All equipment is of the very latest modern design known to the profession, and for the comfort of its patrons. Sammie, as we all know him is one of our very popular athletes, and has an excellent war record to his credit. He certainly deserves a full measure of patronage.

Many Suspects Apprehended in McAuley Murder

(Special to The Guardian.) ST. JOHN, Aug. 12.—The search for the murderer of little Sadie McAuley continued today without any results. Several arrests have been made but the suspects were allowed to go. A man was chased by the police last night and a complete cord of police was thrown around Pollock where the suspect was said to be hiding but he had not been located this evening. Chief of Police Finley of Fredericton said this morning that he had an important clue which he thought would lead to the arrest of the murderer but he declined to make any further statement. A search is also being made around Sackville and other railroad stations along the line are being closely watched. In an effort to help the police of St. John, N. B., in their country-wide search for the murderer of 9-year-old Sadie McAuley, of that city, who was brutally put to death a few days ago, the detective officers of this city have forwarded the photographs, finger prints and minute description of a man arrested here today near the Windsor Station. The suspect, arrested by Detective Charbonneau and Sloan answers very closely to the description of the suspected murderer. He wore khaki breeches and a peak cap. He is 22 years of age, and his skin is bronzed. He has long black hair. His name has not been given but the local police authorities believe he is the man they are looking for. He was arrested during his illness. Sir William St. John police department first. St. John N. B., Aug. 11. Another day has passed and the murderer of little Sadie McAuley remains as big a mystery as ever to the local authorities. Eight suspects were taken to the central police station today and viewed by Ethel Levine, but they all were given a clean bill by her as she said that none of them resembled the murderer. The detectives are keeping the wires hot with the description of the murderer and are following every available clue to the end but so far with very little result. Fredericton, Aug. 11.—The alleged murderer of little Sadie McAuley, driver of the motor car which was his double-passed through Fredericton on the Canadian National Railway harvest excursion from St. John on the way to the west on Thursday August 4. That at least, the Gleason says, is the opinion of Donald McCormack, father of the little girl, who was on a preliminary expedition that he today, notified the police. Young McCormack says that his attention was attracted to this one individual among the passengers who he exhibited, and declared that his description tallies exactly with that sent out from St. John of the man who is said to have induced the little McAuley girl to go to another apartment house in Fredericton. He had the little moustache referred to, he was wearing khaki breeches, and the blue coat, and as soon as he read the published description, McCormack says, his mind at once returned to the party he had seen with the date of the harvest excursion was two days after the little McAuley girl disappeared.

Canadian Chilled Beef Welcomed in England

(Special to The Guardian.) MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—The two shipments of Canadian chilled beef which were recently despatched to England by the Harris Abattoir Company, Limited, of Toronto, on vessels of the White Star Dominion Line with the idea of trying out the British market, are now reported from the other side to have met with a splendid success. The meat being found in excellent condition and of first class quality. English trade journals, commenting on the arrival, hold out very encouraging hopes for the future of the industry.

Canadian Friendship Dear to Lady Byng

(Special to The Guardian.) Quebec, Aug. 12.—A few moments with Lady Byng of Vimy impresses one very pleasantly in manner and kindness of manner makes one feel right at home. Interviewed yesterday after her arrival the new Mistress of Rideau Hall presented a striking appearance, gowned in a pearl grey tulle gown with touches of green and gold white hat lined in black and trimmed with flowers. A rope of pearls and diamond ear rings were the only jewels worn. The expressiveness of her countenance was noticeable when speaking of the great pleasure it afforded her to be on Canadian soil. "I have met so many Canadians in England during the war," she said, "that I am looking forward with enthusiasm to renewing acquaintances and meeting friends here. I have at once formed a high opinion of the ability of the women of this country and the sincerity with which they accomplish their work." Referring to her stay at Rideau Hall, Lady Byng remarked that both Lord Byng and herself had been anticipating for a long time their trip to Canada and were both certain of being favored with the affection and loyalty of Canadian people.

DEADLOCK IN COUNCIL OVER SILESIAN QUESTION

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The French and British Prime Ministers are far from agreement upon the new line dividing Upper Silesia drawn by the experts appointed for this purpose by them Tuesday evening. There is a deadlock in the Supreme Council, which has had under advisement the Silesian problem, can not be completed for the present, nor is it possible to forecast the outcome of the differences which have arisen over the knotty German-Polish question. Mr. Lloyd George, upon receiving the Sinn Fein reply by air courier this afternoon, and finding that the Silesian situation promised new difficulties, said he could remain no longer in Paris, but would return to London tomorrow for a cabinet meeting Saturday, leaving Lord Curzon and the experts behind to continue work with the other members of the council. The Italian delegates made an effort to bring about a settlement at a dinner at which Mr. Lloyd George was present tonight, but a member of the Italian delegation informed the Associated Press correspondent after the dinner that developments had reached such a point that there was no possibility that the Italians or any other mediators could do to alter the situation until after the meeting of the French Cabinet tomorrow. The Italian delegation is remaining in Paris in the expectation of attending another meeting of the Supreme Council, possibly Saturday. The British delegation issued the following statement after the disagreement: The experts have rendered their report, pointing out certain townships which are inseparably connected. Certain differences of opinion have developed between the British and Italians on one side, and the French on the other, and the proposal of the British and Italians now will be considered by the French Government, which in due course will indicate its views. "In the meantime Mr. DeValera's reply has been received, and Mr. Lloyd George is returning to London tomorrow morning to deal with it. Lord Curzon will return at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The correspondent requested Mr. Lloyd George's interpretation of the situation. He said that an hour after the first statement was received from the British Premier, saying that Lord Curzon would remain in Paris with the experts and that Mr. Lloyd George would meet Mr. Briand tomorrow morning before leaving.

His widow was at his bedside during his illness. The funeral will take place from the family residence, Market Street, Sunday afternoon at 1.30 p. m.

King Hard Hit by High Cost of Living

LONDON, August 10.—King George has been hard hit by the increased cost of living during and since the war. This statement was made in the House of Commons tonight by Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, Government leader, who said that the King's civil list, the sum provided from public funds for the expenses of the royal household had shown a progressive deficit for several years. The deficit in 1919 was 2,500,000 and it probably would be greater in 1921, despite a reduction in the state functions and the strict economy which the King had initiated. King George had been meeting the shortages of a fund he had accumulated for such an emergency and had refused to give his consent to a suggestion that the Government temporarily increase the civil list, being unwilling to involve the public with an additional charge in view of the serious state of the national finances. King George also had favored a material reduction in the ceremonial splendor traditionally associated with the British Throne, but the Government had advised him that the reduction of the civil list would be a blow to the prestige of the monarchy and the great mass of the people would prefer to maintain the customary dignity of the Crown. Meantime great economies had been introduced in the royal household, and although costs had doubled, the King expenditure was only 14 per cent. greater than in 1910, and the King believed further economies were possible and was appointing a committee to examine into the question of salaries, maintenance of palaces and other expenses, hoping that an appreciable reduction would enable him to avoid asking for an increase in the civil list. Mr. Chamberlain, recalling that the King in 1916 voluntarily contributed 100,000 pounds to the national treasury, said King George wished to make further contributions but that the Government had advised that he contribute to public charities instead of to the exchequer.
