staff, the secretary, James E. MacGregor, presented Mrs. Campbell with a bouquet of flowers.

Mr. Campbell was born in Prince Edward Island, but spent many years in Saskatchewan, where he was member of Parliament for MacKenzie.

REAGAN, FED ON MEAGER RATIONS, THE five make slow nightly progress across Germany toward Holland and the coast. They manage to secure Nazi uniforms from some weary sentries who patrol lonely bridge-heads and in this manner gamble the chances of being set as spies against the chance of eventually escaping with vital military information which they secured from Massey's office.

Through sheer luck, they board a luxurious but empty private car attached to a hospital train that is bound for Berlin. As the train nears its destination they are discovered by a guard who, mistaking them for Nazi soldiers with no business in the car, forces them out.

In Berlin, the story becomes even more exciting as the five continue to outsmart the Gestapo and set fire to a large plant that manufactures incendiary bombs. They meet Kaeche the Brahms, played by Nancy Coleman, a girl who, living inside Germany does her best to help the Allied cause and sabotage the Nazis. It is through her that they are able to reach the Holland border and make their eventual escape to England.

"and tell Jane not to worry"

"The nurses and doctors were grand," writes a Canadian gunner, "but it was pretty awful lying sick there, so far from home. A cheerful woman came up to my bed and called me by name. She said she was a Canadian Red Cross Hospital Visitor. She wanted to make sure we were all comfortable and had all the things we wanted."

To many a sick Canadian soldier, the Red Cross Visitor is a friend indeed. A message to his wife or mother... extra fruit and smokes... a home-town newspaper... friendly human talk and sympathy... these are the priceless gifts she brings. Thousands of these understanding Red Cross women visit Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen in British and Canadian hospitals regularly.

Just one of the many Canadian Red Cross services, which include food parcels for prisoners of war, clothing and food and medical supplies for fighters and civilian war victims, blood serum for the wounded, personal services for Canadian warriors wherever they go.

As the war grows grimmer, the work widens. YOUR dollars are needed now as never before for this great humanitarian task.
