Consumer Credit Board Regulate Bills

"Do people collect bills. My grocer told me if I did not pay my bill he would hand it over to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for collection?" This is one of the many queries received at the Prices Board office in Charlottetown this week.

The answer is: "Definitely not," according to an official of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. "No storekeeper has the right to make such a statement and in doing so he is flirting with the law. It is an infracton of the law for a merchant to so threaten the customer," he added. In such cases the customer should supply the particulars and the name of the merchant to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Under the Consumer Credit regulations of the Board, all accounts are required to be settled before the 25th of the month following that in which the purchase was made. For instance a person who charges goods at a store on August must pay for them before September 25. If he fails to do so he cannot procure any further goods from that store on credit. There is nothing in the regulations, however to prevent him from getting further goods by paying cash nor is there any ruling that says the Prices Board will make him pay the bill.

A few of the other queries received within half an hour by the Board office were: What can I charge for Canned Beef? What should my selling price on honey be? How much profit am I allowed to make on creamery butter? What is a reasonable rate for a large furnished room? What about the potato subsidy? The answers to all of these and many other questions appear from time to time in the Guardian column "A Job Only You Can Do", which is sponsored by the Women's Regional Advisory Committee, as well as through the regular columns of this paper.

DUTCH LAST RITES

People in Holland at one time hung an unlighted lantern before a home in which a person had recently died.

A far cry from the day when youngsters were afraid of policemen is this news item from England which tells of a Boy Scout Troop which meets regularly in the charge room of the local police station.

The 15th Torquay, England, Boy Scout Troop recently celebrated their tenth anniversary. Sad to say their Troop headquarters was blitzed on the night of the anniversary.

So many Canadian Scout leaders have enlisted in the armed forces that the problem of leadership has become acute. At Truro, N S., however the problem has been solved by British Scouts serving at the near-by R A F Training Station. Twenty-four of them are members of a station Rover Scout Crew, and they give leadership assistance to 19 Wolf Cub Packs and Boy Scout Troops in the area.

Donald Penrose of Winnipeg is only 11 years old, but he has set the record for war service among all Boy Scouts in the Province of Manitoba. This Wolf Cub was recently presented with his 700 Hour War Service Badge. His war work ranged from collecting magazines, paper and fats, to sewing quilts and making doughnuts. His mother is Regent of a Winnipeg I.O.D. E Chapter.

Two Oshawa, Ont., Boy Scouts Bill Thicken and Bob Johnston through observation, presence of mind and quick action were able to save the life of a man. Returning to their homes one evening they noticed car lights shining in a closed garage. Investigating they found the car motor running and upon entering found the owner overcome by fumes of carbon monoxide. The boys immediately shut off the motor, ran the car out of the garage, removed the man and administered artificial respiration. The man, Harvey Cassidy fully recovered, and credit for saving his life was given by the attending physician to the two Boy Scouts.

New War Styles In Old Britain

By Barbara Wace
Associated Press Writer

LONDON Aug. 5 — (CP) —The war has had one striking effect on women's fashions in Britain. The lower bracket wage groups are becoming slowly and surely better dressed. Their more prosperous compatriots can buy much less than they did before rationing started because their purchases are limited. Slowly but surely the good clothes they had when rationing started in 1941 are showing signs of wear and tear. And they cannot repace them garment for garment, for they have no more coupons than their poorer sisters, even though they can spend more money on what they do buy.

A two-piece dress and short jacket would take 21 coupons, so to but it a woman would have to spend all her four month period's stock. And what would she do for stockings and underwear?

Suits Popular

Suits become more and more popular, for the clever woman realizes that she can make several outfits from one good suit by ringing the changes with blouses and sweaters. But a tailored wool suit would take 18 coupons and that leaves only two extra, which will buy neither a pair of full fashioned silk stockings which takes three coupons, nor a pair of shoes, which takes five.

But the Board of Trade has done a good job. "Utility" clothes, made from government controlled material are excellent. Two thousand manufacturers have been designed to make utility clothes, being guaranteed regular supplies of materials.

Cheap clothes in North America have always been smart, well-cut and plentiful. Any little government clerk in Ottawa or Washington would turn herself out smartly in inexpensive clothes. They might not last very long, but she could get by in them at the smartest restaurant for a special date.

Old Home Week Vaudeville Program

SOME OF THE ENTERTAINMENT FOR NEXT WEEK

The American Aces one of the world's greatest thrillers will be seen afternoons and evenings at Charlottetown, Old Home Week, August 10 to 13. The four performers who take part have been training since early youth and they will put on an exhibition in mid-air that will hold your breathless attention, balancing themselves with poles they will ride the tight wire on bicycles in various formations incluing the PYRIMIDAL. Perhaps the most difficult feat ever accomplished. You will like this act and will remember it for a long, long time.

One of the most unusual acts ever presented before an Old Home Week audience will be Stanley Beebe's Bears, Min and Bill. They are so perfectly trained as to be almost human in character. They roller skate, dance, ride scooters in fact do everything that any other trained bears will do, but in addition one of the bears walks the tight wire. The bears Min and Bill have played throughout the largest theatres, circuses and outdoor shows in Europe and United States and have been a great success wherever they have appeared They will be features of afternoons and evenings entertainments Old Home Week, Charlottetown, August 10 to 13.

The management of Old Home Week are very proud to announce to our people that they have secured for reappearance the Victoria Troupe outstanding English bicyclists. They are known throughout Europe and particularly England where they toured for four years and have been in the United States for the past three years. They perform on unicycles, both high and low, bicycles playing musical instruments and presenting high comedy. They will appear in two acts afternoons and evenings of Old Home Week, Charlottetown, August 10 to 13.

As one of the attractions of Old Home Week, Charlottetown, Aug. 10 to 13, the celebrated Adonis of the tight wire, Don Francisco, scion of distinguished family has been secured. For years he was featured with Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey circus and has toured the principle cities of Europe. By royal command giving performances before the King and Queen of England in 1939. He is the world's leading exponent of tight wire walking and what he can do in that line is really amazing. Watch him at afternoons and evenings performances, Old Home Week, Charlottetown, August 10 to 13.

Lou Skuce cartoonist extraordinary who was such a success at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, three years ago will be seen at Old Home Week, Charlottetown August 10 to 13. This lightning cartoonist can portray any character with a few deft touches and you will be amazed and interested to see the variety of subjects that Skuce can draw.

Most of the big fairs in the United States and Canada are giving a military tinge to their entertainemnts. That is to say detachments of the Armed Forces carrying out drills, or entertainment groups are taking part in the programs.

No Old Home Week entertainment is complete without a good revue. This year the management will present before it's patrons at Charlottetown week of August 10 to 13, the Paramount Revue. This gorgeous revue of ten beautiful young damsels will how some of the latest and most modern dance routines. There will be an excellent master of ceremonies, a very fine dance team, beautiful scenery

The management of Old Home Week and Provincial Exhibition have therefore great pleasure in announcing that they have completed arrangements with the Canadian Women's Army Corps (C. W.A.C.) to have their celebrated Precision Squad and entertainment group appear on all afternoon and evening programs. See these Canadian girls—perhaps from your own home town—and admire them.
