THE GUARDIAN has received the calendar of Dalhousie College and University for 1900-01.

THE East River Cheese Factory at Fort Augustus, Lot 36, has placed a third vat in order to handle the supply of milk to the factory. A new board of Directors and a new Secretary have recently been elected and it is thought that new life will be un-stilled in the patrons.

THE attention of all pleasure seekers is called to the Hazelbrook Baptist S. School picnic which takes place this afternoon. The picnic will be held near the cheese factory in a nice shady field. At a little distance off, the grading for the new R. R. may be seen. Visitors from city will have a pleasant drive of five miles through one of the most picturesque parts of the Island. A table will be provided for visitors.

Mr. James Pickard, of Clinton, is at present erecting one of his wind mills for Mrs. Daniel Howard of Kingston. The mill will be used for threshing, crushing grain, and pumping water for the stock. The machine is four horse power and will do all work necessary about a barn. Among those who have recently placed a wind mill are Donald Murchison, North River; John Wedlock, Stanley Bridge; Frank McMillan, North River.

ENGLISH subjects wherever found usually have the firm conviction, that in all things their government is right in her dealings with nations, or it may be that in the mind of each is a precept somewhat like that of the American naval commander, Paul Deceatur, which was: "My Country, may she ever be Right." But "my country right or wrong, and it is fitting that at this time an American who through having at the bar and journalism has had his powers of observation quickened, should come to us to tell of the grievances which English subjects were subjected before Old England stretched forth a staying hand. In his illustrated lecture on South Africa, "Land of the Briton and Boer," Mr. Robert P. Bell, the American lawyer-journalist who was for three years an Uitlander, resident for the most of the time in Johannesburg and Pretoria, will tell of his experiences and those of other Uitlanders in Oom Paul's domain. Although not a war lecture, the descriptions of the country in which so many important engagements have lately taken place cannot help but make clear to students of the war, the difficulties and embarrassments which have constantly confronted the English commanders. After seeing the magnificent pictures of the Drakensburg mountains, in which the rugged aspect of the country is shown, it will be better understood than before how much Lieut. Gen. Buller had to contend with as his operations for the relief of Ladysmith. The Boers in camp preparing for the field as well as in their homes, domestic vocations and religious life, will be pictured and described: also their Presidential institutions and the corrupt abuses of power will be explained in detail with the aid of splendid views, many of which are from Mr. Bell's own negatives. The lecturer had an intimate acquaintance with ex-President Kruger, Gen. Joubert and other prominent Boers and on several occasions met ex-President Steyn and Commandant Louis Botha, and tells many interesting anecdotes of them. Mr. Bell saw many of the exciting engagements of the late Matebele and Mashona war, and while in Bulawayo was attached to one of the troops of the Rhodesian horse. The lecture promises to be interesting and entertaining in the extreme and those who attend will, in all likelihood spend an evening fraught with enjoyment.

A new steamship company has just been organized in New York, with a view of securing a share of the tourist travel. The new line has been incorporated under the name of the Manhattan Steamship Co. By Sept. 10th the new company expect to have six steamers running. One of the lines will run between New York and Sydney, calling at Halifax. The organization of the above company has been talked of for years and it is understood the company at one time enquired of the traffic to P. E. Island.

A young business man is naturally in touch with the new methods that revolutionize trade every few years in these rapid times; but the older one who keeps up with them is his equal and his superior by the weight of his added experience. For the professional man whose study lamp still burns, fifty is but a milestone on the road to greater power. And for him there is always something to be won and a new way to win it if the old one will not do. At seventy he is learning and planning and executing. He is climbing trees, like General Wheeler, to see what the enemy's up to; or drumming up wheat, like Mr. Armour, to freeze out the other youngster; or planning a great Home Rule program like that lively octogenarian, the late Mr. Gladstone. It's what a man is learning and doing, not what he knows and has done, that makes for youth and success. The ability to see new conditions and to meet them is the secret of youth's power in the world today. And so long as a man has that ability, the years count for nothing. You can draw a dead line behind him, but you can't catch and push him over it.

DURING the present season complaint has been made that the management of the Plant Line allowed people to remain on board and eat meals on the steamer while she remained in port to the detriment of the hotel business in this city. In a letter recently received by Mr. W. W. Clarke the agent in this city, Mr. Chipman the manager at Halifax says: Last season objections were made because we did not remain over longer in Charlottetown and because we obliged tourists to go off the steamer to procure meals, and the consequence was that this interfered largely with our tourist trade. We had to overcome this in some way as the experience of last season demonstrated to us as far as the tourist travel was concerned, for they would not leave Boston on such a ship as the Duchesse without they could have the assurance of a return room, and the lack of hotel accommodations had gone forth broadcast that they would not leave Boston unless they could be assured of getting served on board the steamer. Unless we can give them this assurance, we cannot get the round trip tourists, and towards that end we scheduled the Duchesse to lay over a day at Charlotte to increase the tourist's business on the Duchesse. It should be remembered by citizens in general that last year so far as the Province was concerned the running of the Duchesse was a loss to the company. There is no doubt that in placing such a magnificent steamer on the route and the lay over of a day in order to allow the tourist to visit the beaches and summer resorts will meet with the approval of citizens in general.
