SHEPHERDS, SHAKE OFF YOUR DROWSY SLEEP

"Shepherds, shake off your drowsy sleep,
Rise and leave your silly
sheep;
Angels from heaven around
loud singing,
Tidings of great joy are bringing . . ."

This lively French carol emerged several centuries ago from the Besancon district of France, a hilly country near the Swiss border. Simple, religious peasant folk originated Christmas ballads like this one while working in the vineyards, and often chose the shepherd theme.

Chewing Gum Reduces Tension

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

It has been suggested repeatedly that one of the chief benefits of smoking and chewing gum is their value as outlets for increased tension. It has been said that most habitual movements of the body represent release of such inner tension.

Fidgeting, wriggling and gum-chewing are examples of movements which may be beneficial to the human body because they release excess pressure.

Recently psychologists at Columbia University made a study of 20 people over a period of 20 days to find out just how much chewing served as a means of relaxation. Each of the persons concerned was studied first while not chewing; second, while chewing ordinary chewing gum, and third while allowing a flavored candy wafer to melt in the mouth.

It was necessary first of all to find some measurement of tension or strain. This was done by watching each one of the persons concerned throughout a working day and recording restless movements. In many of these subjects it was found that tension as measured by decrease of restless movements was decreased about 10 per cent during chewing.

Studies were also made to determine whether indulgence in such a habit had any relations to fatigue. Fatigue produces increased psychologic tension. When people are tired from over-work and over-strain, the use of tea or coffee seems to increase tension. On the other hand, it was found in these studies, chewing tended to decrease tension. The amount of muscular effort involved is hardly sufficient to increase fatigue.

A study was also made to find out whether chewing during work would interfere in any way with the work output because of this decrease of tension. It was found that with the possible exception of work in which a wholly new performance is being learned, chewing while working does not interfere with the output. Indeed, in some kinds of work, like number checking and typing, the work is said to be facilitated.

This new scientific evidence will be good news to the manufacturers of chewing gum. Prof. H. L. Hollingsworth, under whose direction these studies were made, says that perhaps these studies throw some light on the striking fact that during the last ten or more tense years, chewing gum manufacturers have enjoyed greater prosperity.

BOAT BUILDING COURSE—The Provincial Government Department of Agriculture is conducting a boat building course at Morell, under supervision of Frank McEwen. There are now 6 students engaged and this number may be increased in the near future. Two boats are under construction at present and work is progressing satisfactorily. The boys are taking keen interest in the work. The Government is of the opinion that this will, not only substantially benefit those taking the course, but will also be beneficial to the fishing industry in the Province. Those young men will not only be building boats but what is very essential in the fishing industry, they will be able to repair boats in the fishing season.

POST NUPTIAL SHOWER — A post-nuptial miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Willis was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fulford Darrach, Clyde River, on the evening of Nov. 29, 1939. A large number from church and community attended to honor the bride and groom. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. Heber MacPhail, the bride and groom were escorted to their seats of honor, while Rev. T. W. Goodwill acted as chairman. After introductory remarks and some witty stories he called on Miss Joyce Darrach to read the address. Then the numerous and lovely gifts were carried in and opened by Misses Olive Livingstone, Hazel MacLean and Ruth MacLean, the accompanying verses read by Miss Jean MacLean, while Misses Florence MacPhail and Joyce Darrach arranged them on the table. The bride and groom then thanked all for their great kindness, and all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The remainder of the evening was spent in music and social intercourse. A dainty lunch was served and in departing again, all wished the guests of honor many years of happiness. (Patriot please copy).

WEDDING BELLS — A very pretty, but quiet wedding was solemnized on November 8th, 1939 at 6.30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Manse in Charlottetown, P.E.I. when Rev. G. C. Webster united in marriage Miss Florence Mary Beer, only daughter of Frederick Beer and the late Mrs. Fannie Darrach Beer, of Clyde River, P. E. I., with Mr. John Stirling Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Willis, Kingston, P.E.I. The bride was very charming in a costume of brick rust crepe, with coat and hat to match and brown accessories. Their attendants were Miss Reta Wheatley as bridesmaid and Mr. Arnold Beer, brother of the bride as groomsman. After the ceremony the bridal party went to the home of Mrs. Wheatley, Charlotteown, where a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Willis then motored to their beautiful new home in North River, where the groom is a prosperous farmer and fox rancher. Their many friends join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Willis many happy years of wedded life.

POLICE COURT—In the Police Court yesterday a party charged with theft of cash from a residence was sentenced to ninety days in jail; a drunk and disorderly case adjourned for a week and a drunk sent to jail on an old commitment. The case of a party charged with obstructing the police in the discharge of their duty was adjourned. A party charged with infraction of a city by-law on request of counsel had the case adjourned until Monday. A vagrant who was picked up early yesterday morning when found creating a disturbance on Great George Street, including the uttering of threats was remanded until today.

TRINITY YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION—The weekly meeting of Trinity Y. P. U. opened with the devotional period led by Dorothy Black ably assisted by Orva Gill and Elaine MacMillan. At the close of this period the business period was called to order, during which the minutes were read and approved and several items of business discussed. The groups then separated for classes, after which the games period led by Alex Mathieson was enjoyed with "mirthful jollity." In this spirit of revelry and fun the meeting was brought to a close.

THE COLLEGE TIMES—Readable and entertaining as ever (despite editorial complaint of lack of material) is the December issue of the College Times. Reference is made to the enlistment of professors and students for war service, and the timely moral is drawn that "we too can do our part by performing our duties cheerfully and faithfully from day to day." The sections devoted to verse, humor, sport, letters and other features are well maintained and make interesting reading, not only for P. W. C. students to whom they are primarily addressed, but all interested in the work of the College.

CHRISTMAS TRADE BRISK —The Christmas trade in this city was "very good," it was learned last night from prominent business men. November was the "best for ten years," one firm reported while another said it was the "best for even longer than that." Weather conditions would be a big factor in whether the trade maintained its volume, it was said. Snow storms blocking country roads would have an immediate effect depressing Christmas trade in Charlottetown. Good crops and fairly good prices for farm produce and open roads for motor traffic to all parts of the province were believed to have aided in boosting trade here during the last few weeks.

SENTNER — HYDE NUPTIALS— A pretty and interesting wedding ceremony took place at Winsloe United Church Parsonage at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15th when Rev. J. R. Skinner united in marriage Jean Mildred elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sentner, Loyalist and Melvin Orman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hyde, Cornwall. The winsome bride looked exceedingly nice in a pretty costume of wine silk velvet, with smart hat, coat, and accessories in matching tones. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elva, who wore a Victorian Rose crepe frock with sequin trimmings and wine accessories. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Charlie MacKinnon, of Cornwall. Following the ceremony the bridal party motored to the home of the bride where a reception was held and a dainty wedding supper served to the immediate relatives and a few friends of the contracting parties. The dining-room was tastefully trimmed for the occasion with pink and white streamers caught with a large white bell, while the beautifully decorated bride's cake centred the table which was lighted with softly-glowing tapers. A toast to the bridal pair was proposed by the bride's grandfather, Mr. Parkman of Brackley, and responded to by the groom. A jolly bunch of serenaders called and offered their felicitations to the happy young couple who will reside at Cornwall. Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Mary MacIntyre, when she was the recipient of many lovely gifts. A host of friends join in heartiest congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Hyde for many years of happiness.

Urges Island Farmers To Destroy Parasites

"There is no excuse for the existence of the warble fly in this Province and Prince Edward Island can lead the Dominion in the destruction of this insect," said Dr. W. E. Swales, Parasitologist of MacDonald's College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., in an address to Island farmers in Prince of Wales College last night. The subject of Dr. Swales talk was, "Parasites in Livestock."

In introducing the speaker, Mr. W. R. Shaw. Deputy Minister of Agriculture, referred to the need of control of parasites in Island livestock and with this purpose in mind the Department had enlisted the services of Dr. Swales, a man who had been highly recommended as an authority along this line.

The co-operation of farmers is necessary if the research workers are to apply their findings in an effective way for the elimination of parasites in livestock Dr. Swales stated.

In the case of cattle, it is possible to eliminate the parasite well known as the warble fly. In explaining the cycle of this parasite, Dr. Swales said, "the fly attacks the animals in the summer, lays its eggs on hairs, the eggs hatch, the young grubs penetrate the skin and begin a long journey through the animal's body. In the spring the grubs have grown and they appear as grubs in the back. In this cycle they have harmed milk and meat production and have ruined the best part of the hide. There is no excuse for their presence on Prince Edward Island. When they are in the backs in March, April and May, they can be destroyed by a single application of a solution of a Derris Powder. However, EVERY owner of cattle must do this in order to eradicate the pest completely."

In reference to parasites among horses, the parisiteologist had the following to say:—

Parasites In Horses

"The horse is an important victim of certain pests, prominent among which are the bots, roundworms, strongyles and pinworms. A planned campaign can control bots and ringworms; however, the only drug which will kill them is dangerous unless used properly under professional supervision. It has always been my firm opinion that the safest and best method is for the farmers to organize into groups and to present their horses for treatment at a selected centre. A veterinarian will visit such centre and for a nominal charge will treat the horses. Other methods of control are preventative; a routine of clipping of bot fly eggs from the nose, throat and legs every evening in July, August and September is a good measure. Rubbing the eggs with a cloth soaked in vinegar has proved to be of value. Diet and pasture rotation is important; an iron deficiency helps the worm, for example."

Dealing with sheep Dr. Swales said sheep are severely affected by worms and "the bluestone -nicotine drench can eliminate stomach worm disease if used at the correct times of the year; it is very necessary to treat all breeding stock before they go to the 'winter-cleaned' pastures in May"

'We have recently been able to develop a method of treating sheep for the prevention of Nodular Disease and most other harmful parasites, and it is believed and hoped that we will be able to make this new treatment available to sheep owners in the near future."

Stresses Sanitation

Dr. Swales was not in favor of powder treating pigs for parasites and said, "while I have stressed the importance of treatments for sheep, I am going to discourage the treatment of pigs. The common roundworm is the most important parasite of pigs on the Island. It is difficult to remove by simple remedies and too much reliance should not be placed in such methods. Powders will often have an excellent effect in promoting thriftiness in pigs, but they are not satisfactory for the removal of parasites if used alone for this purpose. Luckily, roundworm infection is quite easily prevented by simple sanitation and this together with adequate rations complete with mineral supplements, will help to maintain the excellent reputation of Island hogs."

"Prevent infection of the young pigs until they are 16 weeks old and your parasite worries are over. Careful preparation of a farrowing pen by scalding with hot water, and repeating the process of sterilization each three weeks, is very effective."

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Scales stressed the importance of having healthy animals as it is hard to infect a healthy animal and impossible to infect healthy poultry.

At conclusion of the address a discussion relative to the subject was held with the farmers discussing their problems with the parisiteologist.

Daily War Survey

(Canadian Press)

French authorities have let it be known the French army has more than the present defensive operations in mind. An authorized statement at Paris says fortification work under way since the start of the war is now completed.

The location of this work is not stated but it may be assumed it is designed to guard against an enemy flanking movement through either Belgium or Switzerland. The work places the French high command in a position to manoeuvre more effectively in order to keep the enemy off French soil.

Thus, on the Belgian side, by creating effective defences along the frontier the French army will now have a sound base from which to jump off and assist the Belgian army to hold the Germans along the line of the Meuse should they invade Belgian soil.

Similarly by securing the Belgian frontier the French become able to mass troops in the south to meet any German attempt to outflank the Maginot line by a march through Switzerland. With the French frontier fortified from the Swiss border to the sea the forts on the north, facing Belgium might well serve as an axis on which the armies could pivot, either to the north in case of an attack through Switzerland or to the south and east in case of a German offensive on the Maginot line or through Switzerland.

The suggestion of manoeuvring operations going beyond the defensive phase is also contained in the Paris commentary but is hardly an indication of an early offensive. The Allies are likely to give Nazi Germany a good taste of economic warfare before launching their forces at the Siegfried line.
