I. C. R. in a Halifax exchange office of former Island type now living in the vicinity of Boston, who "if he has any kind of good luck will celebrate his 100th birthday in 1934. I refer to Walter C. Grant, who was foreman of the Examiner newspaper office at the time Hon. Edward Whelan was editor and proprietor, a long time ago. This information comes to me from another old Island type, Richard Walsh, now living in St. John and who has seen his 80th birthday, who left his Island home many years ago and has worked at the "case" in St. John, Montreal, Boston and Ottawa and his interesting letter was surely very welcome. Recalling old time principles as mentioned James Langtry, William Walsh, Patrick Whelan, M. R. Dochford, James Kelly, Thomas Burke, Thomas Crowe, William McDonald, Ben. McKel, Wm. McQuaid, Patrick McQuaid, John Monaghan, John O'Neill, Harry Harris, Thomas Crowe, and others. I remember some of those mentioned such as the McQuaid boys, James Kelly, when the boys called "Shiners" James McQuaid, was working in the office of the Boston Globe when I saw him last. Ben. Keeping came from Newfoundland and went to the States later. We all knew Thomas Burke. His wife ran a dancing academy on Great George Street. I presume, she was not sure about it, the Mr. R. Dochford was a same gentleman who printed Rotochford's Daily. He had a son named Gus, also a printer. Mr. Walsh tells me he started his newspaper in the Island Argus in November, 1899. He had a son named Gus, also a printer. Mr. Walsh tells me he started his newspaper in the Island Argus in November, 1900. He had a son named Gus, also a printer. IN MEMORIAM

JONATHAN WEST
On Monday, Feb. 19th, at 1:30 p. m., the immortal spirit of Jonathan West took its flight from its earthly tabernacle to be forever with our Lord. For ten days he had been confined to bed at his home, 76 School St., City, with a severe cold which on Sunday developed into pneumonia. Everything that love and medical skill could do to combat the disease was done, but in vain.

The late Mr. West was born at York, P. E. I., 67 years ago, and grew up on his father's farm there. He married Miss Annie Stewart. To them were born four children, Harriet, Helen and Gilbert, living now in Winnipeg, and Adele, a nurse, at home. While yet a young man he moved his family to Western Canada and carried on with his brother George a large mercantile business at Insaft, Alberta. After he returned to this province and bought a farm on Union Road. There his beloved wife died and from a young lady he married Mrs. Charlotte MacMillan (nee Horne) with whom he lived a very happy life and whom he now dearest to mourn the loss of a most devoted husband.

Sixteen or seventeen years ago he sold his farm and moved to Charlottetown, where he accepted a position with Carter & Company, Ltd., becoming a member of the firm. He continued this work until his last illness.

Mr. West was a man of absolute integrity of character and most equitable disposition. He had a keen mind and a tender and loyal heart. His devotion to duty in home, community and church commanded the respect of all who knew him. His sense of honor was very high and his abhorrence of all hypocrisy and injustice would readily find expression in concise and appropriate speech. He was a thoroughly competent Christian. No persecution, no criticism, no suggestion of gain could induce him to do or say anything contrary to the Christian standard. In Trinity United Church he was a respected and beloved member, performing the duties and maintaining the dignity of his office with a great sense of responsibility. His last years were spent in a church where in Sunday School or in any position which he was appointed to occupy. The esteem in which his family held him as a true Christian was expressed in the inscription on the fly-leaf of a beautiful Bible that Harriet, his oldest daughter gave him as a Christmas present two months ago. It reads: "To my Dear Father, who never neglected to read the Bible and offer prayer with his little family; no matter how busy the day began or how late it ended."

Besides his immediate family he leaves to mourn two brothers and two sisters, W. C. West, merchant, 1000 St. John's St., Charlottetown; business in Insaft, Alberta; Mrs. Richard Inche and Mrs. Annie Saunders.

The bereaved family extends to the sorrow-stricken family, sincere sympathy.

streets of Brussels as they moved to their places along the three-mile route from Laeken to the Palace.

Blue-clad police with white helmets and brown-helmeted soldiers in khaki also formed a double line enclosing the route. Nearly all the War Veterans were in civilian clothes. They carried various-colored standards. Thousands of people from the countryside flocked to the city.

Formal services at the Palace until Thursday, when it will be taken to the St. Gudule Cathedral for formal services.

The manifest grief of the population of Belgium was but the reflection of that which bowed the head of the widowed Queen Elizabeth.

Over and over again the Queen uttered the phrase "All is finished" in a voice so low as to be almost inaudible, persons close to the Royal household said. They said she was overcome with sorrow and unable to control her feelings. She was barely able to reply to the Prime Minister when he sought to offer his sympathy.

HEART-RENDING SCENE

When Crown Prince Leopold arrived from Switzerland, yesterday with Princess Astrid, the expression on the faces of those who saw them together best described the heart-rending scene. Mother and son knelt together before the bier. Overcome with grief, both gave way to long-restrained feelings. Princess Astrid was urged to shorten her trying visit to the death chamber because of her health. She and the Crown Prince are expecting a third child.

"It is the King who has only known" this was the regret expressed by Belgians together with their profound grief at the King's death. It became known that a Brussels resident had discovered many rocks loosened by recent frost in the treacherous rocks. King Marthe de Danne where the King met his death.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

(C.F. by Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—(C.F.)—Sharp advances in the group of specialties that rose late last week led the Montreal Stock Exchange to ground today. A late reaction reduced a number of early gains and substituted losses in many cases. Nickel exports last month showed a gain of 10 percent over the same month in 1933.

Dow Jones Glass rising 5 points to another new high of 95, Montreal Coal 3-4 at 19-1-8, B.C. Power 2-4 at 1-4 and Brock Silk 1-3 at 19-1-4 while Great Canadian Consolidated Smelters, Silver Williams and a number of other shares advanced. World Mourns Loss Of King Of The Belgians

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Great Britain today mourned Albert, King of the Belgians, as if he were one of her own, so close had been his relations with the people of this country during the Great War and since.

King George and Queen Mary both were mourning in public this afternoon. Court mourning was announced, and flags were flown at half staff throughout London.

Their Majesties, shocked, immediately sent messages of condolence to the Royal Family of Belgium.

While the Duke of Brabant, who will soon be King of the Belgians, is still a minor, the King is the Throne, the King sent him the following message:

"It is with the most profound sorrow that I and my people have learned of the death of your illustrious father and I hasten to offer our heartfelt sympathy to you and the people of Belgium."

"The British Empire can never forget the heroic figure whose courage was an inspiration to the Allies throughout the dark years of the War and will join with the Belgians in mourning the loss of a true friend and ally."

In addition the King and Queen also sent Leopold a private message, which was not made public.

The public men of Great Britain paid tribute to the monarch whose war record made him one of the Allied idols.

Said David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister: "courage and a fine man."

The Archbishop of Canterbury: "I shall never forget the bravery with which he met the supreme crisis of his life and refused, despite pressing danger, to betray the honor of his country."

The Bishop of London: "His death is a terrible loss to Europe."

Earl Jellicoe, Commander of the British Grand Fleet during the Great War: "His splendid leadership was of the greatest possible assistance to the Allies."

Earl Beatty, Admiral of the Fleet: "The world has lost a great man. Belgium has lost a great patriot. And those who knew him best have lost a great friend."

George Lansbury, Labor Party leader, who lies in hospital with a broken thigh: "Death is the greatest leveler of all and death by accident comes to any of us, no matter how rich or powerful we are. We should be poor specimens of humanity if we did not express the deepest sympathy with the Queen and the entire nation so grievously tried."

Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, hero of the Zebruggen attack: "His gallant bearing and that of his devoted crew in his country's darkest hour was a shining example to the world."

West Fishing Industry Is Threatened

(C. F. by Guardian's Special Wire) WINNIPEG, Feb. 19.—The end of the commercial fishing industry of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was seen by officials of the Manitoba Department of mines and natural resources today as a result of a bill now before the United States Congress.

This bill, No. 1874-19, believed to be sponsored by the Atlantic coast and Lake Erie fishing interests of the United States, would prohibit importation of fish of all sorts.

If the Bill passes in its entirety it will destroy the fishing industry of the west completely, officials of the Department of Mines and Natural Resources stated. Practically the whole market for Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba fish is in the United States.

In Manitoba alone, annihilation of the industry would mean some 3,000 fishermen and 1,500 other employees of the fishing industry would be thrown out of work.

Last year Manitoba's fish production amounted to about $1,500,000 and in normal times has been as high as $4,000,000.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Great Britain today mourned Albert, King of the Belgians, as if he were one of her own, so close had been his relations with the people of this country during the Great War and since.

King George and Queen Mary both were mourning in public this afternoon. Court mourning was announced, and flags were flown at half staff throughout London.

Their Majesties, shocked, immediately sent messages of condolence to the Royal Family of Belgium.

While the Duke of Brabant, who will soon be King of the Belgians, is still a minor, the King is the Throne, the King sent him the following message:

"It is with the most profound sorrow that I and my people have learned of the death of your illustrious father and I hasten to offer our heartfelt sympathy to you and the people of Belgium."

"The British Empire can never forget the heroic figure whose courage was an inspiration to the Allies throughout the dark years of the War and will join with the Belgians in mourning the loss of a true friend and ally."

In addition the King and Queen also sent Leopold a private message, which was not made public.

The public men of Great Britain paid tribute to the monarch whose war record made him one of the Allied idols.

Said David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister: "courage and a fine man."

The Archbishop of Canterbury: "I shall never forget the bravery with which he met the supreme crisis of his life and refused, despite pressing danger, to betray the honor of his country."

The Bishop of London: "His death is a terrible loss to Europe."

Earl Jellicoe, Commander of the British Grand Fleet during the Great War: "His splendid leadership was of the greatest possible assistance to the Allies."

Earl Beatty, Admiral of the Fleet: "The world has lost a great man. Belgium has lost a great patriot. And those who knew him best have lost a great friend."

George Lansbury, Labor Party leader, who lies in hospital with a broken thigh: "Death is the greatest leveler of all and death by accident comes to any of us, no matter how rich or powerful we are. We should be poor specimens of humanity if we did not express the deepest sympathy with the Queen and the entire nation so grievously tried."

Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, hero of the Zebruggen attack: "His gallant bearing and that of his devoted crew in his country's darkest hour was a shining example to the world."

West Fishing Industry Is Threatened

(C. F. by Guardian's Special Wire) WINNIPEG, Feb. 19.—The end of the commercial fishing industry of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was seen by officials of the Manitoba Department of mines and natural resources today as a result of a bill now before the United States Congress.

This bill, No. 1874-19, believed to be sponsored by the Atlantic coast and Lake Erie fishing interests of the United States, would prohibit importation of fish of all sorts.

If the Bill passes in its entirety it will destroy the fishing industry of the west completely, officials of the Department of Mines and Natural Resources stated. Practically the whole market for Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba fish is in the United States.

In Manitoba alone, annihilation of the industry would mean some 3,000 fishermen and 1,500 other employees of the fishing industry would be thrown out of work.

Last year Manitoba's fish production amounted to about $1,500
