EVERY MEAL ENDED IN MISERY

But His Indigestion Was Relieved by Kruschen

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, loss of appetite, and a most severe pain in my back. Food soured in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for them. A friend advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Kruschen till I felt myself quite better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—W.B.

The several salts in Kruschen combine aid in promoting regularity and help cleanse your system each day of poisons and impurities. Millions take the "little daily dose." Ask your druggist for the

Wife's Portraits Bring Him Praise

VANCOUVER, Feb. 4 — (CP)— Lionel Thomas, 26-year-old elevator man in Vancouver hotel believes he can paint great pictures—and Vancouver art critics after seeing his paintings of his wife, admit he can.

Travelling the hard road of many great artists, he says his secret is a determination to paint the pictures he knows he can despite financial difficulties. One day he hopes to gain prominence in the field of Canadian art.

Graduate of two Ontario art schools and a commercial artist in his own right, young Thomas came here two months ago from Toronto with his wife, also an art student. He refused to go into commercial art, believing one cannot do two things well—and he wants to do classical works.

So he took the elevator job to get money for needed equipment and paint the "colorful types" of people he came here to find. Spare time since has been spent at home doing full lengths of his wife, Patricia.

One a clever study in blue and another, a yellow-toned work infused with life and feeling, brought praise from Vancouver art critics when they went on view at the Vancouver art gallery recently. They are ready to admit that young Thomas can and will paint great pictures.

64 Axis vessels Sunk in January

By Louis V. Hunter
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 5 —(CP Cable)— Allied air forces operating over wide stretches of European water, sank or damaged at least 64 axis vessels of all types in January, it is estimated in an official summary released tonight.

In the Pacific theatre, where allied strength is increasing, 52 Japanese vessels were sent to the bottom or hit. Destruction of a 20,000-ton liner was the highlight of operations in the Mediterranean, where 15 vessels were sunk or damaged.

In the North Sea and off the Atlantic coast six enemy supply ships and a tanker were sunk, damaged or set afire.

The European total includes attacks on convoys off the Netherlands coast and on other shipping in the North Sea, and a series of night attacks to which the warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst and Prinz Eugen were subjected at Brest, occupied France.

Information from the far east is incomplete, but there have been at least 43 attacks by the R. A. F. and the Royal Australian Air Force against 23 land targets, many of which were airdromes occupied by the enemy. Defensive and offensive operations in that area resulted in the destruction of 213 aircraft in addition to other losses inflicted by United States and Netherlands Indies air forces.

Summerside friends were grieved to hear of his death and extend sympathy to the family. His brother, G. Fred Campbell, on the right, is serving with the R. C. A. F. in England.

North Novas Had happy time On Christmas

(Truro Times)

Christmas Day was a day of happiness, interspersed with tears, genuine tears, for the officers and men of the North Nova Scotia Highlanders, somewhere in England. The troops had their Christmas dinner with the time honored turkey and all the fixin's. But that wasn't all. They had babies. They visited an old castle, a striking structure, now being used as an orphanage, and there made love to the little tots. What a sight! What a home reminder! The boys loved it. But tears came to the eyes. Even a visiting brigadier, one of those men supposed to be steeled to circumstances, was seen wiping his eyes.

Let the commanding officer of this fine unit tell the story. Mrs. Ward Murdock, 80 Smith Avenue, received a letter a few days ago from her husband Lt. Col. Ward Murdock, in which the story of Christmas day with the North Novies was told also some other interesting bits about the boys of whom we are all so proud.

Col. Murdock's Letter

Here in part, is the letter:

Christmas was sort of a jumble of happiness and sadness for me. I received the cable from Mrs. Learment about Jack's passing and asking me to tell Donald. It arrived just about noon. I had a bit of a bad time for a few minutes. Although we knew it was to be expected it is always a bit of a shock when it actually comes. Donald was having such a good time preparing Christmas tree and decorations and gifts for the kids. I decided since he died on the 18th and I only received the cable on the 24th, one day more wouldn't hurt without him knowing, so I held it until last night after we came back from a Christmas concert. I took him in to my room and gave him the sad news. He took it standing up. I offered him a few days off if he wished, but he thought he was better off to keep on working hard.

Christmas eve when the work was all done we just sat around the fire and talked. Syd is back and we are very glad to have him. The night before that the Padre was over with his little portable organ and we sang Christmas carols most of the evening. Yesterday Christmas morning I got up about 7.30. One of the first things that happened after breakfast was the mailman came in, with four letters from home.

"Tasted Great"

We mooned around during the morning putting finishing touches on the tree, etc. At noon the turkey was ready so we, the officers, served the men, then had our own in our mess tins too, exactly the same as the men. We had turkey, gravy, potatoes, dressing and plum pudding. It tasted great and was well cooked. We draw rations for three Coy's from the R. A. F. and we found they were going to issue turkey for Christmas, so we had to scurry around and buy turkey ourselves for the other two companies. As we couldn't have some get it and some not.

Immediately after dinner the trucks started out for the orphanages for the kids. I left at two o'clock to meet the Brigadier as he wanted to visit all the parties with me. We started with D and B combined. Major Stewart of Charlottetown and Major Carl Mitchell of Truro, (Stewart and Mitchell). They had about 35 children and the party was well under way when we arrived. Santa was there, giving every child a present and a bag of candy. Kids were from 2 to 8 years, average about five, then they sang carols. Had an old time fiddlers orchestra, the Padre's organ, a little girl tap dancer and a Popeye act. We left there and dropped in to H, G, and C Coy. here. They were going strong on carols and all kids had apples and candy. Santa hadn't arrived yet, but was due any minute to give out the gifts. Next we went to A Coy. where Santa had been (we had only two Santa suits and had to move them around in order to take in all four places.) A Coy boys were having their entertainment. A soldier quartet, a yodeler, then ten small kids got up on the platform, none over four years old and sang, Little Jack Horner. My it was cute! Some couldn't pronounce the words but at least made a loud effort. Next we went on to the fourth place. Had to keep moving as we had to cover about 15 miles.

This last place was a St. Bernard's orphanage in Lord Mountbatten's Estate. A gorgeous place given up I believe for the kids for the duration of the war. About 125 children, most of them so small they could not be taken to the soldiers billets so we took the troops to them. Major Elsworth Lewis, Economy (mostly H. G. Coy. Lewis) sent some of rear Battr. Headquarters. The troops all marched up from their billets with the band and Santa in the parade. We caught up to them just as they reached the castle. About 75 kids lined the big veranda, and in the big windows were many more smaller ones. Inside the boys made a grand job of decorating a Christmas tree.

We were allowed in the nursery, there in cribs and play pens were about 30 babies from 3 months to one year.

One Happy Family

In two minutes every soldier including myself had a baby in his arms. What a glorious sight! Nobody suggested in any of the places that the men pick up the children, but in all places they all had them on their knees or in their arms. I must admit I gulped and shed a few tears many times yesterday, but I did not feel quite so much of a softie after seeing the Brigadier wiping his eyes two or three times. Big, tough lumberjacks, coalminers, fishermen, etc., all holding a baby!

Young Swan went by me with one and I talked to him for a minute. He married Jeannie Scott in Amherst. Their baby was born the day he sailed, and of course, he never saw it. Can you imagine what it meant to lads like that. Young Roddie Scott with one in his arms. It just makes me shed tears to even write about it. I coaxed several into my arms, except one little fellow who made a dip every time I went near him with my arms. He was just able to stand up teetering. I thought I could win children over, but I couldn't make that lad. Syd (Dr. Syd Gilchrist, M. O. of Pictou) and I are going up again tomorrow afternoon and want to see them again, and I told such a story when I got back that Syd and (Capt. I. G. Smith, Truro) Ike, want to go too. Miss Rice, the matron is a fine person too and did so much to make everyone welcome. God given qualities of a glow of kindness and goodness.

I got back about 5.15 and as soon as we had supper we loaded up about 300 men in trucks and took them down to the next town where the H. L. S. are. The town people were putting on a big Christmas concert and had invited us down. Talent was brought in from London. Some of it was great, a few bits were a little cheap, but all in all it completed a good Christmas for all under the circumstances of being so far from our own loved ones.

Everyone worked like Trojans to make a success of it. I felt so proud that we had gone through with it. The orphanage people and others told us no one had ever thought of doing anything like that before neither soldiers nor civilians.

We got back from there about 11.30 and after I told Don and with all that off my mind I went to bed and slept peacefully. I believe with a smile on my face. It was a grand day of happiness mixed with sadness.
