THE HOUSEWIFE AND HER ACTIVITIES

We cannot all be preachers. And away with words or pen. As strong winds sway the forest. The hearts and minds of men; But we can be evangelists. To souls within our reach. There's always Love's own Gospel For willing souls to preach.

If you begin to peel onions from the top—the stem end—you will not shed so many tears over the job.

USING SOAP JELLY

Many washable furnishings cannot be plunged into the tub or washer because of their size or bulk, or because it is best to keep them as nearly dry as possible. For such things, household econo-mists have evolved soap jelly, a practically dry preparation made by dissolving shaved bar soap, packaged soap or soap scraps in boiling water and letting the mixture stand until it jells. Shampooing with dry suds is a household art that an increasing number of women are mastering.

SHELVES OF GLASS

If the windows look out onto an ugly view, screen them with floor-length glass curtains of a fabric that is translucent but not transparent. Or bring added beauty to the room and shut out the view with shelves of glass holding rows of plants in front of the windows. Venetian blinds, if the budget allows, or bamboo shades, are also effective.

QUICK SUDSING

Does that old rag need re-juvenating? Or the bedroom shades bedraggled? Freshen them with a dry suds shampoo. Those lovely crotonne covers which protected the furniture all summer will look as good as new next year if soil and grit are thoroughly washed out.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Peeps Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It. The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you would if you had healthy and strong, yet feel doped, tired and peevish. Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to get the energy in your body and give you going power. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today.

Girls Demand Too Much Dorothy Dix Why More Men Do Not Marry

Girls of Today Expect Their Husbands to Provide too Much in the Way of Luxuries and Romance, Hence Men Are Shying Away From the Altar and Halter

A young man attributes the decline and falloff in matrimony to women demanding so much more of their husbands than they used to do, and it being so much harder for a man to make good as a husband nowadays than it was in the past.

"In those good old days," he said "matrimony was a job that any amateur could tackle and get away with, no matter how big a duff he was. But now a man has to have taken a college course in husbandry and have a certificate from his previous wife and his union card before a girl will even consider taking that short, fatal walk to the altar with him. And even then he doesn't know when she is going to fire him because he doesn't come up to her expectations.

"Why, in Grandpa's time any man who fed his wife and didn't beat her was considered a good husband. And, if in addition, he treated her with common politeness and paid her a few compliments couldn't get another pair of slippers in her closet without she is going to fire him because he doesn't come up to her expectations.

"But is the modern woman satisfied with that sort of a mate possessing only a few primitive virtues? Are they only the background upon which she expects him to superimpose all the charms and attractions of the glamor boys of the screen.

"Of course, Mrs. Up-to-Date expects her husband to be a good provider. And how! Grandpa had one new hat a season. Grandpa considers marriage a failure if she doesn't have a dozen. Grandpa's everyday pair of shoes and another pair for Sunday. Grandpa's daughter expects him to slip on slippers in her closet with a shoehorn. And it is up to husband to provide these, with gowns to match, if he wants to qualify in the good-husband class.

"Then, husbands in the past were not expected to combine the professions of the gigolo and the bread-earner. When Grandpa got home from a hard day at the office, bone-tired and with every nerve worn to a frazzle, he could look forward to a good dinner and an easy chair. He finds his dress clothes laid out on the bed, his wife all dolled up ready to drag him out to dinner at the Borems or to some night club. If he grumbles about going she bewails the dullness of her life and his selfishness in never being willing to do anything to amuse HER.

"Also, in the past it was no part of a husband's business to keep up a flirtation with his wife after they were married. He cut out the chore when he understood her board and shopping ticket for life. He took it for granted that, having ordinary, human intelligence she would gather that he still loved her as long as he punched the home time clock regularly and worked his fingers to the bones to give her fur coats and automobiles and such like.

"But does the modern wife let her husband say it with checks instead of orchids? Not at all. She wants both. She expects her husband not only to be a good provider but a great flirt and shopping ticket for life. He is expected to be a good provider and a great flirt and shopping ticket for life. He is expected to be a good provider and a great flirt and shopping ticket for life.

"I'm not saying, of course, that Grandpa was Exhibit A of the model husband or the answer to a maiden's prayer. Undoubtedly he was tyrannical, as men always are when they can get away with it. Probably he had much trouble to entertain and amuse his wife and be companionable as men do now. But if Grandpa didn't come up to Grandpa's expectations she locked the secret in her heart and turned a contented face to the world. She didn't broadcast her grievances and she didn't rush to the divorce court and break up her home.

"And maybe it was because the women in the past were not so hard to please in the husband line as the modern girls are that they got married. It is realizing that his wife is going to expect him to be a combination of Henry Ford and Robert Taylor and Fred Astaire and Job that gives the common or garden variety of man cold feet when he thinks of marriage."

Are You Eligible to Cast First Stone?

Dear Miss Dix—I am in love with the sweetest girl in the world. She is everything that I could ask for in a wife except that there is a blot on her past of which she has told me. All my life I have dreamed of the girl I married being chaste. Feeling this way, would our marriage be a success. Can one little thing like this completely disqualify a beautiful companion? A man told me that if I were broad enough I could forgive a mistake of this kind in the one I loved so dearly. Was he right? DOROTHY DIX.

Answer: Yes, provided you really are broad-minded enough to forgive and forget. You need never be afraid of that kind of a girl going astray a second time. And, after all, has your own life been so perfect that it gives you the right to throw the stones? DOROTHY DIX.

NEEDS AFFECTION

No one loves a coddled spoiled child, but every child under the sun needs love. There aren't many parents who neglect showing their affection to their children, but unfortunately there are some. A small percentage of fathers and mothers seem to have no great capacity for love or the demonstrations of love.

The questions is, "Does it hurt a child to be starved in his natural affections?" Yes, it does. Affection like any other emotional impulse needs an outlet. It must be met half way. Otherwise we are likely to have on our hands young seekers after artificial thrills, nonconformists to society with a warped attitude to other people in general.

How to Win Attention? Teach Yourself to Tap

Know Basic Taps in One Lesson Do you dream of being the centre of attraction at school? Remember that it's the girl who knows a stunt that gets noticed—and one of the jolliest stunts is tap dancing. You'd never believe it—but the liveliest tap routines call for only a few fundamental steps, which you combine in different ways. Most tap sounds you make by striking the floor with the toe, heel, ball or flat of the foot. And all these basic steps are as simple, as quickly learned as the Pull, shown in our diagram.

1. Place weight on right foot, with right knee flexed and left foot off floor. 2. Straighten right knee forcibly and pull back right foot, keeping it flat on floor and making one sound. Soon you'll find yourself tapping away to any rhythm—from waltz to rumba, ready to do your stuff at a party or a show.

To learn to tap in expert style follow the simple directions and diagrams for tap steps in our 32-page booklet. Give practice routines, complete directions for full-length waltz, military and buck routines that will make a hit with your crowd. Send 20c in coins for your copy of Tap Dancing Simplified to The Guardian Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

COUNTY CLUB By HOLLOWAY HORN

"Yes," Ducros replied in a thick, guttural voice which was evidently meant to be an imitation of Fernandez: "Oh it's you, sir," he went on in his normal voice. "She's with you there? Good! We found the room where he had kept her just now. No sir, I'm expecting a call from Rolliter the solicitor. At the moment, I have arrested Fernandez already, sir. Very good, sir. I'll ring you as soon as we hear."

"Miss Stenning is at the Yard with her cousin," he said. "She's safe!" Dollimore exclaimed. "You two women are under arrest," Ducros said. "You will be taken to Mossford police station at once."

"Why?" demanded Sadie Pachmann. "On suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Mrs. Lewin," Mrs. Lawes burst out. "I promised that if you told us what you knew I would do my best to get you out of the country. So I shall, when I'm satisfied that you have told us all that you know. For the moment, however, it is my duty to arrest two women who are going to make any statement, and it is my duty to warn you that, if you do, it may be used in evidence against you."

"Sure it would!" snarled Sadie. "Ah!" the exclamation left Ducros's lips as the telephone rang again. "Yes," he said in the guttural tone he had previously used. "Fernandez here. Sadie Pachmann was near the desk on which the telephone was standing. She watched the proceeding apathetically. Rolliter's eyes were on Ducros and for the moment no one noticed what the American was doing. With a quick, almost a feline movement, she snatched the desk between them, and before either of the men could reach her had shouted into the telephone: "This is Sadie."

With that she replaced the telephone on the desk and faced the two detectives triumphantly. "You thought what a clever little fellow you were, didn't you?" she said with an impudent smile. "Ducros said, 'Have them taken to the local station,' he went on to Dollimore. When Dollimore returned two minutes later Ducros was once more talking to the Chief. He told him exactly what had happened when Rolliter's call had come through. The Chief concluded, 'Well start the machine running on this. It's a pretty good one. Come up at once.'
