DUMBELLS ADD BELLES BUT RETAIN ALL THE OLD FLAVOR

In pursuance of his policy to provide something entirely new with each serial revue sponsored by him under the banner of THE DUMBELLS, Captain Plunkett, has departed drastically from the traditional all-man revue of the past nine years and for "Why Worry?" which comes to the Prince Edward for two nights and Saturday night Nov. 18th and 17th he has added about a dozen Canadian girls to the cast of an equal number of old-time favorites, headed by Al Plunkett, "Red" Newman, Fred Emney, et al.

In introducing girls into this heretofore Eveless Eden, Captain Plunkett is simply following the precepts that had their beginning when the population of this world was one—and man had all his ribs.

There has been considerable controversy over this move since time immemorial, and there will probably be a great amount of discussion over this latest evidence that Adam was father of us all.

Captain Plunkett cleverly explains his reasons in the opening prologue of "Why Worry?" when he proffers a testimonial to the girls and women of Canada for the part which they so gallantly played in the Great War.

Of one thing we may be certain, Captain Plunkett is too good a showman to let THE DUMBELLS go backwards, or stand still. Every season for nine years he has produced a revue that was just a bit better than the one before, and he

ABBIES TRIM KINGS 5—3

Converted Touch-Down In Second Half of Game Spells Defeat for Visiting Collegians—Will Meet St. Dunstan's This Afternoon.

Using their weight to good advantage against their lighter opponents, and following up in much better fashion than in previous games, the Abbeys were able to defeat King's College footballists Saturday afternoon by a score of 5-3.

Much off-side play by both teams with the locals perhaps, the biggest offenders, made the work of Referee Trainor more of a trial than anything else. However, the slippery condition of the field, especially in the first half had a great deal to do with said off-side plays, as overanxiousness by both teams in their efforts to be up with the ball had the whistle blowing frequently, much to the discomfort of the small crowd of fans and numerous warnings and advice from the referee.

King's, although beaten Saturday by a small margin of two points, showed signs of excellent football, and had their half line show more snap and judgment in passing, the game may have taken on a far different aspect. The visitors' forwards worked heads-up and tackled hard, but this good work was off-set by individual line running by the halves, who could have done far better had they passed the ball more often.

On the other hand the Abbegets played a far different half line game. Their passing was good, but first and foremost, the superb kicking of W. J. McDonald and Saunders outside all other plays of the game with the exception of Partridge's sensational run for a touch-down. This remarkable piece of work by the fast and heady quarter-back was easily the feature play of the game.

There wasn't very much to choose between the relative merits of either team; a lucky break here there would easily have turned the tide one way or the other. As it was, King's lost what looked like a certain touchdown when Andrew Partridge got hold of the piskin to duck, dive and worm his way through for twenty five yards and dropped on the ball for a series of passes by quarters and halves. THE SCORES

After ten minutes of play, with King's forcing the issue and having a decided edge in territory, Godfrey following up a dribble on the Abbie five-yard line, blocked O'Neill's kick to save, the oval rebounding over the touchline to be quickly retrieved by Godfrey who dropped on the ball for the first touch. The convert was not realized. The Abbegets, although coming within an ace of scoring in the last five minutes of play in this McCordrick Park game, were forced to obey the rest Hart whistle on the short end of a 3 to all count.

Things took on a different turn in the second half, when the locals went on the offensive at the kick-off to give the invading Collegians a merry twelve minutes in defending their lines. And like a ball from the blue, after a series of passes by quarters and halves, Partridge got hold of the piskin to duck, dive and worm his way through for twenty five yards and dropped on the ball for a series of passes by quarters and halves. Partridge got hold of the piskin to duck, dive and worm his way through for twenty five yards and dropped on the ball for a series of passes by quarters and halves.

Mr. John Lightizer, an ardent follower of the game, objected very strongly with regard to the fans' behavior in the stands, and crowding the field during the game. His objection is well taken as this sort of behavior is not only unfair to the players but it tends to interfere with the referee's endeavors to skirt the touch lines.

Whoever handles today's game in the capacity of referee would do well to hold the game up until evening person, with the exception of touch judges, is on the stands—outside.

No favorites are played on the football field—and it is a safe bet that no favorites will be played along the touch lines today.

The respective dressing rooms too, should be cleared of everybody but players and coaches. Crowding the dressing rooms is becoming a nuisance and officials should see to it that said nuisance is looked after this afternoon.

Now, let's go! And fans, please try and play the game.

King's College pigskin chasers are sportsmen in every sense of the word. This was exemplified by lou clapping when Saunders converted their touchdown which put the Abbegets in the lead in the second half of the game.

Insidious Eye Strain

We use this adjective advisedly. Sufferers from Eye Strain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect. The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy. Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye Strain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.
