THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

SATURDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 2 1907.

TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC IN THIRTY HOURS.

Such is the vision which has dawned upon Peter Cooper Hewitt of New York, and what he has done and is preparing to do to that end is told by W. G. Fitzgerald in the Technical Magazine. It is no fancy tale but a story of brilliant achievement and apparently bright prospect that is unfolded in the magazine referred to. Mr. Hewitt started out to build a flying machine, when like a flash it occurred to him that his invention was better adapted to the water than the air.

The swift steamships of today plow through the water, displacing the heavy fluid deep and wide. Hewitt's plan is to lift the hull by broad inclined planes, which as the boat is urged forward at increasing speed rises more and more to the surface, so diminishing the resistance. To glide over the water rather than plow through it is the general idea of his method.

His first model was a little 27-foot craft driven by a gasolene motor. When set in motion it fairly flew along the surface of the water at a speed of over forty miles an hour. He found that at high speed the hull was entirely lifted out of the water. This was undesirable and he set his inclined planes deeper, and after experimenting altered the dimensions and inclination of the lifting planes.

No marine propeller yet made is adapted for a speed of above forty miles an hour, but there is little doubt that this difficulty will be overcome. When this is achieved, the writer in the Technical Magazine assures us, "it is as clear as that two and two make four that a 200-foot vessel can be built which will go sixty to eighty miles an hour; while a still larger craft, with nothing like the power put into one of our great ocean liners, would surely bridge the Atlantic in little more than a day!"

Moreover we are told that the gliding boat does not pitch or roll but on the rough sea moves along as smoothly as in a placid lake. Mr Hewitt is the man of the hour, His next boat is expected to make seventy miles an hour. Enthusiastic capitalists and engineers are pursuing him with tempting offers. They have seen the inventor "fairly flying over the water and turning sharp corners around the yachts in Long Island Sound in a manner altogether amazing to the mariner.

Mr. Fitzgerald concludes: "It is therefore no fantastic theory, but a matter of sober fact that within a few years at most the crossing of the Atlantic, with its 3,000 miles of stormy sea, will be a matter no more serious than the journey from New York to Chicago at this hour. Yet it seems but yesterday when the bridging of the ocean in a fortnight was a thing to marvel at!"

BOURASSA AND TURGEON.

Mr. Bourassa cannot justly complain that he is called to answer a certain charge made against himself. He persists in his charges against ex-Minister Turgeon after the denial of the latter, made under oath, and his at least partial exculpation in court. On the basis of his charge against Mr. Turgeon he is now contesting the election in Belle chasse in the endeavor to keep the ex-Minister out of the Legislature.

The counter charge against Mr. Bourassa is that in connection with his services as secretary of the Alaska Boundary Commission he put in a claim for $2,200 for personal expenses, of which he has never deigned to give any account. As the hotel bills, etc. of the Commission were all paid by the Government, what were his personal expenses? The electors are usually but too ready to believe reported acts of corruption on the part of public men, and that most persons make their bills against the Government as large as they decently can.

If both charges are true Turgeon and Bourassa are both "grafters," with this difference, that Turgeon was working to get a big corruption fund for his party out of a public land sale, while Bourassa's much smaller grab went into his private pocket. If neither charge is true, and if, as Turgeon claims, the charge against him is not only denied on oath but otherwise disproved, there are still many who will believe either or any charge against a political adversary.

It remains to be seen how the electors of Bellechasse will decide between the two contestants on Monday next. The constituency is said to be an intelligent one made up of electors who are well-to-do. Bellechasse is situated not far below Quebec City on the opposite side of the St. Lawrence. In view of all the circumstances it will not be surprising if Mr. Turgeon regains his old seat by a considerable majority. If Bourassa should win, his victory would be a rather surprising one.

Seasickness Positively Cured.

A Wonderful, Harmless Cure For All Forms of Sea and Car Sickness.

For Sale at Drug Stores. Money refunded if Not perfectly Satisfactory.

A remarkable cure has been discovered from all forms of seasickness, carsickness climbing, and all nausea caused by motion, which has positively never failed.

PUMPED OUT AND HALF DEAD FROM SEA SICKNESS. PREVENT AND CURE IT WITH MOTHERSILL'S SEASICK REMEDY.

To prove that this remedy is harmless and that it can never produce any bad after effects, an analysis was made by Milton L. Hersey, M. Sc., Chemist for the City of Montreal and Analyst of the Province of Quebec: "I hereby certify that I have personally analyzed a sample of "Mothersill's Seasick Remedy," purchased by me in the open market in the City of Montreal, and my tests have failed to detect the presence of opium, morphine, cocaine or any other alkaloid or chloral whatever."

A party of six 600 delegates to the International Sunday School Association Convention that went to Rome, Italy, had a supply of this remedy on hand, and not a single delegate was affected with seasickness.

This discovery at last disposes of the prejudice so many people have entertained against the use of medicines as a preventive of seasickness.

Mothersill's Seasick Remedy is sold in 50c and $1.00 boxes at druggists. If your druggists has not got it in stock, send us the money, and we will send you the remedy, all charges prepaid.
