To secure a site for a new freight shed at Sackville, N.B. the Dominion government has purchased lots of land from H. C. H. George Lawrence, Edgar Dixon and S. J. Copp. These lie some three hundred or four hundred yards to the northward of the new station house between the Intercolonial track and that of the N.B. and P.E.I. railway. A new siding will be built to connect the shed with the I.C.R. track and the shed in question will probably be more than twice the size of the existing one.

The Rev. Robert Wilson, Ph. D., of St. John, N.B., who on February 18th celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, is one of the most interesting figures in Methodist ministerial circles in Eastern Canada. Rev. Dr. Wilson has been a Methodist minister since 1853, and although on the superannuation list since 1905, he is still in good health. Rev. Dr. Wilson was born on February 18, 1833, at Fort George. His father was Sergeant Peter Wilson, of the Ninety-Third Highlanders, who came to Canada at the time of the Rebellion of 1837. Peter Wilson settled in Prince Edward Island, and his son was educated at the common schools and Central Academy, now Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown. Later he took a post graduate course in the University at Chicago. Mr. Wilson entered the ministry of the Methodist Church in 1855, when he was twenty years of age. Dr. Wilson has ministered to circuits at West Cape and Montague, P.E.I., Fairville, Kingston, Hopewell, St. Andrews, Sheffield, Marysville, Gibson, Baie Verte and Sackville, N.B., and Exmouth Street, Queen Square, and Zion churches in St. John, remaining with the last-named for twelve years prior to his retirement from active work. Dr. Wilson has been chairman of the St. John and Sackville districts was four years secretary of conference and in 1887 was president of the conference. He was a member of General Conference of 1886 and 1898, and at Montreal in the Methodist Church in Toronto in 1890. A man of great intellectual force, he was always greatly appreciated as a preacher, but he was much more than that. His writings have been not less interesting. Not only did he for many years contribute to the secular press, but he was a valuable contributor to Chamber's Journal, the Southern Methodist Review, the Preacher's Magazine, and the Treasury. He is also the author of several pamphlets and of two books, "Never Give Up" and "Tried but True," which have received most favorable notice from the Canadian press. He was for a time editor of The Methodist. In 1883 and 1884, he was a Canadian immigration agent in England. About three years ago, Dr. Wilson suffered severe bereavement in the death of his wife, who was a daughter of William Ford, of New Glasgow Road, P.E.I., and a native of Devonshire. He had been married almost fifty years.

Under the Southern Cross is the title of Rev. Mr. Ross' lecture, Tuesday evening March 3rd.

W. A. Brennan, Summerside, was in the City yesterday. He went to Georgetown in the evening.

The outward cargo by the Stanley from Georgetown yesterday included 110 packages mixed freight and 1310 bags oats.

While taking the mail on board the Stanley at Pictou on Wednesday Colin McKenzie, Pictou slipped off the gang plank into the water taking a small bag with him. He was quickly rescued and is none the worse of his accident.

The London Times makes the following reference to the death of a native of this Province who achieved prominence in the world. "We regret to announce the death, at the advanced age of eighty-seven, of the Rev. Dr. George Uglow Pope, which occurred at Oxford on Tuesday. Dr. Pope, who was one of the most learned authorities on the Tamil language of his time, was a remarkable man—one of those Englishmen who have devoted themselves to missionary work and who, while thus engaged, have done all that lay in their power to add to our knowledge of the people among whom their life was spent, and to present to those people the best side of the English character. Born on April 24, 1820, the son of John Pope, a merchant and shipowner of Plymouth, George Uglow Pope was educated atbury and Hoxton. He went out to India in 1839, and took priest's orders at Madras in 1845. After forty-two years of missionary and educational labour in different parts of Southern India, he returned to England in 1881, and in 1883 became Oxford diocesan secretary of the society for the propagation of the Gospel, and was University lecturer in Tamil and Telugu at Oxford from 1884 to 1896. Dr. Pope's life-work, as was explained by R. W. Fraser at the meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society in 1906, when he received the gold medal conferred every three years by that society for distinguished Oriental scholarship, has been to unravel the long-lost history of the life and thought of Southern India, of a race now to be found, in the words of the Dravidian scholar Caldwell, "where ever money is to be made, wherever an apathetic people is willing to be pushed aside, there they swarm, these Tamils, the Greeks or Scotch of the East." Speaking on the same occasion, Colin Morley, paid an eloquent tribute not only to Dr. Pope's industry and achievements as a scholar, but also to the sympathy with which he had cultivated intercourse with the backward peoples, as we are apt to call them, among whom his lot was cast." The subject of the above sketch, which appeared in 'The Times' of Feb'y, 14th, was a native of P.E.I. He was born at Bedouque to which place his father John had come some years previously to effect a settlement there mainly for the purpose of obtaining ship timber for use in the graving dock which he in conjunction with his brothers Thomas and Henry owned and operated at Plymouth. He remained on P.E.I. some years and then returned to Plymouth leaving his youngest brother the late Hon. Joseph Pope to carry on the business in P.E.I.
