ANXIOUS MOMENTS

Chapter 9

On the whole, it was a good thing for Ruth that the next few days were crowded. For while she worried, at least her worries were about more than her own troubles. And there is always consolation in that.

The evening she went upstairs after sitting in the cold on the top step of the porch she found her father lying propped up by pillows with an open volume of Montaigne's Essays in his hand.

"Let's read some of these this evening," he suggested, handing her the book.

Ruth had been but recently introduced to Montaigne. She and her father had read through most of the good old classics—Duncan O'Neil had a special fondness for the later writers like Scott and Dickens, Thackeray and Byron.

The year before they had read every Kipling book in the Free Library and before that in Ruth's junior year they had gone through many of what Duncan called the "ancient classics." This was when Ruth was studying ancient history and the old Greek and Roman plays and orations that her father made her read had done much to make vivid to her the world of "ancient" days before.

But the medieval French philosophy was new to her. The first time she had delighted in his simple common sense his cheery outlook, his occasional mild cynicism. But tonight she could not keep her mind on what she was reading.

For there are times when cheerfulness only aggravates. Ruth felt assured that Montaigne should offer her consolation. In his day one did not need a knowledge of shorthand and bookkeeping to succeed in life.

"Never mind, let's talk a little," Duncan O'Neil suggested when a long pause between words showed him that his daughter's mind was not on her book. "Where's your mother?"

"In the kitchen making tomato butter from the last tomatoes in the garden. The grocer trusted us for 15 pounds of sugar."

"The bitterness of 18 when it first faces disillusion was in Ruth's voice.

"Ruth," the man said gently at that moment. "You don't know how sorry I am that you could not go to New York today with Myra. Of course you will—we'll manage it soon."

But Ruth knew, almost for the first time that she would never be "managed" again—that her father's optimistic remark was only another of his beautiful illusions about life.

She said nothing for a while. Her face, however, showed the invalid much more than spoken words could have told.

"It's only that I wanted to do so much for you and mother," she said presently. "Of course I'll get a position here in town soon. I'll be looking about."

"Oh, no, I'd hate to have you going to an office every day, coming home tired—somehow in the city it wouldn't be so bad. At least, the work would pay better and be less fatiguing."

Again Ruth was not deceived. She knew that her father dreaded to see her join the ranks of "working girls"—to see her, in her business suit, go out each morning and come each night, a little more worn, a little older, a little harder. If she were in the city, Duncan could let loose his irritation and picture her in the surrounding he wanted her—if those surroundings were an office it would be some sort of an ideal office where Ruth's work was the law and where her work was negligible.

"But I must earn money. Father I can't be a burden any longer."

"A burden! Dear child, never talk that way again. A burden! Why, Ruth dear, what makes you think—" His words stopped and his hand went to his heart. Ruth saw his shadow on his face and her own heart stopped for an instant.

"Never mind, I won't talk that way again. Lie back, and stay

Darts Lowered the Colors of the Reds

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 26.—With 3500 spectators shouting their heads off every minute of the time, Dartmouth raced to a 5-3 victory in a sensational twenty minutes overtime hockey match at the Arena Rink last night. After the three regular sessions had ended with the teams deadlocked in a 3-3 tie, and the first ten minute overtime session had ended with nothing more added to the count, Dartmouth stepped out in the final five minutes of the second overtime session and ran in two goals that sewed up the game, gave them a win and placed Dartmouth Wanderers and Dartmouth in a three cornered tie for the leadership of the league. To Johnny Patterson of the Darts, turning out for the first time this season with his team, goes the honor of breaking the deadlock. Patterson worked hard all through the game and hurled rubber at the Wanderers' net on many occasions. He was bound to score the way he was shooting, and proved it by denting the twine twice during the night, his second goal being the one that really decided the game. Billy McKay made the fifth Dartmouth tally and made assurance double sure thereby.

Play started off with a rush and Fred Lane made a great attempt to score in the first minute play by carrying the rubber to Tobin, who came out to make a good save. Hickey collected the disc and carried it to the other end of the twine on a sensational run, where he slipped it to Dunn in a perfect pass that Dunn rammed into the twine for the opening counter. Time, 2 minutes. The Dartmouth fans went wild at this and for the remainder of the game made enough noise for several hockey games.

McKay furnished a thrill right at the start of the second frame by going through alone. He was brought down, however, by the Red defense, later he again missed with a wicked shot, but Patterson got the rubber and carried it out to the wing, where he shot an easy one that fooled McKay and went into the net for the second score of the game. Time 2 minutes, 40 seconds.

McKay signalled his return to the ice with a fine rush and Hickey came back a moment later to turn in some fine work also. McKay went through the Wanderers' defense, but Lilly tripped him and a few seconds later he again missed with a wicked shot, but Patterson got the rubber and carried it out to the net for the second score of the game. Time 2 minutes, 40 seconds.

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up. I tried medicines I saw advertised, and was treated by doctors but the Rheumatism always came back. In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-lives' would stop Rheumatism and took a box, and got relief; then took 'Fruit-a-lives' right along for about six months and I have never felt my Rheumatism since."

Marysville Defeat St. John

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 23.—A wonderful exhibition of goal tending was given at the Arena last evening when Nicholson for St. John turned in a performance that has seldom been equalled in these parts. The actual contest lasted for sixty minutes. During the first five minutes Nicholson stopped nine shots. After that they went to him so fast that they could not be counted. A conservative estimate gave the Marysville team 108 shots, of which nine went into the net.

The final score was: Marysville 9, St. John 1.

The St. John team showed lack of condition on the heavy ice. Drummie, in centre, played with a broken rib, which he secured in practice several days ago. Taft played a steady game for St. John and scored the only goal for the home team.

During the intermissions Willie Brown skated an exhibition 220 yards and a half-mile. The time given for the 220 was 22 seconds and for the half mile 1.33 1-5.

A large crowd witnessed the game and the enthusiasm was pronounced showing that the fans are ready to support hockey to the limit.

IMPROVING MILLING PLANT

TIMMINS, Jan. 26.—In preparation for a proposed enlargement to its milling plant, the Hollinger Consolidated is said to be closing transactions for a large amount of additional equipment. Among other things in the general preparation for a larger output, the company will build many more new houses in Timmins for the accommodation of its employees. By the time the maximum daily ore capacity is reached this company will employ probably about 3500 men.

NEW CANADIAN NEWS PRINT

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 26.—The first run of newsprint made at the Fort William Paper Company's mill here, was turned out on the last day of 1922. This is the first paper ever made in Fort William. The run was a trial of the machinery which was being turned over for the first time, and was satisfactory. It is expected that from this time forward the paper mill will be in continuous operation and that it will produce 160 tons of newsprint a day.

GIVEN under my Hand and the Seal of the said Court on this nineteenth day of January A. D. 1923 and in the Thirtieth year of His Majesty's reign.

(Sgd.) A. B. WARBURTON, Judge of Probate 11589-20-841.

ON BEING OUT OF LOVE

Advice is constantly being given to those in love. Less is said of those who are out of love. Perhaps it would be too much like writing about a blank? And yet thousands of people are in the less discussed, unutterably dull.

Of course, directly we begin to say anything in favor of the lot we are told "I never was in love." But not necessarily is this true. The grapes may be admittedly very sweet, yet the beholder may turn away from them instead of gazing at them till they assume the proverbial quality.

Few lovers have as unrestricted an opportunity of pursuing friendship as the free of heart have. It is not only a question of time, but of mental and heart space.

Friendship in the deepest, fullest, most vital sense is generally found between people whose lives do not hold the delightful emotional concentration known as being in love. Lovers make fine comrades for the people with whom they work, go upon adventures, or into battle, but comradeship is not the same thing as friendship.

Friendship, though it is less sweet than love, perhaps gives a fairer level of happiness. Its joys are less keen its anxieties are less wearing, its pains less acute. Think of that moment of agonized disappointment when the postman passes the house of the lover who is watching for a letter from the beloved; can friendship show a like torment? Besides, the most sensitive and imaginative of us rarely worry ourselves about the possibility of losing our friends. There are few women who have never sighed over the chances of losing a lover. A part of love diminishes as the years go by, not the greater part, it is true, but friendship knows no loss. On the contrary, it is always being enriched.

Probably there is no peace of heart to be compared to that of the man or woman who has fallen out of love, not only with love, but with self, and who has without hope or cant, a wide love for humanity.

There must be no pretence that happy lovers are not envious; they are always envious. But to suggest that in all the great, mingled fabric of existence there is nothing to attract the attention of those who are not in love is to admit pessimism.

For those who are out of love, and have not grown cross and spiteful about it, life has much more than the compensations which is such cold comfort. It has particular pleasures, characteristic experiences, special realizations.

WINNIPEG SKATERS START TO CHICAGO

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23.—Frank Stack and Rutherford Stainby, junior and juvenile skating aces of this city, left last night for Chicago to compete in the United States championship on Friday and Saturday. If they are successful the Winnipeg speed skating club intends to send them to Montreal to compete in the national championship a few days later.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STELLARTON WON FROM NEW GLASGOW

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Jan. 22.—In an Independent Hockey League fixture at the Arena Rink here tonight the Stellarton team with the assistance of big Stryx McDonald and Campbell, of Stryx, defeated the New Glasgow team by the score of two to one. The ice was in heavy condition which meant a big handicap as they could not get their combination working as smoothly as in other games. Time after time Grimly, Carroll and Bickerton brought the fans to their feet with their clever rushes down the length of the ice, while McDonald, Higgins and Nolan did the heavy part of the work for Stellarton.

EXTRAORDINARY THEFT

PARIS, Jan. 26.—What probably constitutes a unique theft is reported from Amiens. Government engineers carrying out an inspection there report the complete and mysterious disappearance of 1,500 meters of railroad track in the neighborhood of Miraumont. The railroad was a light line built during the war for transports.

The report says that it was last "officially seen" early in December. It is thought that the authors of this extraordinary theft were Polish workmen employed on reconstruction work in the district. The fact that it remained unnoticed was because the track ran along the boundary line between two departments, which had been disputing its future ownership. And now it is gone.

ENLARGING COTTON MILLS PLANT

WELLAND, Jan. 26.—Following the recent favorable verdict of the Welland raters on the Empire Cotton Mills by-law, the company is preparing to start construction on the enlargement to their plant. Work will have to be started within six months, and the company is now preparing plans, and building will be commenced as soon as these are approved.

TO TREAT DIABETIC PERSONS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25.—Establishment of the Manitoba Diabetic Research Bureau for the production of insulin, for the treatment of diabetes, was announced by J. C. Waugh, a member of the Bureau and chairman of the finance committee. Arrangements have been made with the University of Manitoba for quarters in the Medical Building, where the insulin will be produced. The initial production will be about 50 units of insulin, sufficient to take care of 12 patients.

AS MANY IN THE PENALTY BOX AS ON MONCTON ICE

MONCTON, N.B., Jan. 24.—In a fast scrappy game the Moncton Victorias defeated the Amherst Ramblers by 8 to 6 here last night in the first game for these teams in the second series of the Independent League.

Roughness that ended in a fistic encounter between two Amherst and two Moncton players characterized the game, and just before the game ended each team had only three men on the ice. The game was full of excitement and up to the third period was very much in doubt.

The first period ended with the score 3 to 2 in favor of Amherst. Moncton changed the order of things in the second period, the score being 6 to 5 in favor of the home team. In the final period Moncton scored twice and Amherst once, the game ending 8 to 6 in favor of the Victorias.

Six minutes before the end of the game Ingram, in rushing down the ice, collided with Brownell, of the Amherst team, and both went to the ice in a mix-up. George Carroll went to the rescue of Ingram and Jackson went to the assistance of Brownell and a short fistic encounter ensued with the result that the four men were put off the ice for the remainder of the game. A little later Wheaton for Moncton, and Bickerton for Amherst, were penalized for interference, making six men in the penalty box.

Line-up:—

Moncton	Goal	Amherst
Cummins	Defence	Chapman
George Carroll	Defence	Fraser
John Carroll	Centre	Brownell
Ingram	Centre	Lowther

ICELAND'S WONDERFUL HOT BATH.

One of the great heroes of Iceland was Snorre Thurluston. He wrote a book about the kings of Norway, and he built a remarkable bath which is still preserved after more than six centuries. The bath which is circular in form and about 15 feet in diameter is built of heath stones, neatly fitted and held together by a fine and durable cement. Around the inside rim of the basin runs a stone bench, capable of seating thirty persons. The water for the bath is brought from a hot spring fountain, and is conducted for a distance of 500 feet through an underground passage. An aperture which lets in the water can be closed at will, while another opening in the bottom of the bath, (also capable of being closed with a stone) allows the water to flow out. In this way the bath is kept perfectly clean.

Winter Hard On Baby

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Winnipeg Skaters Start to Chicago

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23.—Frank Stack and Rutherford Stainby, junior and juvenile skating aces of this city, left last night for Chicago to compete in the United States championship on Friday and Saturday. If they are successful the Winnipeg speed skating club intends to send them to Montreal to compete in the national championship a few days later.

ICELAND'S WONDERFUL HOT BATH.

One of the great heroes of Iceland was Snorre Thurluston. He wrote a book about the kings of Norway, and he built a remarkable bath which is still preserved after more than six centuries. The bath which is circular in form and about 15
