About ten o'clock the guests assembled in the parlor, which was prettily decorated for the occasion and presented the charming young bride-to-be with the gifts, which were costly and numerous, which were opened by Misses Mary Caswell and Luella Wilson, the bridesmaids being read by Miss Emma Zevely, signifying to the popularity of the young couple. Miss MacInnis in a few well chosen words, thanked her friends for so kindly remembering her. A dainty lunch was served in Mrs. Caswell's best style, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Wilson, Miss Emma Kelly, Miss Luella Burns and Miss Mary Caswell. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, excellent music being furnished by Mr. Martin and Mr. McCarron. The feature of the evening was step-dancing by Mr. William Stewart and Mr. George MacLaine, and fox-trotting by Miss Hilda Kelly and Mr. Sigurd Reymond. About five-thirty, after singing "For They Are Arly Good Fellows," the guests wended their way to their respective homes feeling that they had enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

AT ROTARY—Ireland and Its Patron Saint" was the appropriate subject of an eloquent address delivered at the Rotary luncheon yesterday afternoon by Rev. Patrick McMahon, D. D., of St. Dunstan's Basilica staff. The speaker first gave a description of Ireland dealing with its early history, both joyful and sad, from early times down through the centuries, calling particular attention to the intellectual supremacy of Ireland over the rest of Europe from the Sixth and Seventh Centuries, the period constituting the golden age of Irish history. He showed how the life of the Irish people is bound up in the life of St. Patrick. He dwelt on the simple strong faith of the Irish people who knew how to sacrifice all that was dear to them in order to conserve pure and unadulterated in their hearts the faith given them by the apostle of Ireland. Dr. McMahon also spoke of another great characteristic of the Irish heart, its patriotism or love of the Old Country, which moves one of them in whatever land they may be to join together in celebrating the great national feast day, St. Patrick's Day. Mr. P. M. Stewart was in the chair and the guests were Judge Duffy and Mr. J. A. McIsaac. Irish solos were admirably rendered by Mrs. E. W. MacEwen, who was encored, and there were also a number of Irish choruses sung by the Club.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. MICHAEL A. READY

The Grim Reaper again exacted his inexorable toll at Indian River on Feb. 25th in the person of Mrs. Michael A. Ready of Irishtown, who developed pneumonia while on a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Hickey. All that medical aid, nursing and the kind attentions of her children and friends, had no avail against the ravages of the deadly disease and her spirit took its flight to the great beyond. She died as she had lived, gently and without a murmur, with perfect resignation to the Divine Will. During her illness she was soothed by visits of her pastor, Rev. R. F. MacDonald, who administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, of which she was a devout member.

Her husband had predeceased her on the same date two years ago. Deceased (nee Josephine McKinnon of Brackley Point) was a quite unassuming lady of most estimable character, beloved by neighbours and friends which was attested by the large number of people who followed her mortal remains to their last resting place in St. Mary's Cemetery Indian River, where solemn High Mass of Requiem was sung by the pastor. She had attained her seventy first year. Her comparatively long life of usefulness was characterized by untiring devotion to the welfare of her family. Her patience and resignation during the sickness and death of three grown sons, viz. Henry Bernard, and Frank within a few years was most exemplary and edifying.

She leaves to mourn her death, one daughter, Mrs. William Hickey of Indian River, and two sons, viz. William Ready of DeBios Brothers, Charlottetown, and Fred at home. Also one sister, Mrs. Dr. James MacDonald of South Boston. Two other sisters Mrs. Marr and Mrs. McLellan predeceased her within a year. The pall bearers were Hon. J. P. McIntyre and John McIntyre, (nephews) Fraser Mann, William Mann, Wm. Noonan, (Borden), and James Pendergast.

Requiescat in Pace.

P. E. I. CLERGYMAN PASSED AWAY IN WEST

REGINA, Sask.—The last chapter of an interesting and useful life was written at Broadview, Sask., recently in the death of an old-timer who for more than fifty years lived on the great plains of the Canadian West, when Rev. George A. Laird, pioneer missionary, teacher and farmer passed away at his home following a comparatively short illness.

The late Rev. Mr. Laird was born at Cavendish, Prince Edward Island, in 1852 and at the age of 28 years, came to Manitoba, homesteading at Brandon on what was later to become the provincial experimental farm and which was then known as Grand Valley. He returned to the maritimes the following year and was married bringing his bride with him to the prairies in 1880. He later taught school and attended summer courses at the Manitoba college, from which he was granted his degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1886. For five years following his graduation he was a missionary teacher in the Saskatchewan Indian settlement known as Crow's Stand, which was then two miles east of the present town of Kamsack. Following his departure from this work he took up farming operations at Brodyview, where for more than thirty years he made his home. He was well known throughout the country and had many friends in the Maritimes as well as in the Pacific coast.

He is survived by his wife Margaret Taylor, of Halifax, one daughter and seven sons, also two brothers William of Vancouver, and John of Cavendish. He was buried in the local cemetery at Broadview, the funeral service being conducted from the little chapel which is situated on the corner of the deceased pastor's farm. (Patriot please copy)

MRS. JOSHUA ADAMS

There passed to her eternal reward at her home in Lot 11, on Feb. 28th, Henrietta Adams, aged 76 widow of the late Joshua Adams who predeceased her four years ago. She bore a long illness with true Christian fortitude and died trusting in her Redeemer. Interment was made in the family plot at Lot 11 cemetery, Rev. Mr. Coleman of Port Hill officiating.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother nine daughters, seven of whom were with her at the time of her death. The survivors are Mrs. Carrie McArthur, Poplar Grove; Mrs. J. H. Blair and Mrs. Alphonse McCullough, Nova Scotia; Mrs. Fraser McPhee, Mrs. Harry McKinnon, Mrs. Allen McNevin and Mrs. Waldron Leard, of Coleman, P. E. I., Mrs. Thos. McKinnon, of Inverness, P. E. I., and Mrs. Hessel McLeod at home. There are also thirty-four grand children and one great grand child. The pall bearers were two nephews and four sons-in-law of the departed, Messrs. Allen McNevin, Harry McKinnon, Waldron Leard, Thomas McKinnon, George Adams and James McLean.

—O—

The funeral of the late Mr. Leo Hart took place on Thursday afternoon from his home in Dunblane to West Point Presbyterian Cemetery, Rev. W. S. Loring of the United Church officiated at the home, and also preached a most impressive sermon at the church. The pall bearers were Messrs. Albert McLean, Roy McMillan, Wilfred Hickey, W. T. McIsaac, Charles Bulger and Leslie McLean.—O—

NEW ENGLAND MAN JOINT MASTER OF CATTISTOCK HUNT

BOSTON, Mass., March 18.—Advices received here last week confirmed rumors that an American was to be appointed Joint Master of England's Cattistock Foxhounds.

At the last meeting of the Hunt Committee a Henry Higginson of South Lincoln, Mass., one of America's best known hunting men, was unanimously elected to share the Mastership with Rev. Mr. Milne.

It has been mutually agreed between them that Mr. Higginson would hunt the country three days a week and Rev. Mr. Milne the other two hunting days. The pleasant association which Mr. Higginson has had with the "Sporting Parson" in the three seasons he has hunted with the Cattistocks during his invasion of England makes the privilege of sharing the mastership with such a well informed English hunting man an unusually attractive one to the American sportsman.

Rev. Mr. Milne has the advantage of knowing the country intimately through his long term as master. He is the friend of all the farmers and had a reputation of hardness despite his seventy odd years, that many a younger man would envy. He will ride in any kind of weather and will stick as long as anybody in the field.

Major Lord Digby whom Mr. Higginson succeeds was considerably lamed by the nature of his duties on account of wounds received in the World War. Mr. Higginson, still in vigorous health, has been a riding man all his life and it will be no hardship for him to take over the heavier end of the hunting assignments.

Dalley's Hunting Directory gives an excellent description of the Cattistock county. The country which lies in Dorset and a small portion in Somerset extends twenty five miles in greatest length from northwest to southeast by eighteen miles breadth. On the north it adjoins the Blackmore Vale; on the west the Taunton vale and the East Devon, and on the east the South Dorset; the sea lies on the south. It is bank and ditch country, and there are some stone walls, but it is chiefly pasture, with a light plough and some dopland. It is well stocked with foxes. There is little wire. The horse required is a well bred one; he must be bold to face the growth on the banks, and fast. Best centres are Malden, Newton, Dorchester and Weymouth on the South Dorset border; Bridesport and Yeovil (just within the Blackmore vale); also Crowkerne.

The hunt was started by Rev. J. Phillips of Cattistock Lodge, near the close of the eighteenth century; it was known during its earlier years as the True Blue Hunt. Former masters are Lord Polkimore, 1860-72; Mr. J. Codrington, 1872-77; Captain Maccaughan, 1877-78; Mr. J. Codrington (2nd M'ship) 1878-83; Lord Gifford 1888-96; Mr. Featherstonhaugh, 1896-97; Mr. Phillips, 1897-98; Mr. R. Chandos-Polo, 1898-97; Mr. J. Hargreaves, 1897-1900.

Rev. Mr. Milne of Chilfrone, Dorchester, became master in 1900. Major Lord Digby, D. S. O., M. C. Ninorn, Dorchester, was associated with the "Sporting Parson" as joint master in 1926, and thus retains after filling this position for four years. The secretary of the Cattistock is Captain, the Honorable Gerald Digby, R. N. His residence is Lowscombe Manor, Dorchester. The Masters themselves are the Huntsmen.

Mr. Higginson, at present, has seven horses five of which he brought over from the United States. Before he went over to England, he inquired as to whether he should bring over his own horses or buy there. He was uncertain as to the ability of the American hunters, used to stone wall and fence country here, to take to the bank and ditch country which is prevalent in England. On being advised to use his own horses, Mr. Higginson took over four Irish bred hunters, which had been imported here by "Dick" Sheehan, of Dover, and also an ex-teepee chaser "Silent Did." In a short time "Did" was as good as any of the English horses in hopping over gates and timber.

The rotunda-shaped building facing the Upper School is a memorial of Etonians who fell in the South African War. It was opened by King Edward VII in November 1908. The boys in the school number about 1,000. It was at Eaton the tradition arose that "England's battles were won on the Cricket grounds of Eton."

THE DERBY

The race meeting which most appeals to the Londoners is undoubtedly the famous Derby run at Epsom Downs on a Wednesday either a fortnight before or after Whitsun. On a Derby Day all the roads and railways leading south from London are packed with people, and the sight on the course is one never to be forgotten. I attended this famous course on the first of June. Our party went in a special bus and spent a most delightful day. It was a great sight to look at the enormous crowds on both sides of the track, as well as the grand stands filled, the motor buses, motor cars and the stands of the bookmakers. It was estimated that there were perhaps 200,000 people present. It was a very noisy but well-behaved crowd, and we did not observe one intoxicated person or a quarrel during the whole show. There were, of course, a lot of gypsy fortune-tellers, costers, hawkers, bookies, etc., but taken all in all it was a good-natured crowd. The road from town and back was most beautiful—the splendid paved roads and concrete sidewalks all the way, the beautifully kept farms and gardens, and the pretty small towns at intervals were very attractive. And, of course, the interest was enhanced by the presence of the King and Queen in the Royal Enclosure.

THE ROYAL TOURNAMENT AT OLYMPIA

For the encouragement of skill-arms and the benefit of Naval, Military and Air Force charities. This was by far the most spectacular pageant of anything to be seen in London this year (1927). It lasted from May 18th to June 4th, and performances were held three times every day, except Sunday, with change of programme at each performance. The amphitheatre building called "Olympia," with tier upon tier of seats, somewhat resembling a very large circus tent, with the Royal Box at one side, would probably have a seating capacity of 20,000. The evening of our attendance was on May 20th and some high dignitary represented Royalty in the Royal Box. Just once a year the Army Council makes the theatrical producers look like infants.

A full description of all the many "stunts" performed by the different branches of the Navy, Army and Air Forces, that I witnessed would be for me an impossibility. All I can do is to give you a synopsis of some of the things witnessed by a writer who was a regular visitor to Olympia. "I am thrilled by the riding and remounts from the Cavalry School. These boys center into the arena, unstrap their stirrup leathers, fling them into the tan, and do all kinds of stunts at the center—then unstrap their girths, pull the saddles down from beneath them, throw them away, take fences bare back and while they jump they unbutton and take off their tunics. Then! if the Royal Air Force is as good in the air as on the parade ground there is nothing to fear next time. These boys, who still look eighteen years old, march and handle their rifles with a precision which is positively beautiful. I would go year after year to see them present arms and to hear that unanimous ring of hands on magazines and see that simultaneous puff of pipe clay. Marvellous! . . . Suddenly the gates at one end of the arena are flung open, and in ride four gold trumpeters of the Life Guards, led by the fat, pie-bald drum horse. Listen to the sound of Cavalry drums and the silver fanfare. Behind, jingles the musical ride of the first and second Life Guards. Pennants fluttering from lances, their white plumes waving, their breastplates gleaming, they come in, wheel round into line, part, trot around the arena, meet in half-sections, meet in sections of four, waltz, while the band plays, and the big black chargers that follow the King through the streets of London behave like perfect ladies. Is there a finer sight than a Life-guardsmen sitting a restive charger? Then in a breathless hush they line up at top-saddle ends of the arena, the trumpeters blow the charge, and with a cry they press their knees to the saddle, crouch, and fly together with a whistle of lance pennants—but not quite! At the point of contact they wheel round into line, salute the Royal Box, and calmly trot out—a troop of Knights in silver and scarlet."

"The Navy delights in hauling heavy guns about the world. It seems to love pulling them to pieces, to enjoy throwing the fragments over parapets, to pull wheels from gun carriages, and suddenly to put this metal jigsaw puzzle together again; and all done so quickly that you cannot think it difficult.

"Then the guns of the Royal Horse Artillery are rumbling over the Tan in that breathless event known as a musical ride. The gunners wear the splendid uniform of the Peninsular War period. Crisscross over the arena thunder the guns, the wheels missing collision by inches as the teams flash by, the six horses of each team, eager, with out-stretched necks, galloping as if on their way to save the Empire. Then the sudden end, a grind of wheels, a cloud of dust, a line of gun carriages, and a salute of white whips." (H. V. Morton)

The display of horsemanship by the "Trick Riders" which was taken part in by the Officers, N. C. O.'s, and men of the 16th Lancers, the team consisting of Jumpers, Tent-peppers and Trick Riders, dressed in brigand fashion, was a veritable circus performance, and the stunts were done on horseback at the full gallop.

The Grand Historical Pageant, "Scotland," in which were represented the battle of Killcrankie in 1689 in the fight between the Highlands and Lowlands, and several other wars between the Scots and the English, then the Union of the Scots, English, Irish and Welsh merits more than a passing allusion.

Mrs. E. Trizo Is Very Satisfied With The Result Received By Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

York Centre, P. Q. March 18.—(Special)—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular in the Province of Quebec, is shown by the statement of Mrs. E. Trizo, a resident of this place. She writes:—"Some time ago I had Backache and thought I would try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I used two boxes I felt quite relieved. I can recommend them to anyone for sore back or kidney trouble. They are sure worth 50c a box."

Dodd's Kidney Pills purify the blood and pure blood carried to all parts of the body means new health and increased energy all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent tonic and now is the opportune time to take them. During the long dreary winter months the system becomes weakened and gets in a run-down condition. Dodd's Kidney Pills work with nature by encouraging and assisting the kidneys.
