Urges Ferry Requirements In West Prince

Hope that the Federal Government would undertake the building of a ferry terminal at West Point and subsidize the West Point-Buctouche service was expressed in the Legislature this week by Mr. Forrest W. Phillips, (Liberal) Second District of Prince, in speaking on the Draft Address.

Mr. Phillips understood that if this policy is approved at Ottawa the ferry company can have the boats brought here within a matter of hours. The boats have been used on fresh water lakes, are fully equipped, and if brought here before the terminals are ready, could be used by the Provincial Government in the Newfoundland trade or elsewhere. They have a carrying capacity of 53 automobiles.

The people in the western section of Prince County are entitled to this service. Mr. Phillips maintained, as they have been unjustly discriminated against in the matter of extra freight charges, due to the zoning of the railway lines in the Province.

An important factor in the Government's re-election last December, Mr. Phillips believed, was its signing of the Dominion-Provincial tax agreement which insured increases to Island school teachers, increased hospital grants and other financial benefits to the Province. The taking over of the pork factory in Charlottetown to relieve the strike situation was also a popular move.

Packing Strike Action

The sympathy of the Opposition speakers seemed to be all with the packing company and the few men engaged in operating it, Mr. Phillips said. It did not appear to extend to the ten or twelve thousand farmers who were concerned about their hogs, which were ready to be butchered and could not be kept ten or twelve days overtime without loss.

"The Government to my mind did the right thing in stepping in and protecting the people who represent at least 75 per cent of our population," he said. "As far as the legality of the matter goes, I think one method would be just as legal as the another. Before the election there was a lot of discussion and you would imagine by the criticism that the Government didn't step in quickly enough. To have done the thing legally, as they call it would have taken at least two weeks and the farmers couldn't afford to wait that long. Now it is over, the hogs are being slaughtered and the farmer is getting more for his hogs owing to the new contract with Great Britain. Some of the feed prices have been reduced too."

Mr. Phillips expressed satisfaction at the service provided this winter by the new car ferry "Abegweit." The refer car shortage was a hard thing to control but he believed the situation would be improved considerably in the near future.

He referred to the large amount of surplus potatoes on hand, and to reported prospects of marketing another 1,500,000 overseas. This, he understood would depend on the operation of the Marshal Plan.

He commended the Government's road travelling program last year. One section which should be done this year is the road from O'Leary to the shore, which requires to be widened, graded and paved, and which is under heavy truck traffic.

Rural Mail Boxes

Mr. Phillips drew attention to a difficulty in connection with the present system of rural mail boxes, which are "straggled" on both sides of the highway and are hard to avoid by snowplow operators. It should be made compulsory to have the boxes all on one side of the road, he suggested.

Too many potatoes are being grown, he believed and too little attention given to the growing of grain. He knew farmers with 100 acres of land, who were producing about twelve hogs a year and buying all their feed. A great deal more grain could be grown under a proper system of farming. The Premier's proposal of getting mussel-mud on the land would, he believed, be one of the greatest things the Government did. He referred in this connection to a huge mud deposit at Auld's Creek, in the vicinity of West Point, which is only under four or five feet of water.

Mr. Phillips was sorry to learn from the Premier that bulldozers will not be made available to the field), ex-GI who returns to civilian life only to be quickly disillusioned when he learns that his girl friend, Toni (Faye Emerson), has found herself another man (Robert Shayne). And, as a double-edged insult, she further attempts to ease him out of the $50,000 he left in her safekeeping.

So, when Nick's side-kick Al Doyle (George Tobias), suggests that Nick should take the reins in a "con" set-up involving a beautiful and wealthy widow (Geraldine Fitzgerald), Nick agrees. The prospects of two million dollars offset his reluctance to associate with several shady members of the mob which is engineering the deal.

The plot gallops along to an exciting climax as Nick succumbs to the charms of the young widow and thereby endangers his happiness because of an inevitable showdown with the unscrupulous gang-
