

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion.

CHAPTER 12 TRACKED

Terrified by the knowledge that pest of a Jackson was even now on her threshold, that he had discovered her masquerade, Lila had yielded to an overpowering feeling of resentment against Herbert. He had never seen her angry before, and she rather awed him in her white fury.

"Don't be insulting, Herbert!" she said under her breath, flashing him a furious glance. To the butler, with his, it seemed to her, supercilious smirk, she directed sharply: "Show Mr. Jackson into the drawing-room."

When the man had bowed and gone to do her bidding, she turned again to the fairly gaping Herbert: "Please do me the favor of going into the library until I have settled with this creature," she said icily, "it's your own fault that he is here to annoy me. If you'd let me attend to him this morning, as I'd arranged."

Herbert clutched her arm tightly. "Swear to me, Lila, (that you're not in love with him." She flung him a glance of contemptuous amusement. "You saw him, didn't you, at Dorothy's? Doesn't that answer your question? If not, I swear!"

He let her go, at that, she went into the drawing-room. The butler, the beautiful woman, Lila in a stunning gown, with pearls about her throat and jewels glittering on her white arms, deeply impressed Mr. Jackson. He explained humbly: "Sorry to bother you again, Miss but I'd like to get this business over with. I couldn't keep that date with you this morning, but I went up to your place around six o'clock. Nobody was home, but the girl at the switchboard told me I'd likely find Miss Latham here and here I am!"

Lila was thinking quickly, now that her first panic had subsided. It was not a perilous situation, after all. He did not know that she was Mrs. Ware or that this was her home. She stood at the drawing-room door, very cool and lovely and haughty, one hand suggestively on the knob. She hadn't asked Jackson to dine there," she said crisply, "so it is impossible for me to talk to you now. Please see me at the studio in the morning and I should be very grateful, if you would not break any more engagements with me. I too, am anxious to have the matter settled."

letters and parcels addressed to "Miss Lila Latham," most of them forwarded from her father's home. There should be nothing extraordinary about some person of Jackson's class inquiring for her as Miss Latham. And yet that look of Siddons. Herbert spoke heavily: "And now, Lila, suppose you explain about that ring."

"Have you forgotten that yet?" "No. Neither do I intend to," answered Herbert deliberately. "If you refuse to tell me, I'll ask Mrs. Varney. She is going to be at the Forsythe party tonight Jack Varney told me so himself today."

"Why," thought Lila desperately, "did I have to pick May Varney, of all people? There are others in our crowd with husbands named Jack."

But, all this time, even during her interview with Mr. Jackson, Lila's subconscious mind had been working on the ring story. An inspiration suddenly popped out, full-fledged. "Since you make me break faith, Herbert," she said, with dignity, "I'll tell you why I have May's ring. She lost to me at the bridge and she had no money. I told her it was quite all right, but she said that I must keep the ring until she gets her next month's allowance. I felt terrible about it and, of course, I was so afraid of losing it that I put it in the secret compartment—"

MALPEQUE

The Baltic school district held its semi-annual examination in its school room on June 29. Quite a number of parents were present showing their interest in the work. The various grades were examined by the Misses Smith and Howatt, of Darnley school. The teacher, Miss Anna Coady, was complimented on the work accomplished during the year. While Baltic is fortunate in securing the services of Miss Mamie Mill, of Mills Point, yet they regret very much the leaving of Miss Coady.

FOX FARMERS

Feed lettuce to your foxes.—American fox ranchers are feeding lettuce largely and have wonderful results. Lettuce contains valuable vitamins very essential to the health of the foxes. The wild foxes are able to choose their green food—but the ranch breed—many of them die, for the lack of this very important diet. We have been feeding lettuce for the last three years with the best result.

We are offering lettuce at a special low price to all fox ranchers intelligent and discerning enough to recognize a good thing.

CAMP NOTES

The P.E.I.L.H. broke camp Saturday morning after having spent what was conceded to have been one of the most successful annual training periods since the war.

The unit was inspected on Thursday by Colonel Commandant W. W. P. Gibson, C.M.G., D.S.O., on ceremonial parade followed by tactical exercises. He also inspected Camp lines, regimental office and records. The Officer Commanding the Regiment has been recipient of many compliments on the splendid showing the unit made on parade and for the excellent condition of Administrative Departments.

In the officers mess on Friday evening Colonel Gibson presented the Regimental Cups which are open for annual competition. The highly prized Proficiency Cup was won this year by "A" Squadron and presented to Major C. Graham, Squadron Commander.

The sports cup was then presented to Lt. E. W. Johnstone for "B" Squadron. In making the presentation Col. Gibson stated that Cavalry sports are best possible training for sports and expressed his pleasure at the excellent spirit displayed by regiment during sports. The cup which was to have been awarded to Squadron making high-est points in musketry was not competed for this year owing to defective ranges. It was left in the custody of Major F. T. Andrew, M. M., he being the proud rider of the horse winning the point-to-point race and conceded the fastest horse in camp.

nalling course, which will be conducted here next fall.

Camp orders for July 13th announced the ward of the long service medal to Major F. I. Andrew, M. M. and Captain O. W. Campbell of the Light Horse. These officers have now completed twenty year service with the Canadian Militia including service overseas with the C. E. F. which counts as double time in the computation for this decoration.
