"THE CIRCUS" CHAPLIN'S AND GREATEST LATEST

Imagine A Circus. -- A ll Laughs.--Here It Is.

Charlie Chaplin, the One and Only is with us again on the screen at the Prince Edward after an absence of two years. Although his latest comedy "THE CIRCUS" is a long time in coming, it was well worth waiting for. Many of the old Chaplin gags and mannerisms are still to be found, but many new stunts that kept the crowded houses at the Prince Edward yesterday in almost hysterical laughter.

"Chaplin's latest "The Circus" is a merry tale of peanuts, sawdust, pink lemonade, clowns, tigers, elephants, roaring lions and acrobats, with Chaplin as the central and predominating figure. We could write all the adjectives in the vocabulary, but to get this comedy and the feast of laughter in store, you must see it for yourself.

Charlie plays a wandering lad who is mixed up in a series of hilarious adventures, chases, arguments and omissions that land him in "The Circus" as a very fine fellow. Merna Kennedy, with red hair and just five feet two, with eyes of blue, is his leading lady; she makes her screen debut in the role. Others in the cast are Harry Crocker, Henry Bergman, Betty Morrissey and Alvin Garcia.

If in doubt ask your friends who saw it yesterday. Send the children. It's a treat for young and old, and do away with all pretense. Both Miss Bellamy and Brown are excellent in their youthful characterizations. Mary Duncan, who plays the other woman in the cast, is likewise a very clever artist.

Additional laughs are furnished by "Blazing Away", a two part comedy.

MR. PATRICK KEENAN

The death occurred at the Sacred Heart Home Sunday of Patrick Keenan after a lengthy illness. The late Mr. Keenan was well and favorably known in this city where he had for years followed the occupation of stevedore, employing many men as occasion demanded. In this capacity he was well known to numerous officers of stonemasons and sailing craft, all of whom will regret to learn of his demise.

Madge Bellamy and Jack Mack Brown in A Marriage Comedy

STORY TELLS OF GIRL WHO WOULD SOUGHT MONEY IN MATRIMONY AND FOUND THAT LOVE PAYS BIGGER DIVIDENDS AT LOWER INTEREST CHARGES

Subtle humor and hilarious material between a young married couple, who try and persuade each other they are not in love is the theme of "Soft Living," featuring Madge Bellamy, which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. Johnny Mack Brown has the leading male role.

This serious trouble finds its starting point when Madge meets Johnny, a wealthy lumber magnate. She decides to capitalize on his money. But there the trouble begins. Johnny is not nearly so dumb as his unsophisticated ways would indicate and he discovers her object.

But this does not daunt Johnny. He decides to go her one better—take her to his country lodge and there makes a real housewife out of her, instead of a pampered pet. And thus the wise little city girl finds herself transplanted from the boulevards to the big timber country. From then on it is a series of laughs with Madge trying to hold out against love for alimony, and Johnny trying to break down his own indifference and again he declares his love for her.

After a series of misfortunes, however, Madge decides she could never love her country sutor. Then another woman comes into the scene and makes a play for Johnny. This is enough for Madge. All of her woman's heart then comes to the surface and she breaks down, confessing her scheming. Of course the rest is easy. They make up all 7 1/2 of their differences and decide to live just as ordinary human beings

ANNOYING HOUSEHOLDERS

Sir.—May I ask for space in your valuable publication, in which to voice my indignation with regard to a campaign—a campaign that amounts almost to a persecution. Night after night my door bell is rung in an imperative manner. In fact it is rung and rung and rung—sometimes as late as nine-thirty. Upon rushing to the door, preparing for the worst as one rushes, one is accosted by a lad canvassing for subscriptions for some Halifax paper. It is not enough to advise the boy that the paper is not desired. As a rule he proves annoyingly insistent.

You will undoubtedly agree with me that putting up with this nuisance six nights a week is bad enough, but last Sunday night it was turned up again, if possible, more insistent than usual.

Turning to the Press for help I have proved my confidence in the quotation, "The pen is mightier than the sword," but if this state of affairs continues, the temptation may prove overwhelming, and putting aside the pen, the sword will be taken up.

I am, Sir, etc., AN UNWILLING BELL HOP.

MEETING OF JUNIOR C. W. L.—friendly and generous, and an ideal wife and mother. Naturally, in her own home she will be missed most keenly, but the many acts of kindness shown her during her illness testified to the high place she filled in the community. There are left to mourn besides her husband one son Percy, at home and two sisters, and four brothers, who are all residing in U. S. A. The pallbearers were, Messrs William Stewart, James Swan, Stewart MacKinnon, Vernon Burke, Wilbur Trainor and John Spencer. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Her funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Sunday, May 6th, to Peoples' Cemetery, Rev. W. Bruce Muir officiating. (Patriot please copy.) Mrs. MacIntyre was a woman of broad sympathies. She was kindly, full, and during the last year, her health kept gradually failing, but she did not become bedfast until three weeks before her death. Mrs. MacIntyre was a woman of broad sympathies.
