FOR THE WOMAN READER

CERTAINTY The road of right has neither turn nor bend, it stretches straight unto the highest goal; Hard, long and lonely?—yes, yet never soul Can lose the way thereon, nor miss the end. —Priscilla Leonard.

A REAL MAN What this country needs is not a job for every man, but a real man for every job

GOOD DEEDS Let thy good deeds be invested like a treasure deposited in the ground, which thou canst not bring to light, except it be necessary.

ANGER Getting angry with any one will never get you out of a bad deal, but it will get you in where you cannot get out without cost that you cannot afford to pay.—V. A.

MANHOOD True manhood is only attained by him who has learnt to live in the lives of his fellow-men.—Dr. Momeré.

A LOOK A valiant man's look is more than a coward's sword.

REMOVING INK SPOTS FROM THE FLOOR Ink spots on the floor can be extracted by scouring with sand wet in oil of vitriol and water. When ink is removed, rinse with strong pearl-ash water. Both of these commodities may be purchased at the drug store.

PAINT STAINS ON WINDOW GLASS Rub the paint spot well with hot vinegar until it entirely disappears.

SILVER TEA AND COFFEE POT When putting away those not in use every day, lay a little stick across the top under the cover. This will allow fresh air to get in and prevent mustiness of the contents, familiar to hotel and boarding-house sufferers.

TO BRIGHTEN CARPETS Carpets after the dust has been beaten out may be brightened by scattering upon them corn meal mixed with salt, and then sweeping it off. Mix salt and meal in equal proportions. Carpets should be thoroughly beaten on the wrong side, first and then on the right side, after which spots may be removed by the use of ammonia and water.

PARIS SAYS "PUT YOUR HEAD IN A BAG" "Put your head in a bag." This is Paris's latest fashion tip, but it is to keep lipstick from smudging frocks when dressing and undressing. One ingenious dressmaker is selling quite a number of small muslin bags to fashionable women who find it cheaper than paying cleaning bills for dresses which have come into contact with lipstick—the modern flaming variety—when being pulled on or off.

EGG-STAINED SILVER Salt applied with a soft cloth, will remove all the stain caused by eggs on silver.

FADED GOODS Plush goods and all articles dyed with aniline colors, which have faded from exposure to the light, will look bright as new after sponging with chloroform.

TO TAKE PAINT OUT Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will take paint out of clothing, no matter how dry or hard it may be. Saturate the spot two or three times, then wash out in soapsuds.

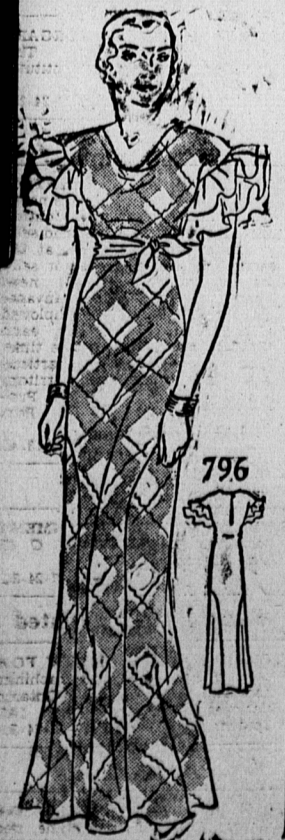

TO MAKE TIES LAST You'll soon ruin the little separate bow ties on your spring blouses if you keep tying them anew each day. An excellent way of preserving their crispness is to split the tie in the center of the back under your collar. Now put a button hole on one end and a button on the other. The tie can be removed easily without touching the bow in front.

FATIGUE AND LOSS OF SLEEP FORERUNNERS OF SICKNESS Women today do not allow themselves to grow old. There is much to be commended in the manner in which the present day woman remains young in spirit, in her actions and in her dress. Most women are, therefore, young women, but in this article we will consider only those who are young in years. Throughout life there are certain age periods during which susceptibility to various diseases is greatest.

Although tuberculosis finds its victims in every age group from infancy to the close of life, nevertheless it exacts its greatest toll at certain ages. For females, this period is between the ages of 15 and 26. What are the factors responsible for the causes that underlie a death rate which is much higher than that of young men of a similar age? In the first place, the physiological changes which accompany adolescence in women is a factor of major importance. School work and the ever increasing social activities arising therefrom also cloud the picture. Later, work in factory, office or shop to which the individual is unaccustomed also plays a contributory role. Evening does not always bring its quota of rest, or night its full allotment of sleep, which refreshes. Too often, indeed, each new day is begun with a hand-icapped of fatigue carried over from the previous day. Loss of weight, a tired feeling and a lack of color soon become evident as a result of the struggle to maintain a balance between work and play, sleep and activity. Soon a vicious cycle is established, resistance is definitely lowered and a breakdown is in the offing for on such soil, the germs of tuberculosis flourish best.

Organdie seems to be everywhere this season and it promises to be especially popular for summer evenings. Here's a charming model. It is rather princess in line, giving the figure that sleekly slender appearance. The neck has a becoming drape at the front. The crisp sleeves are adorably feminine and a flattering vogue. And you can copy this model exactly. And easy to make! It is a one-piece affair with circular side sections in the lower skirt. Sew your frills into armholes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The colour scheme is what makes it so individual. It is brown and yellow with plain brown trim. Size 36 requires 4 yards 44-inch with 1 1/2 yards 44-inch contrasting. Price of PATTERN 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

GARDENING

Time and money do not permit all to enjoy large grounds, but it is possible for all to have a small lawn around the home, with perhaps a few trees or shrubs and the odd flower bed. No matter how small the home or limited the area may be, one or two trees or the odd flowering shrub and a few flowers properly planted will impress upon the traveller or tourist that some one really lives there who cares. Writes W. W. Baird, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S. Trees and lawns and flowers not only give enjoyment to those who live among them, but they fill with pride the heart of each citizen of the town, district, county or Province in which they may be found. They give a welcome to visitors and a lasting impression that is worth while. The cost of a few packages of well-chosen seeds is small compared with the returns obtained from their effect on one's life. Many home grounds are left barren just because some one has failed to take the lead. Just break the ice, so to speak, then watch for results. They are sure to follow. As a guide for those who wish to make a start, the following list of annuals, tested at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, may be found helpful. Sweet peas, planted early, will supply abundance of cut flowers for the house. Some of the newer varieties are: Captain Blood, Cherry Glow, Brilliant Rose, Fire, Idyl, Laddie, Mrs. A. Searies, Beauty, Peggy, Ruffled Orchids, Sartin Mauve, Sunkist and Tip Top. Asters have not, as a general rule, proved satisfactory at this farm. Other annuals that have done well are calendula, clarkia, castor oil bean, Cobaea scandens, cockscomb, cosmos, coreopsis, chrysanthemum, candytuft, carnation, dimorphoteca, dianthus, gallardia, godetia, golden fether, hibiscus, jacobea, kochia, larkspur, lobelia, mignonette, morning glory, nemophila, nasturtium, pansy, petunia, portulaca, phlox salvia, scabious, stocks, verbena and zinnia. Space will not permit of the names of each, or the full list, but if you will write the Experimental Station, Nappan, or your nearest Experimental Station, the names the varieties tested will be mailed to you. Select a few from this list and make a trial planting this year and note their effect on the surroundings.

His Honour Mayor Stewart and Mrs. Stewart entertained at dinner Tuesday night for the officers of the Ville d'Ys. Premier J. D. Stewart, Mrs. Stewart and family are now in residence at their summer bungalow at Stanhope having gone out on Thursday. The visit of the Ville d'Ys made a pleasant flutter in social circles this week, especially among the young people. On Thursday evening the Officers terminated their hospitality with a hop on board ship which was much enjoyed, and regretful farewells were said as the Ville d'Ys was due to sail within twenty-four hours. The dance at Government House on Tuesday night was another much enjoyed social gathering of the week. Mrs. J. H. Howatt, entertained at her pretty home, 45 Ambrose St., on Wednesday afternoon at a tea in honor of her mother Mrs. B. D. Howatt and sister, Miss Amy Howatt. Mrs. J. W. Happenings of the Week

A tea and reception will be held in the officers' mess of the Victoria Rifle of Canada, Quebec, in honor of His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, following the laying of the corner stone of the regiment's new armory on Cathcart street, which takes place this afternoon. Government House looked charming Wednesday afternoon to the many callers who took the opportunity afforded them of paying their respects to the King's representative. Owing to the absence of Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. Murray, the Governor's daughter received, assisted by Mrs. McCready. Large baskets and bouquets of assorted spring-flowers, snap-dragon, lilacs and apple blossoms artistically arranged were greatly admired. Mr. H. C. Brown presided over the tea table and was assisted by Miss Norah McMillan, Miss Doris Prowse, Miss McGulgan. His Honour Mayor Stewart and Mrs. Stewart entertained at dinner Tuesday night for the officers of the Ville d'Ys. Premier J. D. A Morning Smile

He was no Apollo, but he attracted the usual group of Hyde Park listeners today with his denunciation of every form of Government save his own special brand of Socialism. In endeavoring to explain the budget the orator so muddled facts and figures that he audience became restive. "Gentlemen," he said, "let me make myself a little plainer." "You can't, guv'nor," shouted a heckler.

Among the visitors being welcomed by many old friends is Mrs. W. A. Hawley of Calgary, Alberta, who arrived this week on a visit to her brother Hon. George E. Hughes.

No Man Who Really Loves His Wife Will Humiliate Her by Philandering — Parasitic Children Deserve no Consideration From Mother They Have Impoverished

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married four years and have done everything in my power to be everything that a wife should, but I have just learned that my husband has had three or more affairs with other women during this time. I am bewildered and do not know what to do. I am told that all men cheat on their wives. Is this true? My husband says he loves me, but this does not seem to me possible. Please tell me what women do under these circumstances? DISILLUSIONED.

Answer: When wives find out that their husbands are unfaithful to them, they either divorce them, or else "forgive and forget," as the phrase goes, but in either event all that made marriage beautiful and sweet and sacred is gone, never to be regained.

For, if the woman gets a divorce, it is as if she had a limb amputated that leaves her a cripple for life. If she forgives and forgets, the memory of her husband's treachery is a wound in her heart that may heal over, but leaves a scar that aches and throbs until she dies.

Wives confronted with this problem meet it in different ways. If a woman has children, she often feels that she owes it to them to keep the home together if she possibly can, and thousands upon thousands of wives shut their eyes to their husbands' affairs and carry on for the sake of their youngsters. Sometimes a woman who has no money of her own and no trade by which to support herself realizes that divorce from a philandering husband will only add to her misery by plunging her into penury, so she makes the comfortable living he gives her and her place in society a consolation prize for his faithlessness. Often a woman loves a man so greatly that she has no life without him and she realizes that she will be happier even with the slight hold she has upon him than she would be if she was entirely separated from him.

But the modern woman, if she has no children, and can support herself, is likely to take a different view of the matter. She looks the situation squarely in the face and decides that she has had enough of a bare bargain and calls the marriage off. She can see no future of happiness in living with an untrustworthy man. Nor is she allured by the prospect of spending the balance of her life going through all the agonies of jealousy which every wife feels who sees her husband preferring another woman before her, who knows that he is lavishing on other women the attentions and the money that belong to her by rights.

She can see no wisdom in perpetuating a mistake. She has committed an error in judgment in her choice of a mate. Too bad. But the sensible thing is to correct her mistake while there is yet time for her to rebuild her life. No use of going on, year after year, eating out your heart hoping and praying and waiting for a miracle that will never happen that will make a weak, sensual man strong and true and reliable.

Of course, many men claim that no matter how much they philander with other women, they still love their wives. They say that their skirting-chasing is merely an adventure to pass away an idle hour, that the little dinners, the rides, the presents, the kisses and endearments simply mean nothing and are just part of the technique of flirtation.

To a certain extent this is doubtless true, but the fact remains that no man who really loves his wife ever cares for any other woman. Other women have no attraction for him, and if they did, he would be too tender of his wife's feelings to torture her with anxiety, too careful of her pride to humiliate her by flaunting another woman in her face, and too anxious for her approbation to be willing for her to know him as a traitor who betrays her.

Dear Dorothy Dix—After my husband's death I sold the farm on which we lived, as all of my children were married except one, and none wanted to live in the country. I got $20,000 for the farm, but my sons have borrowed practically all of the money from me and have not paid 1 cent back. One of my sons is sick and I have to support him. One of my daughters is in a sanatorium with tuberculosis and her husband and daughter of 11 live with me and pay no board, although my son-in-law makes a good salary. All of my children come and stay with me when they feel like it without paying anything. I am getting old. Don't you think I ought to have rest and the benefit of the little money I have left? MRS. C. O.

Answer: I think it is high time for you to stage a performance of the "Rebellion of Mother" and tell your selfish and grafting children where they get off. The one lesson that mothers never seem to learn is that their children treat them exactly as they have been taught to treat them. Every mother writes her own price tag for her children. If she puts a high value on herself, her children regard her as something fine and rare and priceless, but if she puts a low value on herself, they hold her cheaply and do not think her worth taking care of, or considering.

You see some mothers whose children wait upon them, who are solicitous for mother's comfort and welfare, and give her the best of things; who write to her when they are away from her, remember her birthday and save up their money to give her some little thing that she wants.

You see other women whose children do not treat them with even common politeness; who speak to mother as they would not speak to a servant; who make her slave for them without even the reward of a mumbled "thank you"; who never tell mother anything of their plans and who don't bother even to send her a postcard when they are away from her, and never think of such a thing as making her any kind of present.

In each case the mother is merely reaping what she has sown. One mother put herself upon
