Dan's Review of last Saturday has this to say about iron: "The iron industry, which has led all others in the advance, now leads the way toward a readjustment of values. While contracts for pig cover the entire product of the most important districts for six or nine months in advance, many of the consuming works in some lines approach the end of their orders, and have new competition to meet, so that sheets have fallen $4 per ton at Pittsburgh and $9 from the highest point in September, and plates are $6 lower there and $3 Philadelphia."

CRAPAUD NOTES.—Mrs. McCallum, our popular music teacher, has finished here for the season and retired to her home in Bedeque. Mrs. McCallum is a thorough and competent teacher of music and her old pupils will be glad to learn that she intends resuming the same duties in the coming spring. We have no doubt that her already large class will be further increased next term.—Trade is thriving. Messrs. Cameron and McLean and Wright Bros. are buying up and shipping produce from the surrounding farmers.—Advance Division is in a flourishing condition and the number of its members are weekly increasing. We learn they have started a Monthly Magazine in the Order, Mr. John Myers being appointed Editor for quarter.—Weddings are over for the present and suppers have taken their place.—Miss Mary and Maggie Sturdy left for Boston, where they intend spending the winter among friends and relatives.

The November issue of the Prince of Wales College Observer is to hand and fully sustains its initial number. Sporting and city items and an exchange column are the new features of the second edition. Under the heading of editorial comment the Observer says: "Up to this time none of the former students of the College have contributed to the Observer, although cordially invited to do so. Perhaps the December issue may be more fortunate in that respect than the present one."

On Monday evening Prof. Watts had a narrow escape from a serious fire in his residence Grafton Street. His little boy had thrown down a lighted match which set fire to the window curtains. Mrs. Watts fortunately discovered the blaze and extinguished it, but not till the curtains were destroyed, the window casings charred and some damage done to the furniture. Two plumbers working in the house at the time assisted in subduing the fire. The damage is about $100.
