

Mr. Cyrilac Gallant Is Honored By Fellow Employees

Maximizing his retirement after 35 years of service in the Provincial Treasury Department, Mr. Cyrilac Gallant, Charlottetown, was the guest of honor in the Confederation Chambers last night when he was the recipient of two addresses and presentations.

Two Diesel-Electric Engines Arrive

The first Diesel-electric engines ever to make their appearance in the Province arrived at the Charlottetown railway station at 10 o'clock last night. The engines, Nos. 7751 and 7752—were brought into the City on the rear of a freight extra which had gone to Pardon for that purpose.

FOOT SPRINGS

Mechanism of the foot involves "springs" and not "arches" according to a leading authority, who declares that the old belief in "fallen arches" is as false as the medieval theory that the earth is flat.

"NERVES" She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired—she thought—but it was her "nerves"—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, loss of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action.

Others who spoke briefly were: Mrs. J.D. Davison, Mr. J.A. Webber, Mr. J.P. Gordon, Mr. S.H. Burrows, Mr. M.R. Bethune and Mr. M.D. McGuire.

CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH

"The church as a factual institution" was the title of the address delivered last night by Dr. C.H. Phillips, of Alberta, Calgary, in his series of studies being presented at Central Christian Church. Dr. Phillips introduced his exposition of the Scriptures on the subject by stating that the pledge of Jesus to build his church proved that it did not then exist and had not previously existed in fact.

K. OF C. DEGREES EXEMPTIFIED.—Last Sunday afternoon and evening the first, second, and third degrees of the Knights of Columbus were exemptified to 46 candidates from Summerside, Souris, and Charlottetown.

Mr. Nairn Interviewed. In an interview yesterday Mr. A. Gordon Nairn, Executive Vice-President of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada whose picture appears above, stated that the Life Underwriters Association of Canada is an association of some 5,500 life insurance agents in Canada, with local associations in 58 centres from one coast to the other.

So that its members can become fully informed life insurance advisors, the Association conducts a three-year course of study with annual examinations, leading to the granting of the designation known as Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.).

In commenting on recent trends in the life insurance business, Mr. Gordon Nairn stated that life insurance sales in 1946 had exceeded sales in 1945 by more than 26 per cent and were over 137 per cent above the 1939 level.

Increased Insurance Purchases. However, Mr. Nairn felt that high income taxes and low interest rates had a good deal to do with the great increased purchase of life insurance. He pointed out that before the war, the average man could conceivably accumulate an estate gradually over the years by putting aside some savings each year, investing these savings and thereby receiving the benefit of compound interest at work.

Now, as a result of high income taxes, it is most difficult for the average man to be able to set aside each year any sizeable amount of savings out of his income. For instance, a married man with one child earning $5,000 as of January 1st, 1938 had $4,900 for himself after payment of his Income Tax, whereas as of January 1st, 1946, this same man had only $3,975 left after paying his Dominion Income Tax.

Again, said Mr. Nairn, because of low interest rates the effect of compound interest on annual savings accumulations is not nearly as material as it used to be. To illustrate the effect of low interest rates, not many years ago a man could expect a 5 per cent interest return on his money and thus a saving of $24,000 would the necessity of steel barrels necessary for the shipment of coals. Over one million dollars was voted this year for the sub-grading projects and the road program in general.

Life Insurance Sales Congress Most Successful

The one-day Educational Sales Congress of the Life Underwriters Association of Prince Edward Island held at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday was a decided success, with life insurance salesmen from all sections of the island in attendance.

The chairman of the morning session was Mr. V. B. Ling, President of the Provincial Association while Mr. H. C. Bohaker, Regional Vice-President for Prince Edward Island was chairman of the afternoon session. Four life insurance men of international reputation brought messages of instruction and inspiration on subjects of peculiar interest to those in the life insurance business.

At the noon luncheon His Worship Mayor B. Earle Macdonald brought greetings from the City Council and commended the life insurance men for their contribution to the economic life of the country.

After the luncheon, National Quality Awards were presented to Melville Bell, De Sable, and A. Gus Macdonald of Charlottetown. It was also announced that MacDonald of Charlottetown and J. L. MacIvor of Summerside had qualified and would receive certificates later, also that Messrs. Edwin C. Johnstone and H. C. Bohaker who received awards last year had received seals for 1947. The presentation was made by Mr. C. Black, C.L.U.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker, moved by Mr. D. H. Gallant of Miramichi and seconded by A. R. McNis.

A pleasing incident at the close of the afternoon session was the presentation of Island scenes to the visiting speakers as a memento of their visit. The presentation was made by past president R. J. Rupert, C.L.U.

Mr. Nairn Interviewed. Mr. Nairn also stated that considerable improvement was being made in the distribution end of the life insurance business. He said that as a result of the work the Life Underwriters Association was doing and also as a result of the work life insurance companies were doing themselves, material improvement was noticeable in the calibre of the life insurance agents in the business today.

It was his opinion that the pedlar type of life insurance salesman is fast disappearing from the business and that as a result the public can expect to do business, more and more, with life insurance representatives who thoroughly know their business and who should be able to give the public competent advice and service.

He pointed out that the purchase of a life insurance policy is one of the most important decisions the average man makes, both from the point of view of the relationship of this purchase to the financial security of his family and himself and also because it commits a man to a series of annual premium payments which, in total, may represent a considerable amount of money. Accordingly, it is very important that a prospective purchaser of life insurance deals with a life insurance salesman who can give him competent advice.

BRITAIN'S PLANS (Continued from Page 1) fied or divided. The Indians were told that power would be transferred this year on the basis of Dominion status and that the Indians could elect later whether they would remain within the British Commonwealth of Nations.

India's leaders appealed to the people to put an end to the country's violence and bloodshed and to maintain order during the critical period of transition.

They indicated dissatisfaction with the plan but said it was the best available solution to the country's fierce political and religious differences.

Mr. Under spoke, vast preparations were under way against the possibility of outbreaks by dissenting factions and troublemakers. But relative quiet prevailed. There was no jubilation in evidence over the announcement of the plan.

Lord Mountbatten also appealed to the people for moderation, telling them in a broadcast: "We cannot afford any toleration of violence.

"If the transfer of power is to be effected in a peaceful and orderly manner, every single one of us must bend all his efforts to the task. This is no time for bickering, much less for the continuation in any shape or form of the disorders and lawlessness of the past few months."

After Lord Mountbatten spoke, broadcasts were made by the Congress Party leader, Jawaharlal Nehru, vice president of India's interim government, M. A. Jinnah, president of the Muslim League, and Sardar Baldev Singh, leader of the Sikhs.

"While we must necessarily abide by what the people finally decide," Nehru said, "we had to come to certain decisions ourselves and to recommend them to the people for acceptance. We have therefore decided to accept these proposals and to recommend to our larger committees that they do likewise."

Jinnah, who did not say specifically that he had accepted the plan, commented: "It is clear that the plan does not meet in some important respects our point of view, and we cannot say or feel that we are satisfied or that we agree with some of the matters dealt with by the plan."

Battle Scenes For "Henry Fifth" Were Filmed In Ireland

When a movie producer wants a corps of fighting men—great numbers of them—where would he be more likely to find them than in Ireland?

It was with that thought in mind, perhaps, that Laurence Olivier, producer, director and star of the new United Artists screen release, "Henry V," took portions of his cast with him to the Emerald Isle when he got ready to film the scenes of some of that English monarch's spectacular battles with the King of France.

He made arrangements for the clash between the men of the kings of England and France to be filmed on the huge and beautiful estate of Lord and Lady Powerscourt at Enniskerry, deep in the hills of Ireland. From local employment offices he secured the services of the 500 young men needed to represent the foot soldiers, mounted knights and archers, and a total of 160 horses were rounded up for use by the men who were to take the parts of the French cavalry.

A customer was called in to design and furnish some 1400 suits of armor and chain mail and the horses were equipped with the colorful trappings which ancient knights once delighted to hang on their chargers.

Forming the background for the battle scenes were the counties of the English army, all done in gentle pastel shades (this is a Technicolor picture, be it remembered), and on the opposite side was placed the French camp, a group of vividly-striped, bell-shaped tents of the period. Because the battle was to be fought over a strip of country-side some two miles wide, some special equipment had to be devised to permit the movie cameras to register the full scope of the conflict. A narrow-gauge rail track more than two miles long was laid parallel to the battle terrain, and on this was mounted a number of cars which carried the color cameras—this comprising one of the longest tracking shots in the history of the picture business.

Henry V, which comes to the Prince Edward Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday has in its cast in addition to Mr. Olivier such talented and well-known players as Renee Asherson, Felix Aylmer, Harcourt Williams, Leslie Banks and Morland Graham.

One of the main chores which King Henry's army had to accomplish was to storm and capture the French beachhead, pretty much the same task as that which confronted the Allied fighting forces when they cracked the Nazi's west wall by the famous Normandy invasion of 1944.

Improved Distribution. Mr. Nairn also stated that considerable improvement was being made in the distribution end of the life insurance business. He said that as a result of the work the Life Underwriters Association was doing and also as a result of the work life insurance companies were doing themselves, material improvement was noticeable in the calibre of the life insurance agents in the business today.

a pleasant smile. I began to talk with her and found out that she was with a detachment of the Belgian White Guard (the Belgian Underground) who were in a dangerous section and supporting one of the companies of my own regiment. I told her I thought the kind of work was a little too strenuous for a young girl, but her reply was that she had been doing this kind of thing throughout the period of German occupation and if anything conditions were getting better now that they were working side by side with their 'Liberators'. 'After all,' she said, 'there is such a thing as duty, after the war comes life and then eternity.' Only at that time afterwards I heard that she was killed by a German shell while attending to one of her wounded comrades.

"Those three words 'duty, life and eternity' flashed back to my mind and as I was pondering over subject matter for tonight's address these words again came back but with a greater significance than ever before. What better topic for tonight's address than what might be called the 'Dying words of a heroine nurse'—'Duty, Life and Eternity.'"

Well merited appreciation for an interesting and educational talk was tendered Miss Walker in a vote of thanks which was moved by Mrs. Lorne Noonan and seconded by Mrs. Fred McWade. This was presented the speaker by Mrs. Blake who added her individual appreciation.

A most enjoyable social hour followed when refreshments were served. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. W. J. P. MacMillan, Mrs. Preston Hillier and Mrs. Peter Holland.

Life. "Life is defined in books of philosophy as that characteristic which distinguishes animate from inanimate things. But life means more than that, it means living in complete harmony with God, our neighbor and ourselves. It means our ability to enjoy the luxuries and pleasures of this world, to mean our ability to regard ourselves together in clubs, societies or organizations for the betterment of our community as a whole, or to provide the medical or physical needs of the underprivileged.

"Yes, life is a failure unless we can do some good for others. And who among us are better qualified to lead the way than those who have completed their training in the nursing profession. It need not be full time but at least let us make it part time. If we can't be a leader we can at least be a helper. We of the democracies are very privileged in our 'Way of Life'. Let us preserve it for those who come after us.

Eternity. "It is not hard to imagine, when we think of the fate of the young Belgian nurse, what was meant by the words she included this: 'It is a warning for us to always be prepared. It is a warning for us always to remember that we must be subject to authority, first to
