Dr. Manion. In the course of his many years in public life, I shared with Dr. Manion throughout an association in public affairs much more intimate than most political opponents enjoy, and a personal friendship correspondingly close.

This was notwithstanding differences in political opinions which occasioned changes in our political affiliations, and for a time open opposition in our political relationship.

I greatly admired in Dr. Manion his genial and warm-hearted nature and the deep feeling of patriotism which was an outstanding characteristic.

Shortly after his resignation as leader of his party, he offered the services to be accepted immediately and Col. Manion, as he then became, threw himself into his work, first with the Department of National Defence and more recently as National Director of Civilian Air Raid Defence with his usual vigor and enthusiasm.

For a quarter of a century, Dr. Manion occupied a high place in the public life of Canada.

He will be remembered by his friends and admirers of all parties not merely as a foremost figure in the political life of Canada, but also as a physician, a soldier, and a patriot who sought to place the interests of his country above all personal and party considerations.

The sympathy of the Canadian people will be extended in full measure to Mrs. Manion and her three sons in their great bereavement.

A banana auctioned at Nottingham, England for the Merchant Navy Comforts Fund fetched the equivalent of $60.

Glider Attack: Silent Soldiers Train for Invasion

Fifteen men on a deadly mission—that's the "cargo" carried by each of the Army's flying freight cars. These gliders, now mass produced and engaged in constant training, will spearhead the Allied airborne attack in coming invasions. Here maneuvering shock troops march into their glider; a twin-motored bomber tows it off the ground; then the gliders are cut loose to swoop to earth as they near the attack target. Once on the ground, the "silent soldiers" break their silence and leap from their gliders with war cries on their lips. Protected by smoke screens, they charge to the attack or fire from prone positions on maneuvers that are preparing these glider troops for attack on enemy airfields and positions.

ARMY DUCK-TRUCKS HIT THE SURF. A quartet of the Army's newest amphibians—a 21-ton truck that travels with equal facility on land or sea—hits the surf somewhere on the Pacific coast, headed out to sea to make rendezvous with other units during recent maneuvers. Officially known as DUKWs, the sea-going trucks have been dubbed, naturally enough, "ducks." Those above it are attached to the Amphibian Engineers of the 3rd Engineer Special Brigade.

Eloquent Sermon

By Rev. Prof. Horan

Yesterday morning at St. Paul's Church the celebration of the Holy Communion was conducted by Rev. Professor Horan of Wycliffe College, Toronto, who also delivered the sermon.

The preacher chose his text from the third chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Philippians, at the 20th verse: "For our citizenship is in Heaven."

These words, he said, were written in answer to criticisms leveled against St. Paul by his countrymen for what they considered his lack of patriotism. They accused him of disloyalty and hostility to their national religion. St. Paul met these criticisms, not by denying them, but by affirming that his life was guided by one grand ruling passion—his love for Christ the King. He proclaimed his citizenship in Heaven.

Of course we should all desire to see Canada a great country—a land of which we can be proud to be called citizens. But what constitutes true greatness in a country? Some think of it in terms of size of area in square miles, some in terms of population, others in terms of national wealth and natural resources. All these, in their way, constitute greatness in a kind. But not the greatness pointed out for us in the Bible, which tells us: "Greatness is goodness." This, indeed, is the only true and effective greatness.

What we should wish for Canada, then, is that she may be good—that her people may be those who do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with God. Such greatness will not arouse envy or hatred, or provoke wars. And there is nothing ineffective, negative or passive about goodness. The good man or good nation will put forth the utmost in force, courage, and effort to resist that which is wrong and evil.

Thus today we of the United Nations are, with all our strength, resisting these forces of wrong, violence, evil and oppression which have set out to bring the world under their regime of tyranny, cruelty and slavery. And, as long as we are holding fast to goodness, there is no doubt of our ultimate victory, however long and hard the struggle, for God himself is fighting on our side.

But the enemy appears in our very midst, too. He comes in the guise of selfishness, cupidity, pride, social injustice, and other forms of wrongdoing. This is the enemy we must be ever on the guard against, for he often clothes himself in seductive and specious forms, in which we do not recognize him. We are taken the first steps into temptation. Let us beware, then, of the enemy within our land, as well as the enemy without, whom we openly

Big Manhunt

In Wyoming

LARAMIE, Wyo., July 4.—(AP)—Families of Wyoming cattlemen terrified by three brutal killings seemingly without motive—fled to Laramie for safety over the holiday week-end while the manhunt pushed one of the west's greatest manhunts.

A modernized posse—automobiles and planes replacing the traditional horse-searchers—the deep valleys and the granite-studded hills between Laramie and Cheyenne, led by two officers.

LARAMIE, WYO., July 4.—A man who gave his name as Howard William Pickell, 26, of Syracuse, N. Y., was arrested and identified by Mrs. O. W. Larson as the assailant who beat her and killed her companion, Sheriff Ed A. Wood said the man admitted having beaten Mrs. Larson.

The members instructed their posse to start in Laramie and not venture into the open country for fear of July outtings or picnics, fearing repetition of the tragedies that took the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cota, prosperous ranch couple, and Matt Katmo, Cheyenne war worker, in recent days.

The Cotas were shot and killed as they entered their home after a shopping tour Friday night, sheriff Ed Wood of Laramie reported. Their assailant evidently had taken a nap in the isolated ranch home and fixed himself a meal awaiting his victims.

Wood said he believed the same killer shot Katmo several days earlier as Katmo and his companion, Mrs. O.W. Larson of Laramie, ailed from their automobile to pick wild flowers. Mrs. Larson was beaten and her hands bound by the man. No motive was found for either killings.

PETTY OFFICER DROWNED LIVERPOOL, N.S. July 4.—(CP)—Petty Officer Richard Javox of Port Arthur was drowned today while in swimming near here. The body was recovered several hours later, and will be sent to Port Arthur for interment, it is believed. His wife arrived here only a few days ago.
