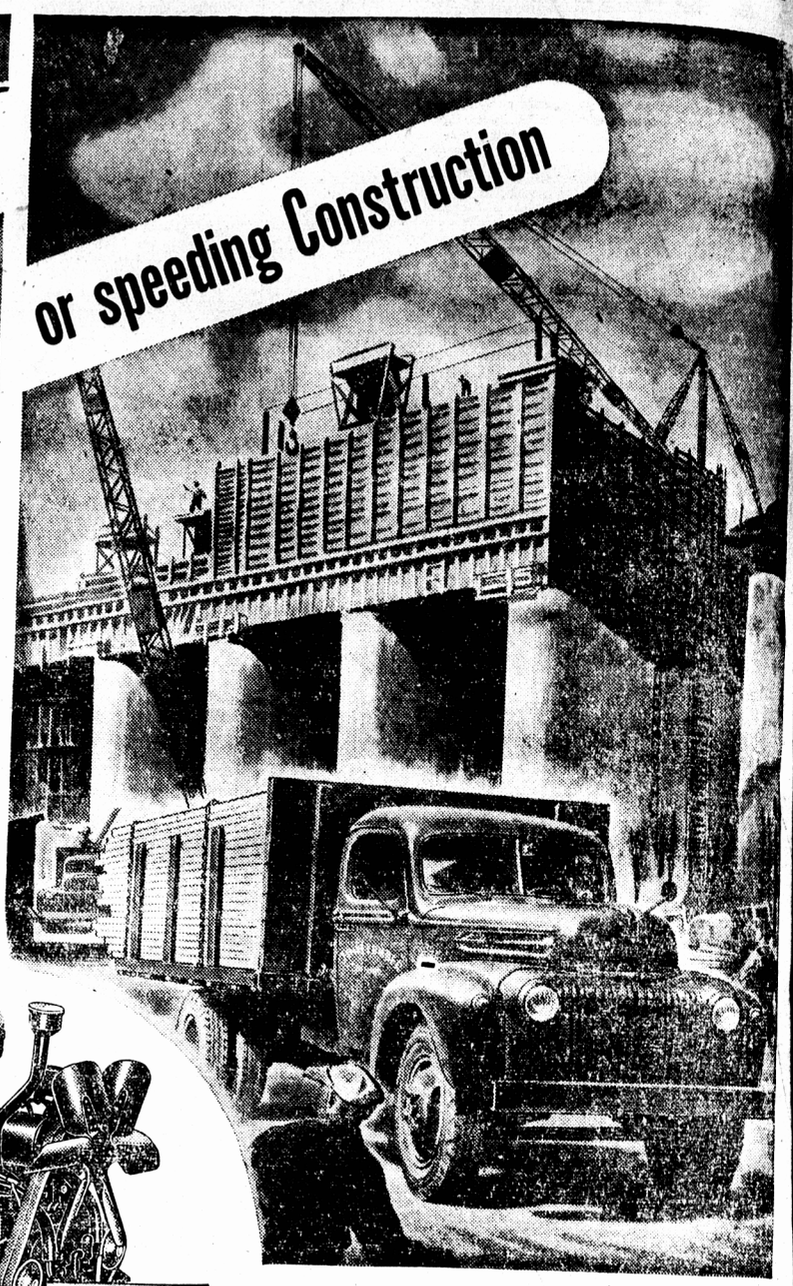
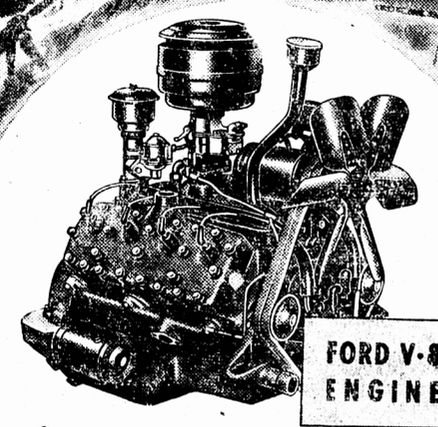
IN WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Both Greenland and Iceland are in the western hemisphere.





It's Engineered to stand up!

CONVOYED by their protecting self-propelled Bofors Guns, Allied supply columns move faster and in greater safety along invasion roads. Mounted as a unit on its Canadian-built Ford chassis, this new weapon has a road speed as high as forty miles an hour. At the first sign of strafing planes or enemy tanks, the gun crew leap into instant action and let loose a stream of deadly two-pound shells, 120 to the minute!

Ford products are doing an outstanding job on the home front, too. On gigantic war-born construction projects, for instance, Ford Trucks are preferred for their great hauling power—their easy manoeuvrability in mud, sand and snow—above all, for the enduring dependability of the Ford V-8 Engine.

This power plant asks for no coddling, needs no nursing when the going is tough. Smoothly and silently it takes the grades in its stride. It's engineered to stand the gaff . . . to do a great job dependably and on mighty meagre rations of gasoline and oil.
