more given loyal welcome to a vicar of the British Crown and exercised the prerogative of swearing him in before he took office. Resident in scarlet and blue and gold lace, a small assemblage that encompassed the entire official life of Ottawa stood respectfully in the legislative council chamber today while the Rev. E. M. Malone, who presided at the ceremony, pronounced the "Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief in our Dominion of Canada."

By the act Rt. Hon. F. A. Anglin, seated in a small throne to the right of the new Governor-General, the rank of an officer, administering the government, which he has enjoyed since Lord Byng's departure, and became once more simply the Chief Justice of Canada. The oath was administered by Mr. Justice Mignault, Senior puisne judge of the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Anglin and Premier King were the first to extend official greetings to Lord and Lady Willingdon. An hour and a half before the ceremony of installation they went aboard the Empress of Scotland, paid their respects, and returned. Then the little government steamer Bellechase hove up along the great liner and took off the vice-regal party.

Viscount and Lady Willingdon were accompanied by the governor's secretary, A. P. Sladen, private secretary R. B. Osborne, comptroller, Lieut. Col. H. H. Snow and Major H. Willis O'Connor, Capt. C. H. I. Jervis and Lieut. Viscount Harding, Aide-de-Camp.

A Born Diplomat. QUEBEC, Oct. 2. — Tall, slim, alert, Canada's new Governor-General, Viscount Willingdon, leaned forward eagerly at his table and conveyed, in the most courteous terms, his profound regrets that he found himself unable to grant a formal interview to anybody before he had taken the oath of administration. We had boarded the Empress of Scotland off Father Point and were given a most courteous welcome, but Lord Willingdon is a diplomat born, and he possesses the faculty of making a denial seem like a favor.

Coming to a new country to discharge duties of the gravest responsibility under circumstances that lend a peculiar pungency to his first official pronouncement or his first message to the people of Canada, should come only after he is duly established in his high office. But that does not prevent Lord Willingdon from expressing his keen gratification at the prospect ahead. With an exceptionally varied experience of administrative duties in different parts of the empire, he combines the adroit mind of the statesman with the gracious courtesy of the natural democrat. It is impossible to talk with him for five minutes without realizing that here is a man who holds the very highest ideals of service, whose sympathies are comprehensive, whose views are cosmopolitan and whose heart is trained in the world's greatest school of diplomacy.

Impressive Services

this unsatisfactory state of things, Mr. Caulfield resigned and was succeeded in 1774 by Rev. Theophilus DesBrisay. Mr. DesBrisay was not twenty years old at the time of his appointment. Owing to insuperable obstacles, he did not arrive in his parish until 1777, when he began to minister regularly to his congregation. For upwards of twenty years he resided at Covehead, riding on horseback into Charlottetown for his services. The building of the first Church, on a site about where the Post Office now stands, was begun in April 1800, and Mr. DesBrisay came to live in what is now the City, in 1801. His ministry continued till 1825, when he was succeeded in turn by Rev. Thos. Adin, Rev. L. C. Jenkins, Rev. Dr. Fitzgerald and others. Concerning each of these much might be written did space permit. The building of the second Church, at the eastern end of Queen's Square, was begun in 1828. When nearly finished, in 1833, it was blown down, and building was not resumed till 1835. The present beautiful Church was erected in 1895. Its fine Gothic lines and rich colorings blend happily with the memorials of earlier days and link the worshippers of this generation with those of long ago.

Rev. Canon Troop at the evening service preached from the 11th chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, "Of whom the world was not worthy." He referred to this chapter as the Westminster Abbey of the Bible, it being God's honor roll of those Old Testament heroes who lived and died in his faith. There were many names mentioned in this chapter but there was also a host of unknown warriors. They are unknown here, but they are known beyond where they are waiting the day for their reward. The names of them are written on the book of life.

We have the Old Testament as the revelation of God from the beginning. It has been handed down to us from the people of Israel. We never think whence it came. It was handed down to us through centuries in the centre of an idolatrous world, but only by a small number of heroes who kept the light of the gospel burning. At the time of Jeremiah the worship of the true God was confined to the barest handful. Yet this little band stood fast in their faith and they are remembered in the sight of God, and are his heroes. The revelation of God, continued the speaker, is what we owe to these heroes. It came through the faithful of Israel, out of the midst of an idolatrous and polytheistic world. We owe the sure and certain hope of the coming of the Messiah to these heroes. A long line of heroes from Abraham never lost this hope. The Messiah came and then the cross, the tomb, and the resurrection. But He is coming again, and through the centuries, the faithful once more look forward to His sure and certain return. But the overwhelming majority of Christians consider this a dead letter. The belief that Christ will return to earth is today scoffed at in the name of scholarship. The young people of today, who are their heroes? Are they feeding on the stuff of which the heroes of God were made? It is not the many who are the heroes, but the few, and none can be a hero, apart from the mind and spirit of Jesus Christ.

At the morning service yesterday "Adore and Be Still" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. J. A. Lawson and in the evening the concert. Early sang most effectively. Beautiful music was rendered by the choir at both services. cricket with the Blackpool club, in which the member is interested, so as to establish the two years' residence rule before qualifying for the County of Lancashire team. Arthur Richardson and C. V. Grimmett also received offers to play with Lancashire League clubs. J. L. Collins, the captain of the team, and J. H. Ellis are expected to return to England to start business there. The cricketers will sail from Vancouver for Australia after visiting a number of Canadian cities.
