STANDARD OIL EMPLOYES GET INCREASE

NEW YORK, August 2.—A wage increase to more than 7,000 employes of the Standard Oil Company in its Bayonne, Bayway and Jersey City plants, was announced last night by George E. Clifford, general manager of the company. The increase affects the men who went on strike here two weeks ago, as well as those who did not strike. The directors of the company decided on the increase today. Workmen who now receive up to $2.50 a day, will receive a 10 per cent increase, while those earning more than $2.50 will receive 25 cents a day more. Employes of the Standard here struck for a 15 per cent increase, and the company's refusal to grant it resulted in the walkout, which was ended early last week.

FIJI ISLANDS MEN ON WAY TO FRONT

VANCOUVER, July 31.—Enthusiastic keen and eager to get to England to join the forces from other parts of the British Empire, sixty stalwart young fellows from the Fiji Islands arrived on the R. M. S. Niagara yesterday, on route to England. They are going to reinforce the contingents already furnished by Fiji for service at the front. With their detachments already in the fighting line, this gallant little British possession has now provided 250 men for the front—one-sixteenth of its total population, there being only 4,000 white people on the island.

Men who left with the earlier detachments have already distinguished themselves in the battle line and have been among the heaviest sufferers. Only five of the first draft are still at the front, the others having been posted on the casualty lists.

A CLERICAL MACHINE GUN

Sir.—There is no doubt that the three essentials of success in the present crisis are "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether." Lord Kitchener and others have told us repeatedly that the war is likely to be a long one. The great Teutonic war machine will need all the strength that we can muster to put it out of commission. And there must be an absolute unanimity and concentration of effort. It is gratifying to note what a splendid response has been given to the appeal for machine guns. But for the greater part these are either personal gifts, or the cost has been met by at least comparatively large subscriptions. I am sure, however, that there are some,—indeed many—who are not in a position to give large amounts who, nevertheless, are anxious to do something. As a class our clergy are by no means wealthy, but they are very loyal. And it has occurred to me that the clergy and ministers of P. E. I. would be glad to give a gun. Some, perhaps, may say, I have given so much already. That is perfectly true of many of us. Yet I venture to say that we could average $10.00 each for this purpose and be none the poorer at the end of the year. Of one thing I am very sure, though, that we shall be very, very much poorer if we fail to give to the Empire every ounce of available support. Suppose, as an alternative suggestion, each one were to give one per cent of his salary this year, and so make the giving proportionate. I am sure that the suggestion is not impracticable.

I would further suggest that one of the leading ministers or clergymen in Charlottetown be asked to take charge of this enterprise. I do not care to mention any name in the public press, but perhaps you, Mr. Editor, would make some suggestion on this point, or even go farthur, and submit the thing to the ministers and clergy in the city.

"The King's business requires haste"

Thank you for affording me space for this appeal.

I am Sir, etc.,
ERNEST E. STYLES.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, While the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery. it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This masterstroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, beauty flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Your druggist has it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution:— While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervour dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

FIGHTING IN WESTERN THEATRE

(Special to The Guardian.)

PARIS, July 30.— Official "No infantry action was reported during the day on our front. Artillery engagements were rather violent in Belgium around St. George and Steenstraete, Quennevierse Plateau, in the champagne and Auberive region on the Suspe. In Western Argone there was fighting with bombs accompanied on each side by violent Cannonade, especially toward St. Hubert. "Between the Meuse and Moselle the artillery fire centered with region of Mortmare wood in the forest of Le Pretre. On the 29th instant, our aeroplanes bombarded Ypres and the Roulers Railroad near near Passichendaele, comps in the German region of Longueval, West Combres, German lines at Brimont Hill near Rheims, the military station at Chatel Argonne, the station of Burthecourte Lorraine. "During the night of the 29th, 30th one of our aviators bombarded Dernach ("Alsace") factory producing gas. Today an Aerial squadron bombarded the station at Fribourg. Another squadron, including 10 aeroplanes from the Paris entrenchment camp, dropped forty-four bombs on the station of Chauny (department Aisne).

A squadron of forty-five aeroplanes set out this morning, having as its objective the petrol works of Peichelbronn, between Hagenau and Wissembourg (Alsace). A cloudy sky and many mist banks permitted only part of the squadron to reach its goal, one hundred and three bombs were dropped on the station of Detwiller near Palsbourg, six on the aviation sides at Palsbourg. Every aeroplane came back safely."

OUR FARMER FRIEND RILES YE EDITOR

By the Patriot's Office Cat

"Well," said Our Farmer Friend as he shook the hand the editor extended "How goes the good fight?"

"I really don't know," said the boss. "I've been out of the province for some days and have tried hard not to think of politics."

"I thought there was something like that in the wind," remarked the caller. "The Mathieson Govenment has'nt been doomed for several days. By the way, you look as if you had enjoyed the change. I hope you did, anyway. Goodness knows you needed a respite from duty. In undertaking to bring about the return of the Liberals to power you have entered upon a task which will put even your great ability to a severe test."

"Of course I enjoyed my holiday. I always do. But we newspaper men do not take holidays half often enough We are on the job day in and day out, in fair weather and foul, in rain or shine. We are always trying to improve the position of the other fellow and doing little for ourselves. The other fellow makes a break and when he gets beyond his depth he expects the newspaperman to pull him out of the hole. I'm tired of the whole dashed business.

"I know your position is a hard one, but keep a stiff upper lip. You are carrying a heavy load, as I said before. The Liberal ship is badly on the rocks and there is little chance of getting her off. But there's nothing like trying."

"Ain't I trying," said the boss in an injured tone, "and trying hard. But I must confess that I see little prospects of my effort succeeding."

"There's something in what you say," was the reply of Our Frmer Friend. "You hav'nt much chance with the Liberal record. It's anything but good. And the worst of it is there is no guarantee that they will do better if given power again."

"I'm meeting this argument as best I can," pointed out the editor. "I'm telling the electorate that it is the Mathieson administration that's on trial and that whatever the Liberals did is no concern of theirs."

"Do you think an intelligent electorate will stand for that line of talk? "interjected Our Farmer Friend. "I have my doubts. I know I would'nt if it was put up by the other side. The Mathieson administrator seems proud of their record and are proclaiming it from the housetops. But the Liberals, through yourself, are seeking to hide theirs. Don't you think the people can see through the whole thing?"

"Yes, I see the Mathieson Government is standing by its record. I suppose its strong enough to stand by. But I'd rather not say out loud what I think about standing by the Liberal record."

"Don't think that I do not realize your position, my friend," said the visitor. "You're certainly in a tight box. There's not a thing you bring up that the Conservatives do not get back on the party for. Our leaders do not appear to have made the most of their opportunities. That fellow Mathieson has too much grey matter for them. In opposition he was active and energetic and in power he has realized on all his pre-election promises. And after all thinking people respect a man who knows his job, no matter, on what side of politics he is "found."

"There's that chap Bell who is talked of as the local Liberal leader," he continued. "He will be an easy mark for Mathieson if he ever gets into the Legislature. Richards was weak enough, but Bell will be a regular cinch. Mathieson will have little trouble drawing him out, and when he gets going there is no knowing when or where he will stop. Richards got the party into deep water several times by talking too much, and compared with Bell he is a regular sphinx."

"I have very great respect for Mr. Richards", said the editor. "and I don't like to hear anyone speak slightingly of him."

"I think just as much of Mr. Richards as you do," said Our Farmer Friend heatedly. "But I don't look on him as a politician, especially as a Liberal politician. His faculty in the Legislature seems to have been to agree too much with what the Conservatives did. If he had been a Liberal politician he wauld not do such a thing no matter how wise the legislation."

"What has he done that would injure the Liberal party," remarked the editor in a moment of weakness.

"What has'nt he done," was the quick reply. Didn't he favor the payment of a salary to the Premier, and has'nt this taken all the argument out of your opposition to that action of the Conservatives? Did'nt he advocate a tax on dogs, and has'nt this action of his played havoc with your censure of the Mathieson administration under this head? Can you find anything in the Journals of the Legislature to show that he opposed any of the taxes you are so outspoken against. If you can't do this what folly it is to blame the Govenment for something the Opposition was a party to? Did'nt he get the party in wrong with the Alliance by objecting to putting malt beer of any percentage on the list of beverages banned by the Prohibition Act and putting up that cracker and cheese and beer argument Do you thing these things help the Liberal party? Do you think they help you in advocating its return to power? Do you th——

"For heaven's sake, man, let up. Never mind what I think. It is what I say that counts. You may think anything you like so long as you don't think too loudly. If you have the return to power of the Liberal party at heart you will be careful of what you think and how you think. If I thought too much about these things it would drive me crazy. There are some things that are unthinkable."

"Perhaps it would be better for all of us if we did more thinking," remarked Our Farmer Friend more in sorrow than in anger. "It does one good to think. It has done me good to think. I see mare clearly since I began to think. Those Saturday ser——

"Oh. come off," said the boss, dropping into slang for the first time. "This is no time for sermons. It is a time for work, for united action. In union there is strength, you know."

"I believe in union being strength," declared Our Farmer Friend, "but there does'nt seem to be much union among the Liberals just now. When, for instance, I see you condemning things which your party leader condoned I cannot help thinking of the days when the Liberal party had able men at its head. Nowadays one Liberal wants the auto and another is against it. Another opposes the prohibition on malt beers because its use aids the digestion of crackers and cheese. Another wants dogs taxed in the interests of the sheep industy while yet another seeks to inflame the minds of farmers against such tax not because it is unwise but because opposition to it may gain a vote or two. I cannot see anything but defeat for a party that is not strongly united on all things under a leader of ability."

It has never existed in the Liberal party since I joined its ranks. I don't think it ever will exist there. Suppose we change the subject," and the boss gave his caller a look which had weariness sticking out on all sides.

"I don't mind if we do," said the old man as he looked daggers at the editor. "But I was getting warmed up to the subject."

"By the way," he continued with a lamentable lack of discretion, "they say on the streets that you ran away to escape the consequence of your attack on the Government in connection with the war oats. That was an unfortunate b reak of yours surely. Another bad break you made was those articles dealing with the expenditures in connection with the Summer School of Science. It might have been the part of wisdom to have investigated these matters before letting the vials of your wrath run riot. Nothing so weakens a paper or an individual as being found out making statements that lack the essential elements of truth."

"It must have been The Guardian which started that yarn," declared the boss as his wrath got the better of him. "I know it wasn't my good friends of The Watchman or The Pioneer. They wouldn't say a mean thing like that about me even if they knew it to be true. Besides, it was The Watchman that led me astray with that story about the rats being in the oats and it doesn't become it to say anything now."

Our Farmer Friend became alarmed at the outcome of his unhappy reference to the boss' running ability, and while the latter was saying some things to himself under his breath he quietly slipped out and was whisked away by the business manager in his auto.

PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE

The fourth episode of "The Broken Coin" far surpasses in interest all preceding adventures of this popular serial. The action is well sustained. The chief events are the threatened revolt of the peasants, which is checked by Count Frederick, and the journey to the lodge of Count Sachio. Kitty Gray, ever on the alert to obtain both parts of the broken coin, has more startling adventures. This number introduces Norman McDonald as "The Apache", who will no doubt start new troubles.

"The Death Sign at High Noon," a three-part Kalem feature, held the close attention of the audience. The general run of Indian dramas are rather more or less far-fetched, but exception must be taken for this one, both as to acting and photography, the story in itself being worth following.

"The Animated News Weekly" contained many topics of interest from different points of the world, including the western war zone.

"How he Won the Widow," a "Joker" comedy, was a laugh from start to finish. The same programme will be repeated to-day, afternoon and evening.

Wednesday and Thursday a special five-part Broadway Star Feature, "The Gamblers", from the book by Charles Klien, author of "The Third Degree." M. Klien was one of the victims of the recent Lusitania disaster.

BERLIN REGARDS SITUATION AS VERY SERIOUS

BERLIN, July 31.—There is no chance to doubt that the situation growing out of the new differences between the United States and Germany is regarded here as extremely serious. Americans in Berlin who are in touch with the American embassy know that the feeling there has become extremely grave.

Ambassador Gerard, in his dealings with the foreign office, has adopted a firm attitude, indicating in effect that the Lusitania incident is closed as far as he, speaking for the United States government, is concerned; that he expects to have nothing further to communicate to Germany on the subject.

This attitude on the part of the ambassador is new. Mr. Gerard, who was in closest touch with developments both here and at home, made strong efforts in the direction in an agreement between the two governments. He even sent to Washington, following the dispatch of the last German note, several propositions urging a compromise and pointing out the possibilities for an amicable understanding.

Mr. Gerard, now, however, has taken the position that inasmuch as President Wilson declined to commit the United States to such compromises he, as ambassador, must stand rigidly by the declared position of the United States.

There have been many expressions of regret that Mr. Gerard was unable to see the kaiser in an attempt to clear up the situation. He, of course, now considers the time past for such a conference with the emperor. It developed today that it has been a long time since Ambassador Gerard saw Chancellor Bethmann Von Hollweg or the secretary of state for foreign affairs.

The effect of the war on the trade of this country with Germany, however, is shown in a statement of the declared value of exports to the United States through the ports of Hamburg, Kiel and Luebeck, during the first six months of this year, made public today at the department of commerce.

During the first six months of 1914 these ports sent to the United States goods valued at $14,994,385. This year in the same period the shipments amounted to $1,153,257. Hamburg, which handler the bulk of the trade, fell off from more than $13,000,000 in American exports to a little more than a million.

Goods consigned to American citizens, valued at $150,000,000 are lying on the docks of Rotterdam, held up by the British order-in-council forbidding all commerce with Germany or Austria.

Much of the Merchandise is of German origin and cannot be moved pending the result of the British-American negotiations over the Order-incouncil. Some of the shipments, however, are af British orogin, and efforts are being made, with the unofficial aid of the state department, to secure conduct for this portion.

While Germany is in control of practically all of Belgium, inquiries from the government have brought forth the statement that Great Britain proposes to blockade Belgian ports, and invoke the order-in-council against German goods from Belgium.

CANADIANS FOR SERVICE IN THE DARDENELLES.

LONDON, July 31.— Between thirty and forty Canadian nursing sisters and a half dozen doctors from Canada who for the past two months have been doing duty in France have been lent to the British Medical Service, and are now in London, outfitting, before proceeding to the Dardenelles hospitals.

It is a timely tribute to the efficiency of the Canadian Service as picked British medical units have already been transferred from France to the slands held by the Allies near the Gallipoli fighting.

The party is expected to leave this week.
