CHURCH GATHERING—Monday evening the social hall of Trinity United Church was the scene of a delightful gathering when the officers and teachers of the Sunday School were entertained at supper by the three Superintendents, Messrs G. F. Hutcheson, B. W. LePage and W.M. Rowe. Following the supper which was served by the Willing Circle of King's Daughters under the convocation of Mrs. J. A. McKenzie, the annual meeting of the school was held, at which reports were received and a large amount of business was transacted. All the officers were re-elected.

LAST SAILINGS FROM GEORGETOWN—S. S. "Dominion Shipper" sailed from Georgetown Sunday morning for New York with a cargo of potatoes. The "St. Theresa" and the "Anders" sailed from the same port yesterday afternoon for Charleston, South Carolina and Havana. The steamer "Tern" is at Georgetown awaiting favorable weather for loading. She will load about 30,000 ninety pound bags of potatoes for Havana from the Potato Growers Association. She will be the last steamer from that port this season, during which fifteen steamers have loaded cargoes there. The harbor is reported to be still clear of ice.

A Real Asthma Relief Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has never been advertised by extravagant statements. Its claims are conservative indeed, when judged by the benefits which it performs. Expect real relief and permanent benefits when you buy the remedy and you will not have cause for disappointment. It gives permanent relief in many cases where other so-called remedies have utterly failed.

Card of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. W. H. Egan wish to thank their many friends and neighbours, who by beautiful floral tributes, messages of sympathy, and other acts of kindness, did much to lessen the sorrow of their recent sad bereavement.

- The following is a list of the floral tributes:
Pillow—The family.
Wreaths—Harry and Edna, Charlie and Sadie, Mr. George Sigel, Dorchester, Mass., Mrs. A. E. Campbell and boys, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Roper, Princeport, N. S., Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Rotman, Dorchester, Mass.

BALANCE OF TRADE

Str—"Student" in a long letter consisting mostly of stereotyped phrases about money, wealth, etc., carefully avoids answering my question "If all transactions were based on these lines where, or to whom, would the $150,000 worth of merchandise be sold when the original $100,000 paid for the wheat was all the money in the country?"

Your correspondent says that I seem to think that the one hundred thousand dollars paid for the wheat was the only money in Canada. I took the transaction by itself and showed that it could not be done, and if all transactions were carried out on similar lines the net result would be disaster.

The letter in which he makes such a futile attempt to answer my question "Student" argues that "when the first cargo of wheat was exported and payment brought back in goods the transaction was completed, the wheel had made a complete revolution." This is not the case, the wheel does not make a complete turn until the merchandise reaches the farmers. This completing of the transaction is what is troubling your correspondent, and he strives to avoid it.

"Student" appears not to be satisfied with the answers he has already given as he has written several explanatory letters, which may pretend to show knowledge and searching of text books but as for explaining or answering the question, they are as futile and meaningless as the initial answer "That all international trade is and must be conducted on these lines and cannot be conducted on any other lines."

Your correspondent, not satisfied with trying new theories in economics tries to introduce a new departure in the ethics of newspaper correspondence when he says "First I said it was important and that I did not understand and later I said it was very simple, and gave the answer. I plead guilty to the charge." He also admits purposely changing my question. When caught in this trap of his own making he very properly admits it. If he had not been caught what would he have done? A correspondence carried on in this manner cannot be much benefit to your readers and for this reason I will take no further notice of your correspondent who signs himself "Student."

HOCKEY

On Saturday, Jan. 5th, the Bumble Bees of St. Herbert journeyed to Pownal, where they played a friendly game of hockey with the Pie Eaters of Pownal.

Presentation to Rev. MacDonald

At the close of the evening service on Sunday last, Rev. J. J. MacDonald, Pastor of St. Paul's, Summerside, was presented with the following address, accompanied with a purse containing $250.00, the gift of the parishioners of the parish, of $70.00.

This was supplemented by the presentation, on the part of the ladies of the parish, of $70.00. Father John, who was completely taken by surprise, made a fitting acknowledgement of the great generosity of the donors, and spoke with feeling of the splendid spirit that the people of the parish manifested towards him since his advent among them ten years ago.

He also referred to their charity towards the poor, and to their marvellous co-operation in every project that he undertook in the parish since coming among them.

The Address:
To Reverend John James MacDonald, Summerside, Prince Edward Island.
Dear Reverend Father—At the beginning of the New Year every Christian and daughter wishes to express to their natural father and mother their wishes for a bright and prosperous New Year, so we also, your parishioners, desire to express to you, Reverend Father, our good wishes and gratitude for the deep interest, which, for the past ten years you have taken in our spiritual and material welfare.

We share today in the sorrow which Divine Providence has destined to afflict you in the loss of your brother, and join with you in fervent prayers for his eternal rest. That such sorrows should assail you when you are not in your usual good health, we heartily feel, but we render thanks to God that you are now improving and will soon be restored to perfect health.

But, desiring all these transitory clouds, your bright career of forty years in the ministry of God, brings rejoicing to the hearts of your many friends, and satisfaction to yourself and your superiors.

Many a child, by the virtue of the Baptismal Font, has received its spiritual life from your hands; many a troubled soul resorted to God by your words of consolation; many a heart inflamed with love and charity in the reception of the Blessed Eucharist from your consecrated hands; many a happy home created by the holy ties of matrimony and sustained by your wise counsel; many a dying soul returned to God by your prayers and holy Union.

Forty years ago, when youth, refined nature and college attainments proffered you renown, wealth and pleasures in many worldly avocations, obeying the call of God, you chose a life of humility, sacrifice and abnegation and entered into the service of God—the Salvation of soul.

Endowed by Nature with a pleasing personality, and gifted in oratory and sacred eloquence, your sermons and instructions always left in the minds of your hearers, a deep impression and assured guidance.

The culture and knowledge acquired in your many travels, and so gladly imparted to us in your lectures, brought us closer to the Holy See, and revived in us the everlasting racial ties and historical pride which binds us to the land of our forefathers in the Old World.

But not alone in our Spiritual welfare were you concerned, for realizing the importance of developing in the young, Christian faculties in a sane and sound body, you always took a deep interest in salutary recreation and participated in many manly sports.

Your generous heart rejoiced in our social entertainments and material achievements, and as a token of gratitude and appreciation for all that which you have done for us, we beg of you to accept this little gift.

May Divine Providence keep you long, healthy and happy in your fruitful ministry.

BRYDGES

Mrs. Strong's, Mrs. Strong's residence is at 90 Brighton Road.

She was in town on the evening of the 6th with her sister. She left on return at ten minutes to ten. It took about 15 minutes to get home. Her sister went half way with her. When she had reached a point just the other side of Dr. Jenkin's residence and not very far from Mrs. Strong's residence someone grabbed her on the mouth and knocked her down. It was a dark rainy night. Her assailant dragged her as far as the gateway where there were bushes and burdocks, and every thing. "He said if I did not do as he wanted he would choke me," stated witness. "He then got on top of me, put his fingers in my mouth, and tried to choke me. I bit his hand. Then he hit me on the chin making it bleed. He said if I didn't lay down right he would kill me; he had a knife in his pocket. I said 'go ahead and do it.' Then he dragged me across the road, under a log. I hit my head against it, and it hurt me. Then I saw I was on the road going into Victoria Park. He tried to get on top of me. Then he got up and left. I saw him going across the Victoria Park running. I recognized him. I saw him in town last winter. That is him, in the box there (pointing to the prisoner.) He was dressed in a black cap, light brown coat and long pants. He was dark, and clean shaven and short.

Question further by Counsel as to occurrence in the course of the assault, witness said: "He was trying to pull my clothes up—my dress. He did not touch my underclothing. He was trying to get on top of me; I was trying to get away from him. I turned on my side, and he was trying to lay me down again—to turn me on my back. While I was there by the log he didn't speak to me at all. At this time, he had his hand over my mouth, and was trying to drag me further. When he ran away I got up and saw a girl coming along. I did not know her then but I do not. It was Violet Owen. She assisted me to Mrs. Strong's. My clothes were all wet, full of mud and full of burdocks. I told Mrs. Strong what happened; also Miss Owen part of what happened. I told her that a fellow I didn't know had knocked me down. Mrs. Strong when she was told telephoned for the police. The police officers came, and left a little later. Witness went to the police office afterwards when she was able to identify the man who knocked her down and dragged her across the street. "He is over there now in the box," she said. Witness was quite sure of it.

Cross examined by Mr. MacKinnon: "It was raining heavily that night. On my way out I went along Euston Street. I saw this man before—a year ago. I met him in town. I knew him to see him, but had never spoken with him. I told Miss Owen that night I knew him to see him. It was dark that night, but where he knocked me down there was a light. He dragged me under the log placed across the road leading into Victoria Park. The first time he knocked me down he tried to choke me. He told me he had a knife when I was in the gateway. I have a sister (Mrs. Gauthier) at 115 Elm Avenue. I have another sister, Lena Arsenault, who worked at 90 Brighton Road who has now gone home.

Re-examined by the Attorney General witness identified the coat she had worn that night, and also the coat and cap worn by the prisoner at the time, both of which were shown to her.

Questioned as to this point by Mr. MacKinnon witness said: "I won't swear, but I am sure of it." She finally swore it was one like it. She was also sure it was the man.

Violet Owen, examined by Mr. Clare Campbell said: "On Sunday night the Rapid increase in the number of automobiles is causing an extension of highways in Turkey.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, has ordered that automobiles be parked with backs to the curb.

The United States is exporting now about $29,000 worth of goods to Iceland a month.

Finland has a money stringency.

London has a mannequin shortage.

Rhodesia has another big gold find.

The largest motion-picture theatre in Spain holds only 3,000 people.

6th I was home until about twenty prisoner's presence. I was going out to ten, when I went out for a walk. I bring Miss Arsenault in to the police towards the end of Pownal St. station to identify the prisoner. I went to the wharf, then up Water Street and brought Miss Arsenault to Street, north on Richmond Street, then the police station. She identified him, then on Brighton Road, when I had reached a point near Dr. Jenkin's residence. I heard some screaming by a girl. Then I discovered two figures who couldn't tell whether they were two women, a man and a woman or two children. They were about the same size—both short; I saw them were crossing the road. At that place there is a road leading into the park, barred off by a log fence about a foot and a half above the ground. They seemed to come from a gateway way this side of Strong's, the other side of Strong's from where I was, and they were struggling as they were coming down stairs. Asked where his coat was, he said it was on the other side of Strong's. They were coming from the people that I saw. I walked towards the people who were just by the fence on the ground to produce his cap prisoner passed him and I saw that it was a man. He was a light colored cap perfectly dry. Then into the park. The girl then got up, he said his cap was in the back kitchen. She was crying. I took hold of her, he produced it and gave it to the arm. She had blood all over her face. witness. He said his trousers were up. She was covered with burdocks, wet stairs in his bedroom. Higgins went and mud. There was mud on her face, up and brought them down. Asked if and she was just dripping with water. he was on Brighton road, he said he She had no hat on. I took her into wasn't. Witness then told him to get Mrs. Strong's. I asked her what happened; she said a man was after her. He got into the patrol and all returned. I asked her where she lived; she dressed and come to the police station, as soon as they entered it, witness told Higgins to go and bring the girl. Prisoner then said "You've no words to; I'm the one who did it," or words to that effect. Witness then charged prisoner with attempted rape, and warned him that he wasn't obliged to say anything in answer to the charge, but that anything he did say might be used at the trial. Miss Arsenault was brought to the station, and identified the prisoner, who again said "I don't know just who he was; I don't know just who he was; no occasion to send for her. I did it."

On cross examination by Mr. MacKinnon it developed that prisoner, while in the cells at the police station told witness that if he would get him off with a three months sentence, he would tell him all about some other matter—give him information, names and everything. This was on Sunday night. Up to 12 o'clock witness and Sergeant A. J. MacInnis had been in his cell. In the police station there were witness, Sergeant MacInnis, and Officer Higgins, but there was no suggestion of asking prisoner for a confession. Witness said that, in prisoner's house, he had accused him of assaulting a girl that night.

Yvonne Arsenault (General) asked by the Attorney General if she were married, replied "No Sir."

This closed the case for the Crown. The case for the defence was then opened by Mr. Donald MacKinnon K. C. He said that in the early days no man could be convicted on his own admission. Such admissions should be accepted with reservation. The prisoner claims that he could not be there at the time at which the crime was committed and will bring evidence to that effect.

The first witness for the defence was Frederick Bielel, who on being sworn deposed that he was on duty at the police station at the time that witness saw the prisoner at the corner of Pownal and Euston. It was raining that time. He told witness that he was going down to Byer's on Grafton Street to get his tea. That was the first time witness had seen prisoner that night. Witness had been out to George Thomas, near the lighthouse and had come down the North River road to Brighton road. Cross examined by Mr. Campbell, no new evidence was elicited. (The court adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.)

Guard Against FLU—Sore Throat The First Warning

Few families will escape. This epidemic constitutes a real danger. Health authorities everywhere warn the public of the danger of the common cold. "Flu" usually starts with Sore Throat. Unless the germs are killed by some antiseptic treatment a serious malady may develop.

A simple treatment is to gargle the throat three times daily with Nervilleine. The antiseptic properties of Nervilleine quickly destroy the germs in the throat. Of course if the chest is sore Nervilleine should be rubbed over the affected area—lots of rubbing—it can't burn a blister, but will bring out the congestion and break up the cold.

To prevent "Flu" or colds from gaining headway Nervilleine will prove most effective. It is hardly necessary to point out that the bowels should be stimulated and the system purged of all waste materials. For this purpose Dr. Hamilton's Pills are recommended. They act without griping or discomfort of any kind. This combination treatment of Nervilleine and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will prove a very satisfactory prevention for Grippe, Flu etc.
