Town Of Amherst Debentures

to yield 5 p. c.

We offer in lots to suit purchasers a block of Town of Amherst 5 p. c. Debentures, due July 1. 1943, price par and interest.

The fact is so well known that it is hardly necessary for us to say that Amherst is one of the most progressive and prosperous industrial centres in Eastern Canada. A larger number of different industries are located there than are to be found in any town in the Maritime Provinces.

The population of Amherst, according to the census of 1911, nearly doubled that of 1901.

The total net assessment for the year ending December 31st, 1913 was $3,889,094 and bonded debt, other than water and sewerage, $294,500.

...*The lobster factories are giving the finishing touches preparatory to closing up for the season. The year's catch has not been as good as expected, though a fairly good percentage of profit is shown.

...*NEW RESIDENCE.—Mr. Willie Fraser, Lakeville, is getting his splendid new residence well under way, Mr. Fred Stewart has the contract for finishing the wood work and has orders to hustle it to completion.

...*PROFESSOR THEODORE ROSS will address an agricultural meeting in the school at Lewes, Lot 60, on Friday, July the 18th, at 7.30 p.m., for the purpose of organizing a Farmers' Institute in this section. Everyone interested is invited to be present. Farmers' Institutes are now organized in nearly every part of the Province and are receiving considerable grants of money to assist them in the purchase of pure bred live stock and carrying on co-operative enterprises generally. There is no reason why the farmers in this vicinity should not share in the grants, and every person should make it a point to attend this meeting and come prepared to join the institute. 306.

...*King's County District Lodge No. 1 I. O. G. T. met in annual session in connection with Prince Albert Lodge at Murray Harbour South on July 4th at 1.30 o'clock p. m., with the district Chief Templar Bro. George Houston in the chair. Quite a large number of delegates were present from the various Lodges and a very profitable meeting was held. The general routine of business was disposed of. The treasurer reports a balance on the right side. Then followed the election and installation of officers for the ensuing year. D. C. T.—W. D. Fraser, D. Co.—W. B. Graham, D. V. T.—Edith Murley, D. GOD OF THE OPEN AIR.

(HENRY VAN DYKE.)

Thou who hast made thy dwelling fair
With flowers beneath, above the starry lights,
And set thine altars everywhere—
On mountain heights,
In woodlands dim with many a dream,
In valleys bright with springs,
And on the curving capes of every stream:
Thou who hast taken to thyself the wings
Of morning to abide
Upon the secret places of the sea,
And on far islands, where the tide
Visits the beauty of untrodden shores,
Waiting for worshippers to come to thee
In thy great out-of-doors
To thee I turn, to thee I make my prayer,
God of the open air.

Seeking for thee, the heart of man
Lonely and longing ran,
In that first, solitary hour,
When the mysterious power
To know and love the wonder of the morn
Was breathed within him, and his soul was born;
And thou didst meet thy child,
Not in some hidden shrine,
But in the freedom of the garden wild,
And take his hand in thine,—
There all day long in Paradise he walked,
And in the cool of evening with thee talked.

Lost, long ago, that garden bright and pure,
Lost, that calm day too perfect to endure,
And lost the childlike love that worshipped and was sure:
For men have dulled their eyes with sin,
And dimmed the light of heaven with doubt,
And built their temple walls to shut thee in,
And framed their iron creeds to shut thee out.
But not for thee the closing of the door,
O Spirit uncanfined:
Thy ways are free
As in the wandering wind,
And thou has wooed the children to restore
Their fellowship with thee,
In peace of soul and simpleness of mind.

Joyful the heart that, when the flood rolled by,
And seen.
The are the sins I fain
Would have thee take away:
Mean, cold disdain,
Hoarser, sullen hate,
Scorn of the lowly, envy of the great,
And discontent that casts a shadow gray
On all the brightness of the common day.
These are the things I prize
And hold the dearest worth:
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills,
Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass,
And, after showers,
The smell of flowers,
And of the good brown earth,—
And best of all, along the way,
Friendship and mirth.
So let me keep
These treasures of the humble heart
In true possession, crowning them by love;
And when at last I can no longer move
Among them freely, but must part
From the green fields and from the waters clear,
Let me not creep
Into some darkened room and hide
From all that makes the world so bright and dear,
But throw the windows wide
To welcome in the light;
And while I clasp a well beloved hand,
Let me once more have sight
Of the deep sky and the far smiling land,—
Then gently fall on sleep,
And breathe my body back to Natures care,
My spirit out to thee, God of the open air.

Leaped up to see the rainbow in the sky;
And glad the pilgrim in his lonely night,
For whom the hills of Haran, tier on tier,
Built up a secret stairway to the height
Where stars like angel eyes were shining clear.
From mountain-peaks, in many a land and age,
Disciples of the Persian seer
Have hailed the rising sun and worshipped thee;
And wayworn followers of the Indian Sage
Have found the peace of God beneath a spreading tree.

But One, but One,—ah, child most dear,
And perfect image of the Love Unseen,—
Walked every day in pastures green,
And all his life the quiet waters by,
Reading their beauty with a tranquil eye,
To him the desert was a place prepared
For weary hearts to rest;
The hillside was a temple blessed;
The grassy vale a banquet-room
Where he could find and comfort many a guest,
With him the lily shared
The vital joy that breathes itself in bloom
And every bird that sang beside the nest
Told of the love that broods o'er every living thing.

He watched the shepherd bring
His flock at sundown to the welcome fold,
The fishermen at daybreak fling
His net across the waters, grey and cold,
And all day long the patient reaper swing
His curving sickle through the harvest gold.
So through the world the footpath way he trod;
Drawing the air of heaven in every breath;
And in the evening sacrifice of death
Beneath the open sky he gave his soul to God.
Him will I trust, and for my master take;
Him will I follow; and for his dear sake,
God of the open air,
To thee I make my prayer.

From the prison of anxious thoughts that greed has builded,
From the fetters that envy has wrought and pride has guilded,
From the noise of the crowded ways and the fierce confusion,
From the folly that wastes its days in a world of illusion,
(Ah, but the life is lost that frets and languishes there:)
I would escape and be free in the joy of the open air.

By the breath of the blue that shines in the silence o'er me
By the length of the mountain-lines that stretch before me,
By the height of the cloud that sails, with rest in motion,
Over the plains and the vales to the measureless ocean
(Oh, how the sight of the things that are great enlarges the eyes)
Lead me out of the narrow life, to the peace of the hills and the skies.
While the tremulous leafy haze on the woodland is spreading,
And the bloom on the meadow betrays where May has been treading;
While the birds on the branches above, and the brooks flowing under,
Are singing together of love in a world full of wonder,
(Lo, in the marvel of Springtime, dreams are changed into truth:)
Quicken my heart, and restore the beautiful hopes of youth.

By the faith that the flowers show when they bloom unbidden,
By the calm of the rivers flow TO A GOAL THAT IS HIDDEN,
By the trust of the tree that clings to its deep foundation
By the courage of wild bird's wings on the long migration,
(Wonderful secret of peace that abides in Nature's breast:)
Teach me how to confide, and to live my life, and rest.

For the comforting warmth of the sun that my body embraces,
For the cool of the waters that run through the shadowy places,
For the balm of the breezes that brush my face with their fingers,
For the vesper hymn of the thrush when the twilight lingers,
For the long breath, the deep breath, the breath of a heart without care,
I will give thanks and adore thee, God of the open air.

These are the gifts I ask
Of thee, Spirit serene:
Strength for the daily task,
Courage to face the road,
Good cheer to help me to bear the travellers load,
And, for the hours of rest that come between,
An inward joy in all things heard

COAL MINERS' STRIKE MUST GO ON

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 14.—Hon. W. T. Crothers, Canada's minister of labor, has returned from Nanaimo, having been unsuccessful in assisting settlement of the coal miners' strike on Vancouver Island. He intimated to-day that he could not officially interfere as the only question at issue is the recognition of United Mine Workers of America. The situation on Vancouver Island, from the union standpoint, is getting worse instead of better. At Cumberland, the Canadian collieries have 75 per cent. of normal force of payroll filled with non-union men. What to do with these workmen in case of a settlement with the union is one of the difficulties in the way of any settlement.

AN investment which affords an abundant margin of safety, gives a six per cent. return, or a trifle over, is readily convertible into cash, and aids in the development of the young country on which his material well-being depends—surely such an investment merits the careful consideration of the thinking investor in Canada.

It exists in the form of the better class industrial bond—of which the six per cent issues, of the Maritime Nail Company, Carriage Factories Limited, and Brandram-Henderson Limited may be taken as excellent examples.

The first and second are in $500 denominations and the third in $500 and $100. At present prices their yield is 6 p. c., and 6 1-4 p. c. respectively.

The all-round attractiveness of this industrial trio cannot be gainsaid. Immediately upon your indication of interest we shall be glad to inform you fully of the reasons we recommend their selection. Write NOW—or if not convenient, cut out this advertisement as a reminder to do so before the day is gone.
