IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of my wife and our darling mother, Mrs. Peter Hennigar who died two years ago today, April 26th, 1947.

Many a lonely heartache
Often a silent tear
But always a beautiful memory
Of the one we loved so dear,
When the evening shades are falling
And our thoughts are wandering home
In our hearts there comes a longing
If she only could come home.

Off and off our thoughts do wander
To a grave not far away
Where they laid our darling mother
Just two years ago today.
Lovingly Remembered by Husband and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. J. Wilfred Cheverie, who passed away April 26th, 1938.

Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright,
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do;
No thought of self, but of "the other",
I know He said, "Well done, dear Mother."

WOULD BAN BIBLE READING

TRENTON, N. J., April 26 - (AP) - A suit to ban Bible reading in New Jersey public schools was filed in superior court today. The suit charged that the state law prohibiting scriptural readings is "contrary to the constitution of the United States." The action was started jointly by Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Doremus, parents of a 17-year-old high school student.

Religion And Life

DIVINE GRACE IS FREE GOD'S LOVE IN ACTION

A young student missionary was visiting one of his families and found them caring for a neighbor "in his cups." The man was voluble, aggressive, and, like one of Ralph Connor's characters, more interested in religion than when he was sober. He asked the young missionary what "Grace" meant. The student had many examples of what "Grace" he meant in his own life and among his people, but to give on the spot a definition that would satisfy a man in that condition was a poser. Those of us who heard the story wondered what we would, or could, have said in such a situation.

It is a question of vital importance. "Salvation is all of grace" is the watchword of Evangelical religion. "Grace" is the key to Paul's thought; the essence of his gospel is, "By grace are ye saved through faith." Augustine made "Grace" the centre of his faith and he set it over against the idea that man's effort and merit brought salvation. No one can understand Protestantism apart from the idea of God's free grace offered to all who will receive it. Fierce controversies have raged around it, and yet it is so attractive and definite that it invites trust rather than argument. Now what does it mean? And what does it bring to each of us personally?

Loving Initiative

"Grace," said D. L. Moody, "is undeserved favor." "Grace," said D. H. MacVicar, "is God's determination to bless us to the utmost of our capacity to receive." God's grace is, therefore, God's love in action, love practical love, giving effect to its desires for the one loved. "Grace," said H. A. A. Kennedy, "is God's loving initiative in our salvation."

Often during the war we read despatches like these, "The Germans have taken the initiative," or "The enemy has taken the initiative." When our men took the initiative they were planning that was being worked out; the enemy had to stop them or perish. When the New Testament writers speak of God's grace they mean that He takes the first step toward our salvation. The shepherd in Christ's parable goes after the lost sheep. A sheep astray in the wilderness can do nothing about its lostness; its cry is as likely to bring the wolf as the shepherd; the shepherd must go after the lost until he finds it. The lost coin can do nothing about its fall out of circulation; the owner must ransack the house until she finds it. The idea of each person's salvation originates in God's heart and action to bring it into effect in each case starts with Him. Of course, the moral elements in man's lost condition could not be brought out by the figure of a lost animal or a lost article, and so Jesus followed the parables we have quoted with the story of the lost son. "All sin is leaving home," said J. H. Jowett, and it is also frustrating the Father's love and forsaking all that the home stands for. The sinner's ingratitude, his reckless waste of resources divinely provided, and his misery as a consequence are brought out in the story, but they did not change the Father's love.

Must Be Accepted

In actual life, it is the Spirit of God through the Gospel who moves the prodigal to return, but while the Father calls him back and provides for his return, he must consent, he must accept, he must act in order to receive the Father's bounty. The grace that awaits him is unlimited; it sweeps away all his hesitations and protests as the tide floods the marsh and bears him into the harbor.

When, therefore, we say that "Salvation is all of grace," we look to God as the source of anything we can ever become. What a marvellous view of God this gives us! Not a Being remote from the world He has made, unapproachable, and concerned only about His own glory, but a Father, concerned about the welfare of His children, anxious to promote their growth in strength and goodness and their unity in love. The Divine Father feels His own life incomplete without His children, and His own work incomplete until their union with Him leads them to become in their measure what He is.

"Merit" Inadequate

There is no place in Jesus' thought for the popular merit religion of His time and our time. Many people among us build their hopes on their own goodness which gives them, they feel, a claim on God. How they can tolerate such an idea in the face of the appalling wickedness of our time is inconceivable. "There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bradford," exclaimed a saint of other days as he saw a criminal being marched to his doom. He knew the heart's capacity for evil, and acknowledged that we have nothing that we have not received. "Salvation is all of grace."

Pauline Johnson's lines describe many an experience: My heart forgot its God for love of you,
And you forgot me other loves to learn,
Now, through a wilderness of thorn
Back to my God I turn,
And, just because my God forgets
Thee, the past,
And, in forgetting, does not seek to know
Why I left Him for you - at last
Back to my God I go.

 guest-room, and Carolyn began with the sun porch. Here, there has been no spell of it yet. There was a recent morning when a lazy droning of a fly on a window brought the matter to mind, and we decided that perhaps the time was ripe for some action. We should start it, possibly after dinner - in the spare-room or perhaps in the parlor.

Of course we should much prefer to follow the Spring call out of doors - to see if the season was beginning to set cowpols in woody places down along the stream, or to take the row-boat around that beguiling bend up the creek. "Yes," I remarked to James when he was about to go to the afternoon's wood-splitting, and Jamie was disappearing from sight "in" the road, "I think I'll house-clean a bit now!" He stopped in his tracks, and said sternly, "You're not going to start any house-cleaning until that last sow has had her young ones. If there's ever a time I like to have peace and order around the place it's when small pigs are arriving!" Which was an engaging way of having my disturbing question settled, for the present!

Until tomorrow ... Diary ... Good-night.

ST. FELIX C.W.L. SUB-DIVISION ANNUAL MEETING

The monthly and annual meeting of C. W. L. St. Felix sub-division was held on April 12th at the home of Mrs. John F. Arsenault. Meeting opened by prayer, then minutes of last meeting were read by secretary, Mrs. John F. Arsenault, and on motion were adopted.

The roll call was answered by membership fees for next year. Twenty-four members paid the fee. The treasurer's report was then read and also adopted. Correspondence was read and these were fully discussed. It was then decided to donate proceeds of night's entertainment to the Sisters of Martha's building fund. It was also decided to hold a bingo game at next meeting, proceeds in aid of the Sisters of Precious Blood.

School committee gave their report, and on motion things were ordered bought and paid. It was also decided to pay half of stipends for High Mass on our Lady of Good Counsel's feast day along with Tignish sub-division.

Place of next meeting at the home of Mrs. Sylvain DeRoche. Roll call to be answered with a donation to bingo game. The annual report was then read by the secretary. In her report she stated clearly all the activities carried on by the sub-division during the past year including church, social, and educational work.

The treasurer reported that $24.50 was spent during the past year on the different phases of work carried on by the sub-division and all bills were paid. These two reports were adopted as read. The election of officers by ballot then took place after which the retiring president, Mrs. Alfred Gillis, was then presented with a beautiful rosette and case by the members of the League. In a few brief remarks the past president thanked the members for their kind remembrance and also for their sincere co-operation during her term of office.

The following is the slate of officers for ensuing year: President - Mrs. Alfred Perry; First Vice President - Mrs. Edward Martin; Second Vice President - Mrs. Michael DeRoche. Third Vice President - Mrs. John A. Chaisson; Treasurer - Mrs. John F. Arsenault; Recording Secretary - Mrs. Alfred Gillis. Church committee for coming year - Mrs. Peter Richard and Mrs. Marin Martin. School committee for next month - Mrs. Michael DeRoche and Mrs. Walter Christopher. After business was completed a bingo game was held, realizing the sum of $4.90, after which members departed thanking Mrs. Arsenault for an enjoyable evening at her home.

CAKE TALK

Frances Barton

Why do some women get results in their cake baking that make them the envy of their friends? What is the little extra touch that makes one woman's baking more successful than her neighbours?

Well - I have discovered that, what helps women most in achieving baking success is following a tested recipe exactly.

You know - it's remarkable how often a good cook fails to stick exactly to her instructions. I once gave a cake recipe to some thirty good cooks, and watched them carefully as they followed it. I was surprised at how many slipped up on one or another little point of procedure. As a result, their cakes fell just a little short of the melting, delicious goodness they could have achieved.

Cake making is really so easy, if you follow the directions. First of all, read your recipe through to the end. Bring together all the ingredients required for your cake, and measure them carefully (all measurements level, of course!). Then check your measurements, and re-read the method, before you start mixing your cake. Be sure to use the size pan indicated, a good rule to follow with most batters, is to half-fill the pans.

And now - here's a recipe I'm sure you'll like.

RED DEVIL'S FOOD

4 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate
 1/2 cup hot water
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
 1 teaspoon baking soda

1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1/4 cups sugar
 3 eggs
 1/2 cup milk
 1 teaspoon vanilla

Place chocolate and water in double boiler. Stir over boiling water until chocolate melts and mixture thickens. Add 1/2 cup sugar; stir and cook 2 minutes. Cool to lukewarm. Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt; sift three times. Cream shortening, add 1/4 cups sugar gradually; cream until light. Add eggs, one at a time; beat well after each. Add half of flour, beat until smooth. Add milk and remaining flour alternately, in small amounts; beat smooth after each addition. Add vanilla and chocolate mixture; blend. Bake in 2 deep 9-inch layer pans that have been lined on bottoms with paper, then greased. Use moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes.
