N. B. Butter Bd. Will fix prices

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 23.—(CP)—A New Brunswick Butter Board which will fix the minimum price of wholesale creamery butter, has been set up in the province under the provisions of the Provincial Natural Products Control Act, 1937. Notice of the setting up of the Board was contained in this week's issue of the Royal Gazette.

The personnel of the Board which will consist of three members, one of whom will be chairman, will be announced later, and is now being considered by the Natural Products and Control Board of New Brunswick, which will make the appointments. It is likely that Miss Betty MacLeod of Charlottetown will be appointed tomorrow and will hold the first meeting at once.

In addition to the New Brunswick Butter Board, the rules and regulations of the Dairy Producers' Association, and has met with the general approval of at least 80 per cent. of the creameries in the province.

The plan under which the Butter Board was set up was passed at the request of the New Brunswick Dairy Producers' Association, and has met with the general approval of at least 80 per cent. of the creameries in the province.

Parker, Toronto, general manager and secretary of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., addressed a large and interested gathering of Underwriters at the Hotel Cecil yesterday. He spoke of the participation by insurance companies in the national effort, claiming that by inducing people to put their money in protection, they were in a position to invest in war bonds. Mr. Parker also explained the meaning of the Chartered Life Underwriters' degree. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. R. J. Rupert, and seconded by Mr. Walter Hyndman. It was supported by Mr. Edwin Johnston, of the Royal Bank, President of the Association, occupied the chair.

A STRANGE "FISH"—Three young Charlottetown boys went fishing yesterday afternoon. They went out St. Peter's Road and coming to Wright's bridge, decided to try their luck. They were greatly surprised when one of their number hooked a big fish which was submerged in the stream. The boys hauled the object ashore and investigated its contents. They were even more surprised when the sack was found to contain—of all things—a cash register. The machine was complete—even to the key. The cash register was then hid in a bush nearby and taking the key with them, to assure that it would not be opened, immediately went and informed the City Police of their find. Constable A. J. Lund of the City Police, and Constable Lionel Stronoff of the C. O. P., went to the scene and brought the "fish" back to Charlottetown. The register appeared to have been in the sack for some time and the drawer was stuck. It will be opened this morning and further investigation held. It is believed that the machine was stolen at some store in the province, and after the removal of the contents, dumped in the stream.

St. George's day At city Churches

Special services were held in various city churches yesterday in honor of St. George, patron saint of England. Morning and evening services were held.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH—Special services in honor of St. George were held in Trinity United Church in the evening when prayers asking for steadfastness and courage until final victory was won were offered.

Rev. Hugh Miller, who conducted the service, spoke of the secret of the morale of the British people. This was due to their centuries of development along cultural and religious lines, he said. Love of freedom, just as manifested in public schools, law and parliaments, were among the cultural developments of the country.

Hymns sung were: "O God of Bethel" "O God Our Help in Ages Past", etc.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL—At St. Peter's the day was marked by the celebration of Holy Communion in the morning at 7:45 and in the afternoon at 3:30. Canon E. M. Malone officiating.

Evensong was at 7:30 p. m. with special litany and prayers asking for courage and strength for those in the mother country.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH—At St. Paul's Church, the incumbent, Rev. A. LeDrew, conducted service in the morning afternoon and evening in honor of St. George.

At all services special prayers of intercession were asked for victory in the war.

The service in the evening took the form of an evening with special prayers.

Farm buildings Burned at Mill Cove

A gasoline engine used in threshing grain, was blamed for a fire which destroyed the farm buildings at Mill Cove, North Queen's County, yesterday night. The fire which occurred late Tuesday night, was fanned by a high wind and the burning crew, reinforced by other residents of the district were unable to cope with the lightning spread of the flames. In a short time the dwelling and several small buildings were scattered from the barn.

The fire started in a shed where a gasoline engine was used in threshing grain. The fire spread to the dwelling and several small buildings were scattered from the barn.

It was not learned whether there was any insurance.

Funeral of Mrs. Legato Yesterday

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Legato, wife of Rev. R. Moorhead Legato, D.D., were held at the Kirk House, Pownal Street, yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, by Rev. Dr. E. M. Geoghegan, Chatham, N.B.

The scripture reading was the first Corinthians, Chapter 15, verse 20. The prayer was read by the Rev. Dr. E. M. Geoghegan. His remarks on Psalm 123, verse 2: "So He giveth His beloved sleep."

He referred to the late Mrs. Legato as a woman of nature. It was through nature she understood God. She loved flowers and saw much beauty in them. He closed his remarks with the following lines: "Like morning sunshine after the rain. When birds take up the glad refrain. And sing again. The service was closed with benediction by Dr. Geoghegan.

At the conclusion of the service the body was removed to the N. D. MacLean Funeral Home from where it will be taken this morning to Montreal. Interment will be in Hudson, Quebec.

City Schools observe St. George's day

City school children fittingly observed St. George's Day yesterday with special programs consisting of patriotic numbers. In each of the schools the programs were given by members of the Canadian Legion. School children were let out early in the afternoon in order to see the military band and air force parade. The programs at the schools were as follows:—

PRINCE STREET

At Prince Street a special musical program was arranged for the occasion with a patriotic address being given by Mr. P. J. LeDrew, president of the Canadian Legion. The songs were sung by the pupils.

In his address, Mr. Rossiter outlined briefly the life history of St. George, stating that his birth was in Cappadocia in Asia Minor. He was of noble birth and early in life became a soldier. Through devotion to duty he rose to a high rank. St. George objected to the persecution of Christians and finally he openly declared his belief in the Christian religion and resigned his commission. For this he was tortured and put to death in 303 A.D.

Instead of being a martyr, his fortitude and courage of the British people as being typical of their patriotic spirit. The English and French Academics in their ranks, who are still residing in the mist-girdled mountains of Scotland.

And withal the Highlanders are also cosmopolitan. There are many French Academics in their ranks, while Cumberland and Colchester have contributed descendants from the sturdy Yorkshire settlers who came to Nova Scotia after the fall of Fort Beauséjour on the Isthmus of Chignecto after 1766.

Officers and men with the North Nova Scotia Highlanders have all interwoven with the industrial, commercial and educational life of the Maritime Provinces. Col. Murdoch, for example, operates motor sales agencies and garages in Amherst and Truro. Major David Stewart of Charlottetown, linked with a prominent oil company, is a son of a former Conservative Premier of Prince Edward Island. Lieutenant William Douglas of Amherst, a promising young lawyer, has a dual political connection in Nova Scotia history. He is a grandson of the late Hon. W. T. Piper, an ex-Liberal Premier of Nova Scotia, and a nephew of Senator E. N. Rhodes, a former Conservative Premier of the Province.

N. N. S. And P. E. I. Highlanders

By RONALD M. ROSS
(In Montreal Standard)

AMHERST, N. S. With many months of actual hard training behind them the North Nova Scotia Highlanders, crack rifle unit under the command of Lieutenant-Col. H. Ward Murdoch, are like all other Canadian battalions anxious to get into action. The North Nova units in the Third Division while other units with the division are quartered at Debert and Sussex, the Highlanders have been located in Amherst since the outbreak.

The North Nova Scotians are brigaded with the Highland Light Infantry from Galt, Ontario, and the Highland Battalion from Stornoway, Dundas and Glenary — and this Ninth Brigade constitutes the only Highland Brigade in the Canadian Army. The Nova Scotians thus far have only met the two Ontario Scottish units at hockey matches and other inter divisional sports events, but a fine feeling of friendliness has been on display, and the three battalions with a background of Scotch ancestry, have given quiet evidence of future co-operation.

Composite Battalion

Although tagged with a Provincial name, the North Nova Scotia Highlanders are in reality a composite battalion, embracing companies from Prince Edward Island, as well as the various Nova Scotia Counties of Cape Breton, Pictou, Cumberland and Colchester.

Mobilized at the outbreak of war, the North Nova Scotians in their initial formation were made up of companies from Cumberland and Colchester Counties only. Score upon score of men who responded to the initial call applied for transfers to the West Nova Scotia Regiment — the first Nova Scotia battalion to move overseas. Eventually the North Nova Scotians were earmarked for the Third Division and under this arrangement Lieutenant-Col. H. Ward Murdoch, was given the command, while Lieutenant-Col. Arnold G. MacLellan, who first commanded the unit, was assigned to the Depot Battalion.

"Every Highland District"

Soldiers identified with three different companies has been engaged on coastal city since the start of hostilities. All were partially trained men and when the companies were assembled in Amherst, a further recruiting call was issued. Then came the rush. Every Highland district in the Maritime Provinces contributed quotas of men to the North Nova — in fact the battalion could have been over-strength in rapid order.

Many Veterans

Not only are clan names still familiar among the officers and other ranks of the North Nova Scotia Highlanders, but in the unit are scores of men who fought against the Hun in the Great War — men who have instilled in the Highlanders something of that glorious tradition that Canadians compiled in the grim days of 1914-1918. Lieutenant-Col. H. W. Murdoch served with the 85th Battalion under Col. Ralston. So did the O. C. of the Depot Battalion, Lieutenant-Col. Arnold G. MacLellan. Major Arthur W. Mackenzie, second in command, was likewise with the 85th Battalion. Major Mackenzie, one of the leading agricultural and livestock experts in Nova Scotia, has already served with the Western Nova Scotia Regiment in England, but was asked to return home to aid in training the North Nova Scotians.

Cosmopolitan

The galaxy of Scottish names might well sound like a roster of an actual Scots division from the Highlanders. There are MacLeods, MacLeans, MacLennans, MacDonnells, MacPhersons, MacIntyres, MacDougalls, Ross, Robertson, Fraser, MacKenzie — descendants from the great Scotch migration which came to Cape Breton, Pictou County and Prince Edward Island. Clan relationship can be traced back by scores of the men with kinfolk still residing in the mist-girdled mountains of Scotland.

And withal the Highlanders are also cosmopolitan. There are many French Academics in their ranks, while Cumberland and Colchester have contributed descendants from the sturdy Yorkshire settlers who came to Nova Scotia after the fall of Fort Beauséjour on the Isthmus of Chignecto after 1766.

Queen Square

The pupils of Queen Square assembled in their hall to do honor to St. George by presenting a patriotic program. The highlight of the occasion was the fine address given by Mr. J. F. Leightner.

Mr. Leightner related the various legends centering around the life of England's patron saint. The English and Western Christians claimed that St. George was born in Asia Minor, while the British believed that he was born in Coventry, Eng. The speaker described how St. George slew the dragon and saved the princess who was willing to take her chance with the rest of the children in the country. He compared Queen Elizabeth, who is at present remaining in England and taking her chances with the rest of the princess. Prime Minister Churchill, like the patron saint, is also fighting for the Christian principles and the British are still carrying the banner of St. George.

The flag salute by the entire group of pupils was very impressive. While one of their number held the Union Jack on the stage, the others saluted it.

Major MacNutt gave an interesting and instructive talk on the second of St. George, explaining the events leading up to the choosing of him as patron saint of England. The speaker also reminded the pupils of their duties to the Empire in time of war and asked them to pray for success. He also urged them to be steadfast and courageous and in conclusion, spoke of the characteristics of the British people.

ROCHFORD SQUARE

At Rochford Square school, the day was fittingly observed with a program of patriotic songs and an address by Mr. J. E. Harris, an active part in a musical program consisting of patriotic songs.

Mr. Harris, in his address, spoke briefly on the life of St. George, the patron saint of England. He gave a short history of the Saint's life, describing how he became the patron of England. He sacrificed his life for his faith and belief in what was right. England is fighting for the same principles today as her patron saint fought for many years ago.

Numbers on the program included: "O Canada," "There'll Always be an England," and a recitation in honor of St. George.

Publish a Paper

Just for example, the North Nova Scotia Highlanders would have little trouble in publishing a newspaper. In fact, they are engaged in a rather good job on a fortnightly publication and it is known as "The Nova Thistle."

"There'll Always be an England" and "The Land We Love" were among the patriotic numbers sung. The National Anthem closed the program.

NOTRE DAME

At Notre Dame Academy, pupils assembled to listen to a patriotic address by Mr. J. E. Harris, an active part in a musical program consisting of patriotic songs.

Mr. Harris, in his address, spoke briefly on the life of St. George, the patron saint of England. He gave a short history of the Saint's life, describing how he became the patron of England. He sacrificed his life for his faith and belief in what was right. England is fighting for the same principles today as her patron saint fought for many years ago.

Search continues For six Nazis

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HERON BAY, Ont., April 23.—(CP)—Mal. C. B. Lindsay, officer in charge of the search for six German prisoners who remain at large after the escape of 28 from a northwestern Ontario internment camp early Saturday, said tonight that "mild weather will facilitate our search of nearby areas, in which they may be perished escapees."

Bitter winds sweep the country along the north shore of Lake Superior Saturday and Sunday, and there were snowstorms this Monday and yesterday. But this afternoon the weather turned mild and a warm sun quickly melted four inches of snow which fell in the district during the night.

Rome papers Say Greece Lesson to U. S.

ROME, April 23.—(AP)—Encircled Greek armies in the Epirus and Macedonia sectors of Greece, in the purchase of an ambulance and all their arms, war materials and landing fields went to German and Italian armies as spoils of war.

The unconditional surrender agreed to by Greek officers in the field earlier today became effective at 6 p. m. (12 noon A.S.T.) and the Greek newspapers immediately announced the collapse of the Greek armies as a "lesson to America."

Further, Italy envisioned important territorial gains in the Balkans and looked forward to the next thrust of the Axis armies—probably in Egypt.

Instead of allowing the surrendering Greeks to return home, the men and officers will be treated as prisoners of war, to be kept in concentration camps pending conclusion of military operations on continental Greece and the Ionian islands.

Greek officers were allowed to retain their swords in recognition, the terms said, of the "courage shown by Greek troops on the battlefield."

Observers here said they believed the victorious German and Italian forces would concentrate next on driving at the Nile from Libya and attempting the conquest of Egypt by launching an attack on Gibraltar. Operations against Gibraltar might involve Portugal as well as Spain.

Princess Colliery Remains idle

SYDNEY, MINES, N.S., April 23.—(CP)—Princess Colliery's 1,100 men remained idle tonight, continuing the strike that began yesterday in sympathy with 16 employees who protested a change in timbering operations.

No action was taken today at a meeting of the pit's United Mine Workers of America local. Another meeting is to be held tomorrow, and it was indicated that the colliery would not work in the meantime.

Cavalry recruit—"I don't like the look of this horse's head, sir."

Sergeant—"Oh, don't worry. You'll soon get over that."
