IN MEMORIAM

MR. JAMES LEROY CONNICK

On Nov. 9th, 1936, there passed from life to Eternity, the soul of a splendid young man—James Leroy Connick aged 30 years. Born at Kensington, September 22nd, 1906, he was the son of James E. Connick who predeceased him 26 years ago. The early years of his life were spent at Fortune Cove, Lot 5, at the home of his kind step-father, Mr. John R. Hogan, a home for which he cherished many happy memories until his death. When quite a young man he attended the Molar Barber College at Halifax and for several years worked at his trade in the village at Kintora. In 1928 he went to Boston where he entered the Vaughan Training School on Washington Street. He afterwards conducted an up-to-date barber shop, in business for himself on Dearborn Street, Roxbury. In the summer of 1930 he married Mary Alma McQuinn who with a little son, James Ramon, survived. During the fall of 1930, his health failing, he entered the Bancroft Sanatorium for treatment and rest. During the five long years he spent there he underwent many painful treatments, always facing and enduring his suffering in hope he would be restored to health to return to his young wife and child. But as months passed into years with hopes deferred, he took up his cross and waited through lonely nights and days for God to release his soul from his emaciated and pain-racked body. On Nov. 11th his remains left Boston accompanied by his sorrowing wife and devoted mother, Mrs. J. R. Hogan. His funeral took place from the home of Mr. James Pendergast, Kensington, Nov. 14th to St. Mary's Church, Indian River, where a Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Eugene Murray, cousin of the deceased. Rev. R. Macdonald was in the sanctuary. The remains (at his own request) were laid to rest in the family plot in the adjoining cemetery. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. E. Murray assisted by Rev. R. Macdonald and members of St. Mary's Choir. Besides his wife and little son, there are left to mourn his mother and three sisters: Mabel, Mrs. W. E. Foley, Wakefield, Mass.; Helen, Mrs. John Tierney, Boston; and James W. Tierney, Park Drive, Boston. The pallbearers were Messrs. James Saunders, George Higgins, Robert Goodwin, Joseph Nantes, Percy McCarville, Russell Nantes. May his soul rest in peace.

On Monday evening, Dec. 14th, the Women's Institute of Lyndale assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McPherson, Ugg, to bid welcome to their son Wolcott and his bride. After the arrival of about forty guests the president, Mrs. D. M. McKenzie called on M. E. McDonald, who on behalf of the institute read an appropriate address of welcome. At this convenient time Mrs. D. M. MacKenzie presented Mr. and Mrs. MacPherson with a purse of money. The bride and groom fittingly replied in a few well chosen words. After partaking of a bountiful chicken supper the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner. Following is the address: To Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott A. McPherson. Dear friends:—We, the members of Lyndale Women's Institute take the pleasure of assembling here this evening with an ardent desire of expressing to you our heartfelt felicitations on the occasion of your marriage. We also take this opportune time to welcome you, Mrs. McPherson, to our midst and we look forward to the near future when we hope to have the pleasure of knowing you more intimately. To you, Mr. McPherson, we have known you as the teacher of our school during the past two years, and we greatly appreciated your faithful work in our school and your willingness to help at all our social gatherings. As a slight token of our appreciation we ask you both to accept from us this accompanying gift not for its actual worth but as a kind remembrance from friends of Lyndale, and you may rest assured of our continued respect and esteem. We sign ourselves the members of Lyndale Women's Institute.

CHRISTMAS SONG

Above the weary waiting world, A leap in chill despair, There breaks a sound of jovous bells Upon the frosted air. And o'er the humblest roof-tree, lo! A star is dancing on the snow. What makes the yellow star to dance Upon the brink of night? What makes the morning dawn to glow So magically bright.— And all the earth to be renewed With infinite beatitude? The singing bells, the throbbing star, The sunbeams on the snow, And the awakening heart that leaps New ecstacy to know.— They are all dancing in the morn Because a little child is born. —BLISS CARMAN.

THE SHOPPERS

Along the crowded street they come and go Under the holly boughs and cedar wreaths: Surely some mighty truth has made it so. And wrought this season when the tired world breathes A richer air, and human hearts are moved Beyond the joys and griefs of every day To old familiar things, the long beloved And precious things that living thrusters away. No selfish urge has set the hurry-fee Of Christmas shopper, where the thousands tread; There is an errand tremulous and sweet, Stirred by the song of angels overhead; And laden arms bear gifts that strangely blur To spice the gold and frankincense and myrrh. —JINNIE HITE MOODY, In The New York Times.
