THIS is the "IDEAL" Accident-proof Crib, designed for baby's comfort and safety and mother's convenience and freedom from worry.

Ends and sides are extra high to prevent the baby climbing out, and the spindles are close together so that baby cannot get its head between them. The side lowers to make the crib an annex to mother's bed when desired. "IDEAL" Cribs are made in a number of attractive patterns and various sizes, all strong, durable and without dangerous sharp corners or rough edges. The "IDEAL" guarantee label identifies the genuine. Sold by most stores.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties. Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre—Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00

GERMAN GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL

BERLIN, July 15.—A society of some 70 persons had been organized in Berlin for the purpose of reforming the style of men's garments. It is composed of persons from all sorts of professions and aims at abolishing trousers, substituting knicker-bockers, while coat and waistcoat are to give way to a sort of loose blouse hanging well down to the knees. Linen of all sorts is to be discarded.

The newspapers treat the matter as more or less absurd; and some of them challenge the members of the society themselves to appear in public in the new garb. The Cologne Gazette goes deeper and points out that Germany can have no influence over the world's fashions for men's clothing because of the predominance of the military uniform over civilian clothing here where even the Emperor never lays aside his helmet for a silk hat.

It thinks that the fashion for men's garment will continue to be set at London, for "a popular dandy of London clubdom has more influence in setting the fashions than the whole of this society of German scholars, artists and writers."

Wagner, the composer, was a red revolutionist in his early life and had to flee from Germany on that account. That period of his career had been recalled by a trial in one of the Berlin courts.

A little anarchist weekly, Der Freie Arbeiter, reprinted an article signed Richard Wagner, which was much in the vein of the present day anarchists in its attitude toward governments. The state's attorney saw this article and supposed that it was by some living writer of that name. He accordingly brought suit against the editor of the newspaper for encouraging disobedience to the laws and inciting to class hatred. The editor, however, pleaded that the article was a verbatim copy of one written by the great composer in 1849, and reproduced in a recent book on Wagner's early life.

The prosecutor declined to admit his plea as valid. He said he would still bring suit against Wagner himself if he were within the jurisdiction of the court, and he moved to sentence the editor to imprisonment for four months. The court, however, acquitted him on the ground that the article was only a poetical glorification of revolution in general terms, without the grave character attributed to it by the prosecutor.

Now that the cremation has been made lawful in Prussia by the passage of a bill for that purpose, a strong movement for the erection of crematories in Prussia towns has set in. Berlin is about to decide to erect one. Charlottenburg and Schoeneberg have already voted to do so, and several other of Berlin's suburbs have taken the first steps toward action. Cologne is also expected to act very soon, the city council having decided as early as the year 1907 to accept a legacy for the purpose of erecting a crematory. The city of Bonn has begun to prepare a measure for the town council authorising the erection of a crematory. Many other towns have taken the first step toward reaching a decision in the matter.

In some of these probably no crematory can be reected owing to lack of sufficient support in the city councils. The clerical party was able to ingraft in the bill in the diet an amendment requiring that a decision to erect a crematory must be carried by a two-thirds majority of the city council or other local legislative boards.

* * *

A society has recently been formed at Berlin for the purpose of stamping out bribery in business transactions. For years the newspapers have been filled with complaints of the growing practice of bribing the subordinate officials of companies and firms by manufacturers who endeavor thus to get their goods introduced. It is asserted that such bribery has grown so frequent that a manufacturer who refuses to make underhand arrangements to get his goods taken upon inital order stands but little chance of making sales to new customers. American houses doing business in Germany have especially had cause to complain of this evil.

The society which has just been organized is a national one and more than 400 individual manufacturing companies and firms, besides about 60 chambers of commerce and other commercial bodies, have attached themselves to it. It has opened permanent headquarters at Berlin, and will carry on an active propaganda against commercial bribery.

CURIOUS ABOUT THE NEW PEERS

LONDON, July 18.—There is much curiosity on the part of the politicians over the cabinet's list of potential peers. That a list has been made and is awaiting the possibility of its use in the event that it will be necessary to obtain the passage of the veto bill in the House of Lords, there is no doubt.

The government's spokesmen have said repeatedly within the last week that Premier Asquith was prepared to meet all contingencies of the situation in all details which is taken to mean that he has hidden up his sleeves two leading sources of supply, these being the eldest sons of the present Liberal peers, and members of parliament.

The proposal to innoble the eldest sons presents an amusing phase of the revolution. Peers of baronial rank think that the nobles themselves should be promoted to be viscounts when their sons are made barons. Some of the more prominent members of the lower chamber are taken, a miniature general election will be necessary to fill their places and the country politicians alike are tired to death of elections with the consequent turmoil, expense and disturbance to business. Moreover the government cannot afford to risk taking members except in safe Liberal constituencies.

The exact social status of the new peers is the subject of some speculation. The Conservatives profess to believe that they will be looked upon with amusement and contempt. One writer suggests the addition of the title of count to the British peerage for the purpose of Mr Asquith's regular lords, as noblemen created for a political purpose.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts, (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks' time, every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.
