A despatch from St. John says—A conference will take place here tomorrow between the Maritime Premier and the representatives of the Maritime Provinces in the Federal Parliament. As a result of the census of 1891 and 1901 these Provinces lost members, and there is a fear that next year's census will cut them out of at least five members, two each from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and one from P. E. Island. The matter was brought up in Parliament last winter, and in the course of the discussion Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared the present representation is fixed by the B. N. A. Act, and that to make a change it would be necessary to secure the consent of the Provinces. Those who have given thought to the matter know that P. E. Island's position is that it always understood that it entered the union on an agreement such as British Columbia has, that its representation should never be less than six. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have no such understanding, but it was not anticipated that this would take the turn they are now causing such a loss in representation. The influence of the Maritime Provinces in the Federal Parliament. Hon. Mr. Hazzard, Premier of Prince Edward Island; Hon. A. K. McLean, acting Premier and Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, and Mr. Warburton, M. P. of P. E. Island, are coming to St. John on Thursday for a conference with Premier Hazen.

MONDAY

J. A. D. McCurdy, Nova Scotia's representative in the field of aviation has won a signal triumph in having transmitted the first wireless message from an aeroplane in flight. Young McCurdy was one of the charter members of the Aeronautical Experimental Association engaged for some time at Baddeck in the development of the airship. The other members of the association were Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, to whom the world is indebted for the telephone; Glenn Curtiss, the wizard of the air; Lieut. Selridge, who was killed in a fall from a Wright biplane near Washington, two summers ago, and "Casey" Baldwin who is perhaps better known from his work on the gridiron as a former Toronto "Valley" football star than from his excursions into the clouds. After the disbanding of this association, the following closely upon Lieut. Selridge's death, McCurdy and Baldwin continued their experiments at Baddeck with varying results. Their aim was to construct an airship from material obtained only in Canada. Everything went along merrily until the question of a motor came up. They could find no firm in Canada with the facilities to construct a motor suitable for their needs. They finally compromised on an automobile but the trials of their completed airship, Baddeck II in the vicinity of the Cape Breton, failed at Petewawa proved the inefficiency of this type. Since that time McCurdy has been improving the shining moments as an aviator in the field of his former co-worker. It is fairly certain that besides negotiating a number of patents, he has raised himself with a working knowledge of the aeroplane motor. So perhaps, we shall have a perfectly good Canadian airship after all.—St. John Star.

Since the opening of the Japan-British Exhibition in London much interest has been shown by the public in the Gyroscopic monorail, the invention of Louis Brennan. The principle of this car, which will probably do much to minimize the difficulties of the engineers in the future in certain parts of Canada, has been dealt with at various times in the papers of this province. The authorities of the Japan-British Exhibition have awarded to Mr. Brennan the highest possible award that it is in their power to give—namely, the Grand Prize. A line on the Brennan monorail principle is being constructed in Alaska, and it will probably not be long before lines of it to be found in various parts of Canada.—Ex.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Striking Example of its Cure by the Tonic Treatment

St. Vitus' dance is the commonest form of nervous trouble which afflicts the human race, because of the great demands made, because of the great growth and development, and there is added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that the nervous debility which leads to St. Vitus' dance.

The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus' dance should lead parents to give their children this great blood-builder as medicine at the first signs of the approach of the disease. Falor, listlessness, inattention, restlessness and irritability are all symptoms which early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them. Mrs. A. Winters, Virden, Man., says: "When my little girl was six years old she was attacked with scarlatina, which was followed by St. Vitus' dance. Her limbs would jerk and twitch. Her speech became affected, and at last she became so bad that she could scarcely walk, and we hardly dared trust her alone. She was under the care of a doctor, but in spite of this was steadily growing worse, and we feared that we would lose her. As Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her older sister of anaemia I decided to try them again. After the use of a few boxes, to our great joy, we found that she was helping herself in the course of a few weeks more, her power of speech fully returned, and she could walk and go about as well as any child, and she has been well and healthy since. When illness comes to any one of our family now, we never call in a doctor, but simply use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they never disappoint us." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE OLDEST LIVING WOMAN.

Frau Dutkiewicz, living at Poson in Prussian Poland, has long enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest woman in the world. She was born on February 21, 1785, and thus was 125 years old last February. However, a Bulgarian peasant woman named Vassilik, and who has never quitted her native village of Bavelako, has deprived the aged dame of Poson of her record of longevity for the Bulgarian peasant was born in May, 1784, and is thus nine months older. For nearly 100 years the Bulgarian peasant has worked in the fields; her descendants, who are nearly a hundred in number, now make her a joint allowance. The old dame recalls events that happened in the beginning of last century much more easily than she can recall those of the last forty years.
