Bleeding Piles.

Not Only Painful and Annoying but a Menace to Life Itself Can be Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Piles or hemorrhoidal tumors, like varicose veins in other parts of the body, sometimes burst and permit the escape of blood from their central veins. These constitute bleeding piles. Such hemorrhages are sometimes exceedingly profuse, so as to even endanger the life of the patient.

The best proof of the efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment in this regard is the testimony of persons who have been actually cured of bleeding piles by using it. The statement of Mr. Jackson given below is that of a well known and responsible business man who felt so grateful for the benefit derived from Dr. Chase's Ointment that he determined to do what he could to let others know about it.

WEPT WITH HER SON, CONVICTED AT THE RECENT TRIAL IN TRURO

McNutt Found Guilty of Shooting His Wife With Intent to Kill—Judge's Charge Strong—Prisoner's Mother Enters the Dock and Strokes His Hair While He Sits Unmoved, But He Breaks Down When Being Led to Cell.

TRURO, N. S., Nov. 18.—After a trial lasting but about three hours and with less than an hour's consideration, Morton McNutt was today convicted of shooting his wife with intent to kill, and he pleaded guilty to a second charge of shooting with intent to maim his mother-in-law.

The case was opened at a special sitting of the supreme court, Judge Townshend presiding. F. A. Lawrence was for the prosecution, and H. V. Bigelow was for the defence.

About 20 witnesses were sworn and with two exceptions all escaped without cross examination.

The prosecution showed that McNutt had, on being released from jail, where he served a term for assaulting his wife, bought a revolver, went to his mother-in-law's house in broad daylight on Sept. 27, asked to see his wife, went into the room, fired three bullets into her and a fourth into his wife's mother, Mrs. John Hamilton, when she interfered.

Medical experts testified that the escape of McNutt's wife from death was due to the nearly miraculous they ever knew.

INSANITY DEFENCE.

Mr. Bigelow, for McNutt, put up the defence of insanity. He had McNutt's father, mother, sister and wife on the stand, and brought the prisoner himself forward to attempt to prove insanity. McNutt had received a blow on the head in a fight some weeks previous to his attempted murder and suicide, and the witnesses mentioned swore he acted strangely the day and night before the shooting.

McNutt swore that from early in the evening previous to the day of the shooting until some days after, all was a perfect blank to him; he had no recollection of purchasing a revolver and doing the shooting. There were two cases against him—shooting with intent to kill his wife, and shooting with intent to kill or maim Mrs. Hamilton.

On the jury bringing it in a verdict of guilty in the first case, McNutt pleaded guilty to the lesser charge to Mrs. Hamilton, and the greater charge was then dropped.

Judge Townshend styled the offence one of the most brutal a man could be guilty of. He called McNutt an inhuman, selfish brute and monster. He charged in the strongest possible terms against McNutt and complimented the jury on their return in accordance with his charge.

He also complimented Mr. Bigelow for his fight for McNutt, but there was nothing in the guilty man's favor. Sentence will likely be delivered tomorrow.

When the verdict was delivered, McNutt's mother in the gallery sent up wails of anguish, and had to be sent from the room. Later she went into the prisoner's box, put her arms around her guilty son's neck and wept and stroked his head.

McNutt was unruined by it all till Jailer Richardson put the handcuffs on him to take him back to jail. Then, as he started from his mother, he could not keep the tears back.

Throughout the trial he sat chewing tobacco. When his wife came in he came uneasy at first. She looked at him with a smile, and he returned it, and kept his gaze fixed on her.

The skeleton of a man, apparently 56 years of age, was found in the woods, six miles from Walton, Hants county, by lumbermen. There were two empty bottles and a pair of brogan shoes the bones.

Coroner Burgess is in charge. The matter is causing great excitement, as no one in these parts is missing or has been missing for years. It is believed the skeleton has been in the woods five years.

CARNEGIE ATE BAD FOOD.

LONDON, November 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie returned to London with the intention of sailing to-morrow for the United States, but they have been obliged to abandon because Mr. Carnegie is indisposed. The whole family were affected by some thing they ate on the continent. Mrs. Carnegie and her daughter have quite recovered. The physician, however, thinks it would be imprudent for Mr. Carnegie to cross yet, although he has practically recovered from his illness.

Old Heads Are Generally the Wisest

The following is what a P. F. I. farmer said to one of Charlottetown's salesmen. The ad. man was tanding by, and noted it down. It is convincing; it is truthful.

Getting hold of a piece of homespun tweed, he said. "There is no shoddy in that; you have your money's worth when you buy that. It is just like what mother made. This is just the real thing. Oh dear yes. There is some value in that. The good old mothers of P. E. I. are nearly all gone now, who used to shear the sheep, wash the wool, card the wool, dye the wool and then weave it. Then came the thickening frolic, with 'Gaelic song'—(such as the great singer, Jessie MacLachlan, sang to hundreds of delighted folk in Charlottetown this autumn.) 'These were the good old times, when every male member of the family tried to wear out what mother made, and could not do it.'

The nearest thing you can get to 'what mother made' is Reid's Double and Twisted Tweed.
