The tables were a triumph of culinary achievement. The ladies of this community may justly be proud of their fine art of cooking, and the large crowd, coming from far and near, was proof that their fame has gone abroad. Gatherings of this kind also tend to sustain the community spirit of good fellowship and stimulate social activity. A handsome sum was realized.—B.

KENSINGTON RINK ACTIVITIES—The big indoor circus held in the rink at Kensington, Oct. 15th-19th was the first affair of this kind to be held in Kensington and it was a grand success. Large crowds enjoyed the games each evening and the closing night brought a record attendance. The Misouche band played excellent music on the opening and closing nights and proved beyond a doubt that "music hath charms." Under its cheering influence the crowd were put in right good humor and everyone was so sociable and pleasant that many old and new friendships were renewed. It is safe to say that more than one romance had its inception at the Indoor Circus. The bingo game was popular with everyone and the lucky winners received handsome prizes. Those who did not win had lots of fun and excitement. The toll booth was most attractive and the game of darts very exciting. The dolls were made and prizes in this game and many a "bull's eye" was shot by the amateur archers of Kensington and vicinity. Each night saw many beautiful dolls carried home to cheer the hearts of some little girls. Ringing the watches and canes was also popular for anyone and not too difficult for anyone to try. The fishing pond, presided over by Miss Olive Thompson, was the centre of attraction for the little folks. Every angler was rewarded with a "bite" and mostly got just what they liked best. The drawing for the door prize which took place each evening at 9:30 was anxiously awaited. The winners were as follows: Messrs. Leonard Watson, Fred Perry, L. Rogers, Summerside, Iva Champion and Miss Isabelle McLean, daughter of Mr. Wm. McLean, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Kensington. Miss McLean, emulating her father in his hearty support of anything pertaining to the rink, very generously donated the prize Saturday night as lucky door prize. Altogether the management of the rink were well pleased with the success of the first Indoor Circus.

Thanksgiving Service In Kensington

A large congregation gathered for a united Thanksgiving service, held in the Presbyterian Church, Thursday morning, Oct. 24th. Members of the three churches assisted in the choir. The opening hymn was a psalm of praise, "All Good Things Around Us Are Sent From Heaven Above; Then Thank the Lord, O Thank the Lord, for All His Love."

Rev. Mr. Fream of the Anglican Church assisted the pastor. Rev. Mr. Rhoad, in the devotional exercises.

Mr. Salter of the United Church was called upon and delivered the address. His subject was from the 4th chapter of John, "One sower, and another reapeth, I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour; other men laboured and ye are entered into their labours." First of all, we have reason to be thankful to the farmer who sows the seed, and reap the harvest. Even back of that, there should be gratitude to the mechanic, who makes the plow and the machinery, necessarily in use on a farm. How many of us who sit down to even the simplest meal at home, give a thought to the laborer, who makes that meal possible? The bread, the tea, and sugar, the fish we eat—have we thankful thoughts for those who toil all day in the hot sun, for those who labour in the fields, under burning skies, and for those who, often at the risk of their lives, sail the seas and bring us those things we accept as every day things? "Other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours." And these are only some of the material things we ought to be thankful for. What of the spiritual side? First and foremost, we can be thankful for our churches. Even the buildings we worship in were erected at often great sacrifice and cost and labour by our fathers; and we sometimes feel it an effort to keep that building in repair!

What of our Bibles? We buy a Bible for a dollar, and think we pay for it! We pay for the paper it is printed on and the binding of it. Those who paid for the Bible are the men of the past, the men all down through the ages, who suffered and gave their lives, that we might have God's Word. Those martyrs of the early church in Rome, who suffered for their belief in Christ, and were often thrown to wild beasts. Of those men in monasteries who kept alive the flames and preserved the Word for us. Of William Tyndall, who studied and wrote and suffered in a foul prison, and afterwards was put to death for his faith. Of those Reformers, that great sixteenth century awakening, when countless numbers died, that we might enjoy religious liberty. What do we not owe to all of those legions who have gone before, and have given to us the Word of God?

"One sower, and another reapeth, other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours."

Let us with grateful hearts thank God for our heritage, to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour, and the great principles of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

After this soul-stirring address, Mrs. J. Edward Warren sang very sweetly and effectively "Leave It With Him," by Ellis.

The meeting closed with the singing of the grand old Psalm, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," and the Benediction. B.

SINGLO

Kensington To Get a Permanent

The citizens of Kensington are all agog over the new paved street to be laid along Broadway, in the near future.

The work on the main highway, passing through the town, is nearing completion, when finished we may justly be proud of our permanent roads.

We are glad to be living in such an enlightened and progressive age; but are we so very modern after all?

There were permanent roads built by the Romans, in Britain, the remnants of which may be found to this day. It is very interesting to note, in view of all the road work under construction in P. E. I. at the present time, that a portion of the old Fosse road (so called in Anglo-Saxon times and since) which remains, about ten miles southwest of Bath, England, was opened in 1881 and showed the following construction:

First, Pavimentum, or foundation, of fine earth, hard beaten in.

Second, Statumen, or bed of the road, composed of large stones, sometimes mixed with mortar.

Third, Ruderatio, or small stones well mixed with mortar.

Fourth, Nucleus, of gravel, sand and lime mixed with clay.

Fifth, Upon this was laid the surface of the paved road, technically called the summum dorsum.

Of course all the roads then were not built with quite so much care, but they were substantial enough to endure, and remained in use for centuries. In a few hundred years' time, will our descendants be trafficking up and down our permanent highways, and at odd intervals doing their bit of repair work on them?

Here's hoping!—B

SELASSIE

Ethiopian army is in such an excellent position, with supplies, arms and ammunition now coming in, that the Emperor almost is able to dictate terms to II Duca.

Selassie, at long last, persuaded Italy's minister to Ethiopia to agree today to leave the country—a task that has taken two weeks to accomplish.

The obdurate Count Luigi Vinciguilucci was given his passport 15 days ago and asked to leave within 48 hours. But he refused to go until two Italian commercial agents arrived from Magalo to depart with him.

The agents have reached here so the minister will leave tomorrow with them and Major Calderini, the Italian military attaché. For the last time, Count Vinciguilucci has been living at the home of Haile Selassie's son-in-law, holding the status of a private citizen.

(Negadras Yesus, Ethiopian Minister to Rome, has been recalled by Selassie and is expected to leave Oct. 25.)

The French legation will handle Italian diplomatic interests after the departure of the Italian envoy, Emperor Haile Selassie spent five hours today reviewing wild warriors who arrived from remote interior points en route to the front.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—(C. P. Hayes)—Premier Laval and Italian Ambassador Vittorio Verutti conferred here today for more than an hour. Official circles kept the strictest secrecy on the interview, but it was known to have dealt with the Ethiopian situation.

Informed observers here said there was no doubt the talk was of great importance in current negotiations for settlement of the international situation and that official silence was caused by determination to let no premature publicity interfere.

New reports of Italian concessions toward peace negotiations came from unofficial quarters tonight.

Writing in the Liberal newspaper L'Ouvre, Genevieve Tabouin said she had learned from Rome that Mussolini would not consider his Libyan troop withdrawals real unless reduction of Great Britain's Mediterranean Fleet; that II Duca would undertake to send military operations and stop sending troops to Africa pending a British reply to his "suggestions" and that he was willing to have the League of Nations handle these suggestions should they suit London.

For Italian and international protectorates over Ethiopia have been reported here before, but they were entirely without confirmation and were considered generally unacceptable to either Emperor Haile Selassie or to Great Britain.

UNDER-SECY. PLAN ADOPTED

King Announces British System To Be Used In New Parliament.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Assembling of a Dominion-Provincial Conference at an early date, reduction in the size of the Dominion Cabinet by merger of departments and adoption of the British system of appointing parliamentary under-secretaries to assist Cabinet Ministers were three announcements made last night by Premier Mackenzie King.

As soon as the new Cabinet had been sworn in, Mr. King issued a statement explaining his views on these matters. He also explained he had asked Premier James G. Gardiner to become Minister of Agriculture and was awaiting a reply. Apart from this he had consulted no Liberal Provincial Premier as to the personnel of the new Cabinet. The statement follows:

Text of Statement

"I will be observed that, in the formation of the Government, I have felt it to be in the public interest that the Government itself should be reduced in size, and a reduction of the cost of government effected by a consolidation in the number of portfolios. It will require legislation to give effect to the reorganization of Departments of Government thus contemplated. Pending the reorganization, in cases where departments are to be combined or consolidated, the several portfolios involved have been assigned to one Minister.

"With this end in view, the Departments of Mines, Immigration and Colonization, Interior and Indian Affairs are being combined under one Minister. When reorganization is effected an appropriate designation will be given the combined departments.

"The Department of Railways and Canals and the Department of Marine will be combined to be known as a new department to be known as the Department of Transport.

No Solicitor-General

"Further economy in the cost of government will be effected by the abolition of the position of Solicitor-General. The duties of that office will be taken over by the Minister of Justice.

"The reorganization of departments effected, and others, will be given further consideration by the Cabinet as a whole, between now and the assembling of Parliament.

The Health division of the Department of Pensions and National Health, which the present is being administered by the Minister of Pensions, will, in all probability, be made a part of the Department of Labor, as having an immediate association with such matters as old age pensions, unemployment insurance, and other phases of social insurance.

"As a part of this reorganization of departments, which aims at efficiency in the public service, in matters of administration, it is the intention of the Government to make provision, at the first session of Parliament, in the case of the more important departments, for the appointment of parliamentary secretaries, whose position will correspond to that of the parliamentary under-secretaries in the British House of Commons.

Salaried Secretaries

"The selection of parliamentary secretaries will be made in the same manner as that of the ministry itself. A salary will be attached to the position. In this particular, the Government will be carrying out a recommendation made as long ago as 1912 by Sir George Murray in a report on the organization of the public service of Canada.

"The appointment of parliamentary secretaries will have the additional advantage of permitting recognition to be given to members of Parliament who, because of the limited number of portfolios, cannot be taken into the Ministry.

"I have not forgotten that it was just sixteen years ago today that, as a member for Prince County, Prince Edward Island, I entered Parliament as the leader of the Opposition. It has been a regret to me that it has not been possible to give representation in the Cabinet to Prince Edward Island. It has been suggested that the deficiency in this particular might be met, at least in part, by the appointment of a Minister without portfolio. I have felt that the representation of the province would be effected in a more satisfactory manner: if a member from that province were appointed as one of the parliamentary secretaries to work in association with a Minister of one of the departments. I indeed therefore, to see that in the list of parliamentary secretaries, Prince Edward Island receives immediate recognition.

Gardiner Considers

"It will be observed that the only portfolio to which an appointment has not yet been made is the all-important Department of Agriculture. I have asked Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan to accept this portfolio. Mr. Gardiner has told me that his responsi-
