A REAL NEED

The value of farm stock in this province, according to the last census, is approximately $8,000,000. To this may be added at least $15,000,000 as the inside value of foxes now ranched, or $23,000,000 in all. This represents an investment of about $245 for every man, woman and child in the province or $1,200 for every family.

In view of the large amount of capital involved in this one branch alone and in its allied industry, dairying, it is felt that the time is opportune for the establishment of a bacteriological office in the province, under thoroughly competent management and with the necessary equipment for analysis and investigation.

There are obscure diseases of animals of all classes which the veterinarians, be they ever so skillful, cannot diagnose definitely without skilled bacteriological analysis, and in these days of advanced science bacteriology is a distinct and definite study. Discoveries are being made almost daily and light is being thrown upon hitherto obscure diseases, their cause and the specifics to which they will yield, by the bacteriologist.

In our own province it is known that since the beginning of the fox industry litters have died, involving losses of many thousands of dollars, which might have been prevented if something were definitely known as to the nature of the disease to which foxes, like other animals, are subject. It is known, for example, that foxes are subject to worms, which, if not properly attended to, cause death. There are doubtless other diseases among them. Examination and an analysis of the blood and the different organs of these would suggest proper remedies and so save the thousands of dollars which, without these precautions, are lost and will be lost.

It was with a view to meeting this particular condition that the Fox Breeders' Association approached the Premier Matheson, a few days ago, with a request that a thoroughly competent specialist be employed to visit the province. While it is gratifying to know that the Premier has acted upon the suggestion it is hoped that he will go further and use his influence in securing a permanent bacteriological office for the province. Such an institution is needed not only in the interests of the fox business but in that of all our live stock. The time has gone by when the lives of valuable animals may be left to the superficial diagnosis of even a qualified veterinarian. Something more is needed. The best that science can give is needed and in these days science has much to give. Where millions are involved every possible effort at conservation should be made and we trust that, ere long, this safeguard will be thrown around the twenty odd million dollars worth of domestic animals in this province.

And not only to safeguard the lives of valuable animals is this precaution needed because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five and a half years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to take Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil, with out the oil and tincture iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed. We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them. Write to W. A. Foster, Central Dispensary, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

GOOD MANNERS

Lord Rosebery is a fine example of an English gentleman—being a former party leader, a scholar and an exponent of high ideals. Addressing some schoolboys at Guildford, (says The Mail), he told them that the seventeenth century produced the greatest breed of Englishmen and it coupled with this the statement that the seventeenth century set great store by good manners.

Good manners are today on the decline, he continued. Certainly to many persons somehow associate them with flabbiness of one order or another. Yet good manners are not only a sign of civility or charity toward fellow men, but also an evidence of self-respect.

The Rosebery ideal must not be lost, if only because there are many base actions which, if better than anything else, will spare those who accept it. The man who is sure of himself is almost always courteous. It is the snob, the climber, the pretender, or at best the goat of circumstance, who confuses politeness with servility, rudeness with independence. "Despite not another who is as thou wast," he towards him as towards thy equal, counselled Patah Eotep thirty-three hundred years before the birth of Christ.

The coward bluster, the man with a weak case raises his voice in argument. But the man with good manners is generally able to do without the more ignoble weapons in strife—even though he is the last one to avoid the fight worth fighting. "Manhood first, and then gentleness." Good manners are based on instinct or on education; they are more dependable when they rest on both these props. "I think all world values run directly into manners," said Emerson. Manners aim to facilitate life; they aid our dealing and conversation as a railway aids travelling.

He who prides himself on his boorishness has generally made the mistake of imagining good manners to be a veneer applied from without.

THE WRECK OF THE SCHOONER ABANA

Grief has stricken the Island, and Souris particularly, through the tragic loss on Monday evening of the schooner Abana, 76 tons, owned by Capt. Lanigan, and her crew of four off Cape Traverse. The vessel was bound for Summerside from Pictou, N. S., and was heavily laden with a cargo of coal for the railway. On Monday afternoon the sea was unusually rough, and towards nightfall the wind increased in velocity until it blew a regular gale. The sea became terrifyingly "choppy." Some people on the shore saw a schooner tossing clumsily in the distance, every moment disappearing entirely from view in the hollows of the sea. It was palpable that she was seen no more. The tide was low at the time and there were no boats afloat that could go to the rescue. It is not probable that anything could have been done for the unfortunates even if boats had been available, as no small boat would have lived in such a sea. On Tuesday a body was washed ashore, besides bits of wreckage, a trunk and a compass. Dr. Dougherty of Cape Traverse, held an inquest. The body was identified by Engineer D. McEwen and Fireman McEwan as the P. E. I. Railway as that of Capt. Lanigan and a verdict of death by drowning was returned. Capt. Jos. Lane, of Souris, aged 50; Asa Plaisdel, Grand River, aged 5, (both married men and fathers); and Jos. Wilson, 20, Souris, were the other unfortunates.

Capt. Lanigan was well known in all the ports throughout the Maritime Provinces, having followed the sea all his life. He was 65 years of age. He was a married man. He leaves a daughter at home in Souris and a son who is in command of a schooner now at the Magdalen Islands.

The deceased's body was taken charge of by Mr. Chisholm, undertaker and yesterday morning was conveyed to Souris in care of John McEwan with whom Capt. Lanigan was intimately acquainted. The Captain's boots were washed ashore as also a life-buoy, and it is presumed by some that he had made an effort to save himself by jumping overboard. There is nothing to bear out this presumption, however, and the

Dr. Delaney and Mr. J. P. Smith returned yesterday from Lot 16, here they had visited the ranch of A. E. McLean on which the foxes of the Delaney-Smith Silver Black Foxes, Ltd., are being kept and were pleased to find excellent results. The company own two pairs of foxes and both have litters of four each. The prospects are therefore good that the shareholders of this company will receive a handsome dividend. It is the intention to enlarge the company, which there should be no difficulty in doing after such success. The Doctor and Mr. Smith also report excellent results in the A. E. McLean Co., Ltd., where being 17 pups from three pairs of last year foxes, one having 7 and each of the others two others 5 pups; here being besides other smaller litters. These are excellent results and speak well for the management of the ranch.

AROUND THE FUR RANCHES

The Crapaud Fox Ranching Co., Ltd., and the Crapaud Patch Fox Co., Ltd., report some large litters in their respective ranches.

Mr. J. W. Callbeck, Secretary-Treasurer of the Magic Silver Black Fox Co., Summerside, reports another good year for this company. Since it was established in 1910, this company has always had its full share of success, and the results achieved this year are fully up to the average, there being now on the ranch at North Bedouque, which is under the management of Mr. Wilfred Lecky, no fewer than thirty-one pups, comprised in six litters this season's progeny of the eight pairs of breeders the company possesses. Three litters have 6 pups each, one 5 and two 4 pups each.

Two fur farming concerns of Eastern Canada have taken out licenses in British Columbia to trap during the summer months for black and silver fox for breeding. Both of the companies, it is said, are in the hands of experienced men who have made a success of fur farming on Prince Edward Island. A third company is now in process of formation. The first to apply for a permit was a company in Alaska known as the Allyn Trading Company and the company has already secured a number of valuable foxes to start with. The second company to take out a permit is under the control of Messrs. Hyland and Prendergast, two well-known men said to be from Prince Edward Island, and is a subsidiary company of one of the successful Prince Edward Island companies. The third company which is arranging to do business here is to locate at Port Fraser. A feature of its business will be that it will ranch foxes for other people under the care of a competent man from Eastern Canada who has made a study of fox-breeding.

Through the kindness of His Worship Mayor Sterns, the lady students of the second and third years in Prince of Wales College were yesterday evening treated to a most enjoyable auto ride, several miles out of town and around the city. This The Guardian has much pleasure in doing. It is through acts of kindness such as this that the City gets and keeps its good name and Mayor Sterns has more than once proved himself a public benefactor. The majority of the students are strangers in the city and kindnesses shown them during their few months' stay here will never be forgotten. Wherever their lot may be cast in the years to come the acts of kindness shown them during their college days will be as golden links binding them to their native province and its delightful capital.
