ABOUT THAT COAT

You wear a coat. Why? To keep the cold out? No; to keep the warmth in. What of the body that has no warmth—the thin, poor body that lacks the healthy flesh and fat it needs?

For such we say that Scott's Emulsion provides the right kind of a coat. Why? Because Scott's Emulsion builds firm, solid flesh and supplies just enough fat to fill nature's requirements—no more. That means bodily warmth.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE KNOCKED ABOUT IN NAVIGATING CAPE HORN

An Experienced Seaman Tells What it is Like to Weather the Cape in a Wind Jabber—A Hard Experience.

Cape Horn has always been the terror of sailors. Mr. Basil Lubbock, who went round the horn in a "wind-jammer" and put his experiences into a book, tells how it feels to be knocked about in the cape seas. During the gale of which he writes the decks were full of water, some big seas were coming aboard, and the men had a difficult job clewing up the mizzen upper topsail, which had come in as soon as the topgallantsails were fast. Then came the terrible business of squaring in the yards, one of the most dangerous of all jobs when a heavy sea is running. Many a ship has lost a whole watch over the side while the men were at work on the braces. Continuing, Mr. Lubbock says:

"I was about fifth on the rope with old Wilson singing out on one side of me and Higgins on the other. We had hardly taken two pulls at the brace when a huge sea broke aboard right over our heads, and both watches were swept off their feet in every direction.

"Wilson, Higgins and I received the full force of it. For one tiny moment of time I saw the great hissing mass as it reared its foaming top higher and higher above us, and then crash! it toppled its whole weight upon us.

"Knocked down and overwhelmed by the monster, I hung to the brace with all my strength. Under water, with my heels above my head, I saw dimly the round bundles washing near me which I knew were Wilson and Higgins.

"Over and over the sea rolled me, and hurled me with terrible force against the main-hatch, and three times my poor right knee came against the ring-bolt.

"I hung to the brace until the water tore it from my grasp, and away I went, first my head up, then my feet, a plaything to the whim of the water.

"It washed me round the hatch, bumped me against the fife-rail, and rolled me into the scuppers. I got entangled and disentangled with other human bundles, and never for a second could I get my head above water.

"At last the water began to run off, and I found myself sitting up with my head out. I lay to the starboard of the main-hatch. Close to me in the scuppers lay three men in a tangled mass. Mixed up in the fife-rail were two more. Another lay gasping on his back under the break of the poop.

"Above the gale I heard the mate's voice, 'Main-brace, there! Up you get.'"

"I picked myself up, dazed and half-drowned. The captain, who was on the poop, seeing the whole of his ship's crew washing about the decks, dashed down to the deck up to his waist in water, went to the head of the brace, and cheering us on and hauling to his own singing out, soon got us going again.

"No one was lost. Such is Providence!_ We ought to have been killed; we ought to have been washed overboard; but at sea Providence has constantly to intervene, or no sailor would live long."

LADY COLEBROOKE.

Where She Got the Crest That Was "So Full of Significance."

Here's a good etory told about Lady Colebrooke, that prominent Englishwoman who visited this country last winter. Lady Colebrooke is of the well known Paget family. Lord Colebrooke's ancestors are equally aristocratic, and the Colebrooke crest is a rampant lion, three doves over the head and a wolf couchant above all. It is an elaborate affair. When Lady Colebrooke was dining out with one of the opulent hostesses of Long Island she glanced casually at the dinner service, every bit of which was duly embossed with a crest. She was accustomed to heraldic china and did not at once inspect the design minutely. Later in the evening, to her great surprise, she became aware that the Colebrooke crest was upon all of her hostesses' dinner service. "Where did you get this crest?" she exclaimed impulsively. The hostess replied unconcernedly: "Isn't it a pretty one? I picked it out when we furnished this house. It was the prettiest I could find, and those dear little doves, I think, are so full of significance." Lady Colebrooke murmured sadly, "So full of significance."

The Abbreviation of Zoological.

The tendency among English people to clip long words into short ones or even into monosyllables is notorious. Thus "cabriolet" has become cab, "omnibus" bus and so on. But the change of "zoological" into zoo, is, to any one who knows the origin of the word, the most exasperating of all, and yet we now meet with zoo in well written journals.

There is another variation, which comes simply from bad pronunciation, as when a cockney holiday maker tells you he has been to the "slogical." If "zoological" is to undergo a shortening like that which has befallen "omnibus" and "cabriolet" let it at least become zo. This would be correct as far as it went and would not be so excruciating as the detestable zoo. — Notes and Queries.

Two Kinds of Dancers.

The Rev. Reginald Campbell of the London City temple during his visit to America said a number of amusing things. One of them concerned dancing. A young girl asked Dr. Campbell if he did not consider dancing graceful.

"Professional dancing," he replied, "is, I admit, graceful enough in some cases. But what is there of grace in the dancing of amateurs? A man and a woman, close together, spin solemnly about a room. The man's long black coat tails flap. Such persons always look to me as if they had been hired to dance and were doubtful if they would get paid."

THIRTY MILLIONS RICHER

The Mutual Life of New York

disbursed during the year 1902 over forty-four millions dollars and at the close of the year was thirty millions richer. Its assets are now over four hundred millions dollars ($400,000,000.) It is purely mutual. It has no stockholder. It has already distributed in dividends over one hundred and five millions of dollars among policy holders. It has a surplus fund now invested out of which it can pay over three millions a year in dividends for the next twenty years—not speaking of the large surpluses accruing every year. It pays to insure in the grand old Mutual of New York.
