Repair Damaged Vitality

Winter is a trying season, The changes and indoor life lower everybody's vitality. This increases the danger of attack of some disease. There is nothing better to fortify the system to ward off disease and to restore vitality and energy than the use of with Hypophosphites. It builds up the whole system and is especially valuable for any chronic throat and lung troubles. Good for children to take at this season.

NORTHWEST HOMESTEADS.

One D. M. Fredericksen who claims to have had knowledge and experience of the land laws of the United States and Canada has written a pamphlet apparently intended to show that Canada has made her Northwest land laws a copy of those which in the big Republic have proved a huge and costly mistake. He introduces his story with a brief conversation between Patrick and Michael, the latter having taken up a homestead and the former inquiring for information. Michael sums up the whole business thus: "The Government is willing to bet you 160 acres of land that you can't live on it three years without starving to death."

Something of the seamy side of the homestead laws is brought to light in what follows. Mr. Fredericksen tells of a township in the Northwest which within his knowledge is at present inhabited by thirty-three homesteaders only three of whom have families. In another township with a similar population, he had dinner with a settler when the latter remarked that his daughter, a growing girl was the only girl in the township.

"When driving through the Canadian West," he proceeds, "the fact is that what greets the eye frequently is one shack after another without any signs of real fields, stables, or horses or cattle, clothes hanging to dry on the line, or other evidences of family life and civilization. . . Drive out from Wadena, Saskatchewan, on the Nut Lake trail and you will see seventeen shacks, built by seventeen bachelors—not a woman in sight nor a child, frequently neither a horse nor a cow nor a man, nor a fair sized field—just the shacks and a few acres of drunken looking sod. Where are the men? Off to work or otherwise. They will be back to do homestead duties this winter when the snow is two feet deep. For these "duties," performed by cooking rabbits and oatmeal, sawing wood, smoking tobacco and very often staying in bed both day and night—"alone with myself and my conscience"—the Government will pay him three years hence $1,800, not in money but in land."

The meaning of all this is that the land to which the bogus homesteader will thus in three years acquire a title, will have a speculative value of $11.25 an acre. If so he will sell it. If not he will mortgage it for what he can get and leave the country for more genial climes. Then there is the case of two bachelors who built their shacks close to the boundary between their homesteads, and when the cold weather comes A will transfer his household goods to the shack of bachelor B, and later both may move to A's shack, and so claim that they have lived six months as the law requires each on the homestead allotted him.

Many other forms of fraud are touched upon in the pamphlet before us under which the so-called homesteader is not really a settler or a farmer, but is realising "a poor man's graft" by playing at homesteading by living for some months of each of three years "in a shack or kennel not much larger than would be required for a good sized dog." Mr. Fredericksen's estimate is that less than half the homesteading is done in good faith and that more than half of the homesteads in the West were lived on in the above recited fashion barely long enough to get a title from the Government—to sell for what it would bring.

Of course there is another and a better side to this, but the world is familiar with that. And there has been an enormous outlay by the Government, charged to capital account, for surveys, and the receipts from Dominion lands have not come up to what might be expected. Our glorious western heritage is being exploited by speculators, while even little Prince Edward Island has been invited to send seed grain to what we have been taught to believe is the "granary of the world." Strange is it not? There seems to be much yet to be explained. Possibly the land laws have been at fault, and the administration of them also.

THE AUTOMOBILE BILL.

The bill introduced in the Legislature to deal with automobiles is quite as plain, and as severe as the worst enemy of those vehicles could desire. It is squarely prohibitory, and fixes the penalty for using an automobile upon any public highway at $500. In default of payment the offender may be imprisoned in the county jail for six months.

The bill makes the term "motor vehicle" to include "any vehicle propelled by any other power than muscular power." This would mean any cart, carriage, or truck, when going down hill, as then it would be wholly propelled by gravitation. Horse vehicle could only be driven up hill or on the level. Toboggans, coasting sleds, bicycles and all other conveyances when on a down grade on the roads would apparently render their owners liable to fine and imprisonment. The bill as drafted would practically stop all vehicles at the top of any hill.

THE TRYON CREAMERY CO'S REPORT.

Sir.—In a recent issue of your paper a report of the annual meeting of the Tryon Creamery Co. is given in which it is stated that the secretary's report showed certain results, which are printed and are an exact copy of the statement issued by A. E. Venning's Creamery.

Now it is certainly highly complimentary to the above named gentleman (though questionable tactics on the part of the person responsible for the article in question,) to make this use of a competitors statement while the one belonging to that Creamery was yet unprinted.

Had they but mentioned their dilemma to Mr. Venning he has several statements on file from past seasons which would have been loaned them, and while not quite up to the excellent average of his past summers work of 93.83 per hundred lbs, would yet compare very favorably with the results of any other Creamery in the Province for this banner dairy year, and it is up to your correspondent to offer an explanation of why he found it necessary when extolling the winner of seven prizes, to publish the statement intact of a competitor in the profession.

Surely this winner of many prizes will have made a showing in his creamery work worthy of publication.

MYSTIFIED DAIRYMAN.

GALLAS POINT.

Sir.—Gallas Point is the name by which is known the southwestern extremity of an almost level or gently undulating peninsula on the southern coast of Prince Edward Island, surrounded very nearly by the waters of Orwell and Pownal Bays and the streams which empty into them. The origin of the name is lost in the distant past—buried with the first of the white men who felled the trees and cultivated with rude implements the patches of charred land surrounding the log cabins which they called home. The coast line is low and great stretches of sand extend far out at ebb tide. In some places this sand outlines marshy deposits of considerable depth which in an earlier age formed part of the solid land. At intervals the sand is broken by reefs of brown sandstone intermixed with grey and purple beds and bands of conglomerate. In these beds are silicified trunks of a conifer or pine tree identical with a species abundant in the upper coal formation of Nova Scotia. In some instances these trunks have been carbonized or converted into coal. Three species of calamites occur, resembling in their markings those which belong to the coal formation. Iron ore of fair quality is also to be found and some beds of concretionary limestone. The formation has long been regarded as a peculiar group, lying in the axis of an anticlinal and assigned by Dawson and Ells to the Upper Carboniferous series. The dip is in a southeasterly direction until it changes, and the rocks lie at angles of 8 to 10 degrees. Because of this low angle of dip the depth at which the coal beds lie can be learned only by drilling.

For many years a belief, strong and persistent has prevailed that mineral wealth is to be found there if a test were made. This can be accomplished by insisting as you have suggested that the geological survey be completed. It is difficult to believe, though the evidence points that way, that deliberate injustice is being done us by the federal government because we are weak,—that we must struggle to obtain fair and just treatment to which we are entitled as loyal subjects of a mighty empire whose flag is the aegis of civil liberty.

Yours truly,
W. M. MURPHY.

SLOCUM, Limited, Toronto.

AN AFFLICTED FAMILY

About a year ago our entire family were taken down with la grippe, one after another. The disease left us all in a very miserable, weak and run down state, and hardly able to crawl about. We had this great weakness for weeks. We decided we must have some good reliable tonic to build us up. We had heard and read for ourselves of the wonderful effects produced by PSYCHINE, and came to the conclusion that it was just what we needed. We began using it, and it seemed wonderful the results that came, and so quickly, too. In a very short while we were as well as ever, and have kept so ever since. We believe it to be the best medicine ever offered the public, and shall strongly recommend it at all times."—MRS. SAMUEL GOODEN.

Test for Visual Acuteness.

Defects of eyesight requiring correction by the use of spectacles are rarely understood and can be so corrected by the proper adjustment of perfectly made lenses that their effects will be entirely elevated. The print should be read easily at fifteen inches from the eye. If you cannot do so you should wear spectacles. It does not pay to buy cheap spectacles. They distort the rays of light, disturb the angles of vision, cause pain and discomfort and injure the eyesight. When it is necessary to hold work or reading matter further than fifteen inches from the eye in order to see distinctly, it is a sure sign of failing vision, and needs correction, discomfort and pain will be prevented by having a pair of glasses fitted.

If you cannot read it come and see if we cannot give you spectacles with which YOU CAN read it and SEE DISTANT OBJECTS CLEARER ALSO.
