Fires Cause Destruction Yesterday

Two destructive fires occurred in the Province yesterday, one early yesterday morning at Victoria Cross near Montague, where the combined dwelling and general store of J. W. Morrison was destroyed.

The second outbreak occurred at noon at Allison, three miles from Murray River, where the farm residence of Neil MacCallum was totally destroyed.

riding in a small automobile. As he rode down the aisles tremendous cheers arose and lighted candles were held up, making the park a sea of twinkling points of flame.

Cardinal Lauri brought the assemblage a "very special and a great benediction" from the Pope. "I am more than pleased at this privilege to be present at this tremendous assembly of men," he said.

"I have been inspired and edified to an extent which is beyond the power of words to describe and I know that God in his goodness will bless you all most abundantly for this wonderful tribute of love and of devotion and of fidelity which you have given.

"And I earnestly pray that you will persevere always along this eucharistic path of life, that you will persevere in the resolutions which you have made during this congress, that you make Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament the principal and the frequent object of your devotion.

"And you especially, my dear young men, who are the select portion and the great hope of the Church, you who are the special object of Christ's predilection, strive manfully to live lives that are truly, sincerely Christian.

"Strive to imitate Saint John, the Apostle whom Our Lord loved more than all others because of the purity and integrity of his life, and thus you too, my dear young men, will be the object of Christ's special love, the pride of his Church, and worthy successors of your noble ancestors who won for this country the noble title of 'Land of Saints.'"

Can. Authors' Convention

OTTAWA, June 23—(By The Canadian Press)—A strong desire to co-operate with the commission contemplated by the government for the control of radio broadcasting in Canada was expressed by the Canadian Authors Association today, when the matter of radio was discussed at their 11th annual convention here.

It was shown by J. Murray Gibbon, Director of Publicity of the Canadian Pacific Railway, that the B. C. disbursed in 1930 12 1-2 per cent of their expenses, or about $455,000, on performing rights and copyrights.

Other speakers conceived it to be the duty of the Association to render all assistance to the projected commission, particularly with respect to ensuring that programmes of the highest quality were put on the air.

Election of officers found the old "slate" returned for the next year. Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott remains president; Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveylor, Montreal, and Dr. W. T. Allison, Winnipeg, vice-president; with Howard Angus Kennedy and Lawrence J. Burpee, secretary and treasurer respectively.

The 12th convention will be held in Quebec city. A proposal, approved by the Association, was that following the opening of the next meeting at Quebec, adjournment be made for two weeks, with the resumption of the sessions in London, England.

OTTAWA, June 23 — (By The Canadian Press)—Establishment of a quota on importations of syndicated matter published by Canadian newspapers, so as to include a necessary proportion of 20 per cent Canadian material being used, was suggested to the 11th annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association here today.

Some speakers charged Canadian newspapers with clipping articles, without credit, from United States publications, to the detriment of the writer concerned. This was contested by Douglas Reville of Toronto. At present, Mr. Reville said, Canadian newspapers were flooded with news items. The Canadian Press service placed at the disposal of the daily newspapers of the country more material than these newspapers could use, subsequently no necessity arose of their having to resort to "clipping," he said.

The lack of adequate agencies in this country for the handling of syndicated material was deplored by W. Arthur Deacon, Toronto. Some kind of a new syndicate should be established in Canada for the purpose of handling exclusively Canadian material. The Canadian Press, he said, distributed news, but did not pay for syndicated articles. If Canadian writers were allowed to enjoy one-fifth of the space devoted by newspapers to syndicated articles, it would be a great advance, he declared.

Newspaper editors in Canada were not inimical to publishing Canadian material, C. Leishman said. They had, however, to be educated to an appreciation of the national product. He paid tribute to the cultural activities of the French language newspapers which, in this respect, were superior, he said, to the English language press.

French newspapers and magazines in Canada never received English books to review, complained Jean Bruchet, Montreal, chairman of the French-Language section. If some system could be evolved by which English-language newspapers could translate some of the published articles in the French press, and vice versa, a great deal could be achieved for national unity.

Robert J. O. Stead, recalled that competition had forced the Associated Press of the United States into the business of syndicating its material in the way of photographs and mats. He thought the Canadian Press could take a leaf out of the A. P.'s book and institute a similar system.

The resolution was not brought to a vote, and the authors proceeded to other business. "The distinction and seek always to maintain it. 'The Holy Father sends you, my dear young men, a very special and a great benediction with the prayer that God will shower you and your families and your Ireland and his Ireland with the choicest blessings of Heaven.'"

"Stiff Back John" Dead

PRESERVED GREAT BOOTS, GARMENTS AND OTHER POSSESSIONS OF BROTHER, CAPE BRETON GIANT; HOW HE GOT HIS NICKNAME.

GLACE BAY, N. S., June 23—(By the Canadian Press)—"Stiff Back John" McAskill is dead. He was the last surviving brother of Angus, the Cape Breton Giant, whose feats of strength are a by-word all over Nova Scotia, and he died at the McAskill homestead, Englishtown, on May 21 at the age of 89.

Ten years younger than Angus, he preserved at the old home the great boots and garments and other possessions of his giant brother. A "wee man" himself, standing about five feet six, and weighing only 140 pounds, John was nevertheless a man of great strength. All the McAskill boys were strong, and John, who was the baby of the family, was no exception.

Writing in the Glace Bay Gazette, Stuart McCawley tells how the nickname by which the youngest brother was known came to be applied.

"Some years ago John was working for the government on a bridge. The bridge was over a gully, about fifty feet deep, and John fell from the top and landed on his back on a 12 by 12 pine log fifty feet below. His fellow workers thought John was killed and were surprised when they picked him up to hear him say in Gaelic 'My back is stiff. That's why they called him 'Stiff Back John'."

"John, the last of the McAskill family, is survived by a widow, a virile, splendid old lady who came from North Gut.

"John and his wife used to tell a wonderful story of their romance. 'It seems that Mrs. McAskill's folks didn't like John and refused their consent to the marriage. This interested some of the Englishtown boys and one evening a boat went from Englishtown to North Gut and they captured the lady of John's choice and took her from the North Gut to Englishtown.

"They landed successfully (and fooled the North Gutters, father, family and friends), and took the bride-to-be to the McAskill home, hoping for a jubilation and some fun. John was in bed; and when the Englishtown gang woke him up and told him they had kidnapped his lady love he said: 'Take her away; I'm sleepy!'

"The wedding was the next day and John and the kidnapped bride lived happily for well over fifty years; and now the kidnapped bride is all alone on the top of the Englishtown hill; the very last link in the historic Giant McAskill family, a nice looking good house-keeper, who is a staunch continuing Presbyterian; and has good Gaelic."

issued by the Commissar for Education that while in 1917 there were 100,000 evangelical christians, the number had grown to 6,000,000 in 1927. On the economic side the former chaplain said the remedy for Russian competition lay in the hands of other governments.

"The whole remedy is in our own hands," he said. "So long as we buy Russian products, so long will Russia deliberately try to upset markets. The capitalist nations are themselves providing Russia with the weapon it uses against them. If they ever stopped buying from Russia—within six months the whole system would fall to pieces."

"It is with their forced labor that you Canadians have to compete in selling your forest products in Britain," he said. "Do you know that in England we can buy a Russian made door, ready for hanging for the equivalent of $1.25 in Canadian money. Why, we could hardly buy the lumber to make it with in Canada for that price.

"And take wheat as another product. It is raised on collectivized farms by labor receiving nothing at all. How can you afford to compete with it in the markets of Britain? It has driven out large quantities of Canadian grain."

Red - Cross Campaign Returns

In the recent annual campaign for membership and funds for the Red Cross Society conducted throughout the province $380.50 has been received from Charlottetown, $360.13 from Summerside and $421.82 from 67 school districts.

In Charlottetown the collection was efficiently carried out by groups of ladies and gentlemen who conducted the house to house canvass and solicited the business houses. In Summerside the ladies of the I. O. O. F. again most successfully handled the campaign.

The Women's Institutes and the teachers in the rural districts have once more organized and carried out the drive in the rural districts. The Red Cross Executive is extremely grateful to the members and friends in the different parts of the province who by their continued co-operation make the work of this Society possible. Following are the amounts received up to June 18th:—
