The Circular Staircase

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

and finding Bailey there had brought him home. Mr. Bailey had not been hard to persuade—probably Gertrude knew why. The girl was tired and went to bed soon, while Halsey and Mr. Bailey went to the billiard room, and I too retired soon, postponing to the next day my story of our excitement.

At three o'clock in the morning, I was aroused by a pistol shot. I heard Gertrude stirring in the adjoining room and the next moment she had thrown open the connecting door.

"Aunt Ray" she cried, "some one has been killed!"

We went into the hall and saw the new maids peering down, headed by Liddy. I went to Halsey's room, knocked and pushed the door open. The room was empty; the bed had not been occupied. We went to Mr. Bailey's room and found that it too was empty.

The cook telephoned the Greenwood Club while the rest of us went down to the card room, for I felt that whatever we found would be there or on the circular staircase.

Gertrude, holding a candle, led the way. Then she pointed to the floor, where huddled face down, was a man, in dinner clothes. "Jack," she cried, "Oh, Jack."

The girl turned the body over to look at the face. It was that of a man I had never seen before. "He has killed him!" Gertrude muttered.

III

A group of men hastened over from the club, among them a Mr. Jarvis, whom I knew, who said the body was that of Arnold Armstrong.

"He has been murdered—in his own house," he said. "Where is Halsey?"

"I don't know," I answered feebly. "I wish he and Bailey were here," Mr. Jarvis went on. "Especially—"

"Especially since Bailey and Arnold Armstrong were notoriously bad friends. Bailey was cashier in the Armstrong bank and it was he who got Arnold into trouble last spring. There is one thing you may count on, Miss Rachel, and that is that any court in the country would acquit a man who kills an intruder in his house at night. If Halsey—"

"You don't think Halsey did it!" I exclaimed.

"No, no," Mr. Jarvis said. "Come Miss Innes, you must go to bed."

Gertrude came into my room at early dawn and I told her of the events of the night before and showed her the broken cuff link. As she saw it, she turned at the foot of the bed, then clucked to the window and stared out with a look on her face I could not fathom.

It was a relief when Mrs. Watson came in with tea and toast. She herself was a wreck; blue-white around the lips, and she had one hand tied up. She said she had

ART CLASS.—On Tuesday afternoon May 7th a group of Charlottetown's interested devotees of Art met in the Harris Art Gallery to discuss the formation of an Art group for the furtherance of what has been felt for some time to be required, the expression of the promising talent included through-out Prince Edward Island and to work in affiliation with other Maritime Art groups. The result is the newly formed organization to be known as the Prince Edward Island Art Society and a constitution and slate of officers and executive were approved. Officers appointed: Secretary, A. L. Wright Treasurer, Miss Doris Gill, together with a working executive of nine members. An offer from the National Gallery at Ottawa of the loan of a collection of water colors, the property of the government and recently on display at the Lord Nelson Hotel Halifax was read and accepted. This collection will arrive in Charlottetown this week and it is the purpose of the society to show this collection as an exhibition at the Harris Art Gallery in the very near future.

NEW GLASGOW.—The Wide-Awake Group of New Glasgow held their annual meeting at the parlour on May 8th with a large attendance. The President, Edison MacDonald called the meeting to order and the devotional period opened with a hymn. Prayer by Mr. Quigley. The responsive scripture fallen down stairs in the excitement. In the morning, brave with daylight, Liddy had gone about the grounds and found a golf club. It occurred to me that it might have been the object which scratched the staircase. Then in a tully bed I found a revolver which I knew to be Halsey's, for I had unpacked his things. I seemed to see a network closing around my nephew, innocent as I knew he was. I was glad I had found the weapon before any detectives came around. I decided to keep what clues I had—the golf club, the cuff-link and the revolver—in a secure place until I could see some reason for displaying them. The cuff link had been dropped into a little box on my dresser, but when I next opened the box, it was gone.

reading was led by Rhoda Brown. The lessons during the past year have been very instructive under the leadership of Mr. Quigley. The answer to the Biblical Question was given. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. After the various committees were appointed and the business of the evening discussed, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months. President, R. H. Stevenson, vice pres. Roy Dickieson, secretary, Helen Houston, re-elected. The following editors were appointed for the "Snappy News," Editor in Chief, Rexton McCoubrey, Religious Editor, Jennie McNeill, Joke Editor, Ruth McCoubrey, Local news editor, Stirling Campbell. The meeting closed by singing "Blessed Assurance," dismissal by Mr. Quigley. Lunch was served by the committee in charge assisted by the hostess. The remainder of the evening was spent very pleasantly in contests and games. Next meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Campbell.

1934 SUNGLO FED FOX PUP PELT

REST IN 80,000 SKINS—LONDON MARCH SALE The following letter was received by us unsolicited.

INTERNATIONAL FOX & ANIMAL FOODS, LTD. Summerside, P. E. I. Attention: Mr. L. W. Hancock, Mgr. Dear Mr. Hancock:— You may have noticed in our daily papers where a pelt from my ranch realized the highest price on the London Auctions in March. Major A. S. Robertson who was present at the Auction and who was sent over by the C.N.S.F.B. Ass'n, told me that it was UNQUESTIONABLY THE FINEST PELT ON THE SALE AND THIS WAS THE EXPRESSED OPINION OF THE BUYERS WITH WHOM HE TALKED.

The reason I draw your attention to this fact is, that our pups were fed on SUNGLO FOX RATION NO. 1 from the time they were weaned until pelting, and was the ONLY BALANCED GEREAL they received to my knowledge. I feel it is only just that your feed should receive due recognition in this regard. Yours truly, (Signed) E. S. COFFIN
