"WHERE OLD FRIENDS MEET"

LEGENDS

come near enough to engage the living-dead man in conversation. The news soon spread and for many days curious people came to take a peep at Thew and then vanish into the forest, scarcely able to believe what their very eyes saw. Some maintained it was the ghost of Isaac Thew which they saw working in a garden plot beside the shack. Others stoutly maintained it was Thew himself very much alive, for had they not talked with the man face to face?

Can we afford...
Sterling Silver?

The chances are you CAN. Thousands of Canadians who thought they couldn't afford Sterling Silver are finding that the best in silverware is well within reach of even moderate incomes.

Come in and let us show you how economical it is today.

custom before he died, but they were careful to avoid any talk about the supernatural or what Isaac Thew himself might have to say on the subject—that is, until one night a certain party arrived at the Thew shack with a two-gallon jar of rum.

When the liquor loosed their tongues, Thew, as well as the others, began to do a lot of talking. Questions and answers flew thick and fast until the whole weird story was brought to light and discussed as frankly as though it were an everyday topic.

It seems that Isaac Thew, having died in his sins, asked permission to return to earth so that he might repent and prepare himself for eternity. It took exactly three days for the heavenly tribunal to make up its mind; but finally it was decided that Isaac Thew be permitted to return to earth for a two-year period, after which time he should again pass from this earth into the Great Beyond.

Isaac told and retold the story between drinks until every man present was as familiar with it as he was himself. He even told his comrades a few things about the other world and advised them all to mend their ways if they ever hoped to win lasting peace when they said farewell to their friends here.

On the whole, there was a noted improvement in the deportment of Isaac Thew after he returned from the dead; but when he had company and there was too much to drink, he became the same old careless, heedless sinner, swearing and telling his hair-raising tales about the days when he sailed away from England in a pirate ship under command of Captain Burke.

After a time people lost interest in the man and his story; but as the day drew near for him to leave this world a second time, curiosity drew people from far and near. Thew himself seemed suddenly to have changed, for instead of his usual lively talk he fell into long silences which nothing his neighbors could do or say would break.

Visits to his lonely shack became few and far between. A certain fear of the fellow again filled the hearts of his former pals, so that for weeks on end people again became mere peepers, to again vanish to their homes.

Then one day the report went the rounds that Isaac was missing. Just vanished as though the earth had swallowed him. Indeed, that may well have been what actually happened, for Isaac Thew was never seen or heard from again.

The next story: Madam Swithers.

snow goes. "Hm! you'd think that Santa Claus would be stirring in this!" I commented. "Stirring!" he laughed, "why, didn't you know—he's here on The Island? Is your radio not going? Three times a week you can hear him. Gage and I do", and he added with interest, "he's a very busy man this year." Carolyn, at Jamie's shoulder laughed happily, and told of the safe arof infinitely great moment to the welfare of the folks of Alderlea!

Everyone of the herd is tied safely in his or her stall tonight, sheltered from the cold rain and snow falling on roofs and panes—Mr. C. came down the farm-lane to the house to tell James of the boards taken from the waste-gates in anticipation of an increased flow of water there.—At dusk the ewes, backs damply covered with snow came down the farm-lane to the buildings. I saw the men stop to count them, wondering I suspect if perhaps in the snow and dampness they might have to search fields and woodlands to find a stray. And shepherds out of Writ came to mind—a boy shepherd; those on snowy hillsides, and a Shepherd of all . . . anxious . . . concerned, even as ours with their small flock, and favorite verses come to mind, "O tender Shepherd, climbing rugged mountains, And wading waters deep, How long would'st thou be willing to go homeless, come to mind, "To find a straying sheep? —CELEBRATE 45TH ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Knollin of Bloomfield celebrated their forty-fifth (45th) wedding anniversary on Nov. 19th and this esteemed couple received the congratulations and good wishes of their legion of friends for many more happy anniversaries. Mr. Knollin has been on the sick list for the past three weeks but is now coming along splendidly.—O.

—ENJOYABLE TEA & SALE—A successful afternoon tea, sale of home cooking, candy and fancy work, sponsored by the Ladies' Guild for St. Mary's Church, Summerside, was held in the parish hall on Thursday. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion with red and white streamers and the table centred with red candles and running spruce. Mrs. J. Wilfred Lecky and Mrs. Ebel Mussen presided over the tea cups and the members of the Guild served the many guests. Soft music was provided by Mrs. Harold Schurman. A substantial sum was realized.—S.

—ORANGEMEN SUPPER—The Orangemen of the Brae, Milk, Coleman and Carlton districts held a very successful goose and duck supper on Wednesday night, Nov. 24th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. MacLeod in Brae. It was very largely patronized and the ladies served delicious meals. The dining room was appropriately decorated with the orange colors. After the supper a social hour was enjoyed and games of crokinole etc. were played. The Orange Society is a live-wire organization in this part of the county and among their special projects, the members have held a number of well attended Church parades to different churches in the different sections of the district.—O.

—SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR—The O'Leary Women's Institute held a most successful bazaar and sale of lunches and refreshments on Wednesday night, Nov. 24th in the room of Mr. Malley in the new O'Leary School, which was only officially opened in June of this year. The large and spacious room was very appropriately decorated and the many beautiful and attractive articles on display found ready purchasers and later in the evening delicious refreshments were sold. About eighty dollars was realized from this successful bazaar, which will be used for school purposes to purchase a new blackboard for one of the four rooms in the new school. The Women's Institute, although only a new organization, having been organized only last year, is already one of the most active ladies groups in Charlottetown and is doing splendid work.—O.
