SUPREME CHANCELLOR

 States Government who desired the annexation of Canada. The people of the United States do not want this. You are satisfied, and we are satisfied. We do not want to annex and adopt into our private families every good neighbor we have, neither do we want to annex a good neighboring country. You are just good neighbors to us, and we want this good feeling to continue. We have you as friends and we desire you to remain friends with us. We speak the same language; we have the same laws; in our manners and customs it is hard to distinguish us apart. I want, instead of annexing Canada in territory to annex Canadians in heart." (Loud applause.)

"Everyone whom I have met in this Province and throughout the Maritime Provinces has been so kind and courteous to me that I feel that I am among friends and brothers, and that your home is my home," he continued.

The order of the Knights of Pythias, founded by a few obscure individuals in Washington in 1844, has now a membership of a million throughout United States and Canada and the origin of the movement, the Supreme Chancellor declared, was to heal the wounds caused by the terrible American civil war in 1861-5. And there have been such an order, composed of real fraternalists, there would have been no civil war between the States and indeed there could not be any more war in the world. The basic rock of the order is Fraternity, and its very purpose is to bring men together in friendship and love. The friend of man for man is really the one thing in the world worth living for, and it is the one attribute of life that cannot be purchased. The power for good that the million members of the Order can accomplish is incalculable.

Charity was a word which the Supreme Chancellor did not like. Very often it means only the giving of money, which is the poorest form it can take. It should very often be substituted by the word Justice, in charity, means charity of tongue and action. The Order should become an integral part of every community. The trouble is that too often fraternal societies talk charity instead of stepping forward and taking their place in the front rank when there are civic duties to perform. He believed in the gospel of practical Pythianism, and that every member should first of all recognize the claims of his fellow Pythian upon him of brotherhood and friendship. Fraternity should be placed above political partisanship and above everything except the Church of God. Then will members here be worthy of the beautiful little country they are privileged to live in.

"You have a right to be proud of this island. You should love it so dearly and so splendidly that you should want to live worthy of it. To do that you have got to be man and it is surprising that there are so few men among so many human beings in the world. It is one of the mistakes of life that we are too much engrossed in our own selfish affairs to take note of our fellow man and his condition, and this Order was established to bring about a different condition from that to teach its members the value of life and the relative value of manhood."

The eloquent address of the Supreme Chancellor was received with enthusiastic applause. The speaker who preceded him were brief in their remarks but responded very effectively.

United States Consul Moenaw in his remarks said that Virginia, whence the Supreme Chancellor came, was also his birthplace.

Following the Supreme Chancellor's address several members of the Order spoke, expressing their pleasure at hearing him and extending their very warm regards to himself personally. The toastmaster in his closing remarks expressed the thanks of the members to the Lieutenant Governor and the Premier-Elect, Mr. Stewart, for their presence at the banquet and also to the management of the Hotel for the excellent repast provided.

THE PRINCE VISITS

 Wessex novel. This chapter would describe how a son of the Wessex soil, having lifted himself to greatness, joined in his town's greeting of a Prince, who afterwards delighted to honour him, and be honoured by him, in his own home.

The road into Dorchester cuts deeply between high, wooded banks. The banks were filled by children in simple, pretty dresses; while the road was kept by Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. A blazé sun from quite a blue sky brought out the colour wherever it showed among the rich green of the trees or in the heat of the flagged and bannered road. The children's sweet, trained voices rang out in the choruses from THE DYNASTS, specially set to music.

At the top of the road the Prince was received by the Mayor and Corporation in a covered stand, where Mr. Hardy had a place. His Royal Highness was then conducted, through lines of the Dorsetshire Regiment, to a new Territorial drill hall, which he declared open in a short speech. Mr. Hardy was present at this ceremony. From the Drill Hall he drove with the Prince amid the cheers of people pleased to see the young and the old face side by side, to Max Gate.

As for Mr. Hardy, he may be 80 odd, but his lined countenance bore a very alert and cheerful expression, and, if it spoke truly, he enjoyed it to the full the bustle and colour of the streets, and shared to the full the joy of his fellow-townsmen.

The house at Max Gate stands secluded among the closely growing trees that overshadow it. There was no mob at the gates. The privacy of Mr. Hardy and his guest was respected in intention no less than the fact that the photograph taken after luncheon on the lawn will be the sole record of an occasion that charms alike the fancy of the Hardy student and of the man who could not tell how Tess came of the D'Urbervilles.

The Prince visited the Wishing Well at Upway—as though nothing was to break the spell of this memorable day in "Wessex"—and took a drink therefrom but forgot to wish before drinking, as he should have done, of course.

His Royal Highness' visit was made all the more enjoyable by his receiving while at Dorchester a telegram from the Society of Dorset Men in London.

ROW OVER GERMANY

 Will Have Opposition

While it is certain that the German application for membership will meet with opposition from France and Belgium nevertheless as only a two thirds vote is necessary for membership it is certain that Germany can never be kept out once her application for membership is in.

The principal fight therefore will come on the question of on what basis she is to be admitted. Germany will certainly insist that she come in on a basis of complete equality with membership on the League Council the same as the other great powers.

However as it is certain that both France and Belgium will oppose Germany's admission on a basis of complete equality the fight will center largely on the question of Germany's immediate admission to the council.

Overtaken Vessel May Be Missing Power Boat

(Canadian Press)
 HALIFAX, Aug. 27.—The schooner J. L. Nelson at Shelburne today reports that advice from an American schooner stated that an overturned vessel was sighted and it is believed it is the missing power boat in which Port Medway fishermen set out a week ago and have not been heard of since.

The Nelson is searching for the vessel.

GREATEST FREE-FOR-ALL AT BELVIDERE

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 27.—The free for all trot which the Grand Circuit Stewards planned for 1923 has been the racing world's most remarkable series of races that has ever been seen in the history of the turf. The Great Volo won the first one at Cleveland in July but was beaten by Peter the Brewer at Toledo. Cox won again with The Great Volo at Kalamazoo and Columbus where both Czarworthy and Lee Worthy showed that they were in trim to go to the front.

At Windsor Murphy won with the Michigan bred gelding and the Meet, left White came through in front with Leo Worthy.

After another seige at Cleveland and Readville the free for all trotters will meet at Hartford on Labor Day. This event has been programmed at the Connecticut State Fair so that the holiday visitors will have an opportunity to see the champions in action.

Forty-seven year old Goldsmith Maid and Smangler met in a free for all trot at Charter Oak Park. In one of the heats Smangler reduced the stallion record to 2:15 1/4. Few expected to live to see it reduced. Today the trotters in the same class are racing within two or three seconds of two minutes and stepping the last quarters of their miles in twenty-eight or twenty-nine seconds.

GREY HAIRS AND WORRY

(Canadian Press.)
 OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—Some newspapers have hinted that President Harding's death was caused in part by the strain of his office, but by criticism of his policy. So it Agnes MacPhail, M.P., says her hair is turning grey, as reported in a speech at Stratford, Ont., she had better watch out for the "gobolings." When I went to Parliament, said Miss MacPhail, "I had but a dozen grey hairs. Now I have tufts of grey at my temples, caused by worry about what was best for the farmers and their wives."

Blithe "Mary Ellen" Smith, lecturing in England on immigration to Canada may suddenly expire if she knows that the "New Era" League of Vancouver, her constituents do "regret and disapprove" of her expedition because "they know that neither men nor women should try to get immigrants when there is so much unemployment among Canadians."

Favorites Winners On Grand Circuit

NORTH RANDALL, Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Single G. W. B. Barfoot's famous pacer added another victory when he defeated Ha Mahone and Margaret Dillon in the free-for-all pace, feature of the Grand Circuit get-away card here. The thirteen-year-old stallion was a big favorite in the betting and won in straight heats. He was driven by "Ed" Allen.

Single G. trailed Margaret Dillon to the turn into the stretch in the first heat and overtook Tom Murphy's mare to win easily. In the second heat he did not have such easy going. He took command of his small field after making the first turn was forced to stand drive in the stretch to stall off Hal Ma home, which came with a rush. Single G. was the third favorite of the day to win.

Sees Big Opportunities

 plans for Canada's participation in the Exhibition which lasts from April to October 31st, 1924, are practically completed. The Dominion Government will erect its own building, an imposing structure in Neo-Grec architecture, on a commanding site in Wembley Park, where the exhibition is to be held. Work on the erection of the building commenced this summer, and every detail will be completed when the exhibition opens to the public.

The Canadian building will be 45 feet long and 300 feet wide, with a floor space of 134,500 square feet in which the resources and products of each of the nine provinces and the two territories will be displayed. The Canadian exhibit to be financed, controlled and directed by the Federal Government is estimated at a cost of $1,000,000.

On the same site as the Canadian Government building will be two additional separate buildings built by the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, each with a floor space of approximately 10,000 feet. Plans for all three buildings have been approved by both the Dominion Government and the official architects for the exhibition.

Mr. McKinnon, who has full authority to allot space for individual exhibitors in the exhibition, is leaving Charlottetown this afternoon for Moncton and Halifax. He has already covered Western Canada and reports everywhere an enthusiastic support from business men and government officials.

Mr. McKinnon is an ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association and an honorary director of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son Pte. John W. Somers, Kensington, who was killed in action at Arras on August 28th, 1918.

There's a sacred spot in war-torn France
 Just marked by a simple cross,
 'Tis the mark of a nation's hero
 The sign of a loved one's loss
 'Tis the spot where a heart all noble
 Rests deep death a foreign sod
 But we pray his dear soul will forever live

In the mansion of our Lord,
 INSERTED BY HIS FATHER AND MOTHER

Card of Thanks

Mrs. Bruce Rodd and family desire to thank their many friends and relatives for the kindness shown them in their recent sad bereavement.
