Amazing Mile Is Feature Of Meet

Combined Track Teams Of Harvard And Yale Triumph Over Oxford - Cambridge Squad.

(By Bill King)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 9.—(A.P.)—In a record battering competition that saw Jack Lovelock, one of the British Empire's greatest runners, run a 4:12 3-4 mile race to break all competitive mile marks for this historic track, the combined Harvard-Yale track team today overpowered the Oxford-Cambridge forces and gained their third consecutive victory in the 11th meet waged by the international rivals.

the corner of Queen and Grafton streets, His Honour Lieutenant Governor Dalton took the salute. The parade then proceeded along Queen to Kent and Rochford streets, thence to the camp at Brighton Road.

Many hundreds of citizens witnessed the parade and the opinion was expressed by many old soldiers, well qualified to judge, that it was unquestionably one of the finest parades seen in the city in recent years.

Dr. Legate's sermon was based on the text II Samuel 2, 3, 11: "And the Philistines were gathered together in a troop where was a piece of ground full of lentils, and the people fled from the Philistines. But Shammah stood in the midst of the ground and defended it, and slew the Philistines. And the Lord wrought a great victory."

After graphically describing the incident Dr. Legate said: "And this is the Jewish military history is able to bring to you and me a message of help today. It takes a certain virtue of a moral kind, and illustrates it in a military way, a rare virtue, a desirable virtue, the quality of sticking to a principle because that principle commands itself to you. Loyalty, it commands itself to you. Loyalty to conviction, the fear of proving false to oneself, the determination to stand through thick and thin to that is right according to your conscience, no matter how others may say, and it shows how a man may achieve all that, how a man may morally 'stand his ground.'"

Two reasons assigned for Shammah's standing his ground were the fact that he had been brought up in the hill country of Palestine where he was trained morally and physically, and the fact that he was defending his native town with its great military traditions, "In great in, and loyalties to the things that are great, and fine and noble helps to give one a good mental and moral equipment."

In this connection Dr. Legate emphasized the importance of the reading of good literature, and added, "I look upon these new library facilities which have come to our province through the Carnegie Foundation as a veritable God-send to the people of Prince Edward Island, and I hope every one of us, old and young, rich and poor, will take full advantage of them. Faithfully used they will mean to us not only an intellectual but a moral and spiritual uplift as well."

The chief reason assigned for Shammah's standing his ground was that he regarded the stand he took as one for God. The speaker urged his hearers to regard every occasion of duty as a divine occasion, and stressed the necessity of standing fast not for the winning but also of moral and spiritual victories. "The good that is in the world today is kept alive by that selfsame spirit of uncompromising, unflinching faithfulness to ideals on the part of individuals who dare not be false to their principles."

"The gospel of the Cross of Jesus Christ was seen as the one power behind all that is steadfast for good in the world today, behind the best men, behind the best things."

LONG-STANDING RECORD BEATEN

Schoolboy Star Sets Up New Maritime Record For Quarter Mile

(Canadian Press)
HALIFAX, July 9.—Frank Nicks, schoolboy star, set up a new Maritime record for the 40 yards as his teammates of the Wanderers Athletic Club of Charlottetown and Summerside was won by the former by a score of 9-7.

Interest runs high over the debate to take place in the House of Commons tomorrow on the conference. All the delegations are looking for an inkling of Great Britain's future policy. They are eager to know whether Mr. MacDonald and Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, are going to advance further into the sterling-dollar camp or recede again toward the gold bloc.

Delegates to the World Economic Conference today eagerly awaited the outcome of the meeting of the Steering Committee, expected to declare the great parity should go ahead with all the problems originally laid out for it, while at the same time they were fully prepared to see the representatives of the powerful European gold-standard nations walk out of the Conference, to all intents and purposes.

The Steering Committee was believed ready to endorse the decision of the monetary commission's sub-committee that monetary questions be left on the agenda, and also to reverse the decision of another sub-committee which barred tariff talks from the conference. Disgruntled over the expected restoration of monetary and tariff items to the conference business, despite the failure of the United States to agree to stabilization of currencies at this time, the gold-standard nations were ready to quit the conference discussions, leaving only observers to keep an eye on the progress made.

The gold bloc tightened up its line for a possible currency and trade battle with the non-gold countries—including the United Kingdom, the United States, and the British Dominions—when at a meeting in Paris Saturday it was agreed to defend the gold standard by full cooperation between the central banks of the six great gold countries, led by France. But opponents of the gold standard saw great significance in the refusal of the Bank of France to endorse immediately creation of a great gold fund to defend the gold currencies. The London Sunday Express described this as a "hopeless" last night to save the gold standard.

Reiteration of France's determination to save the gold franc was forth coming Sunday from Premier Edouard Daladier, who promised a vigorous, daring, but never to venture money policy, to keep France's money safe. Meanwhile world conference delegates kept an eye cocked on the debate coming later today in the House of Commons, wondering if the British Government would let it be known whether—and how far—the United Kingdom is prepared to enter into any commodity price-raising policy with the United States and the Dominion.

WINS BRITISH OPEN TITLE BY FIVE STROKES

(By Frank H. King Associated Press Staff Writer.)
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 9.—Slender "Denny" Shute, 28-year-old American golfing artist with steely wrists and a steely temperament, cool as the westerly breezes that blew over the ancient linksland of St. Andrews, Saturday whipped his long-driving strokes in their 36-hole playoff for countryman, Craig Wood, by five in the British Open Golf Championship.

Shute scored 75-74-149, Wood 78-76-154 and the outcome was seldom if ever in doubt from the first hole, where Wood shed his shoes and sox, waded into the famous Swilcan Burn with his niblick and experienced the first of a series of mishaps. A pair of sixes on the first two holes cost Wood a deficit of four strokes which he was never able to offset.

Members are now looking forward to the big Maritime meet to be held here the week beginning August 7th and every afternoon many are out practicing to improve their game under the expert tutelage of the professional Mr. S. W. Lingard. Good results are being obtained, some very creditable scores being handed in.
